Small Business Saturday, held the Saturday after Thanksgiving, will take place on Nov. 30. This is the day shoppers can avoid the long lines at the mall and big-box stores and enjoy a less-hectic shopping experience. It's a day in which they can find a unique gift for a special person on their list, such as a centerpiece designed by the local florist, a sweater offered at a downtown boutique or a painting of a local landmark sold at the museum gift shop.

The day was conceived in 2010 by American Express and 130 partners in an attempt to boost small brick-and-mortar stores in local communities. The first year 1.5 million Facebook users liked the Small Business Saturday page, www.facebook.com/SmallBusinessSaturday, according to the credit card company. Last year, more than 100 million people shopped small, driving up sales in the independent business market by 28 percent.

Like last year, American Express is offering an incentive this year in the form of a credit on some cardholders' statements if they shop at a small business that day using an eligible American Express card.

Michael Chodos, associate administrator for entrepreneurial development at the Small Business Administration, said the agency got on board when it heard of the movement, providing support and awareness about the day. "It's grown enormously each year. Last year, it caught fire," Chodos said.

Chodos knows the local mom and pop stores usually can't compete pricewise with the big-box competition, but said the small shops can gain an edge by providing good customer service or a product not available at the large retailers.

"Small businesses need to decide their niche. If they provide a service, they need to find a way to be more engaged and responsive to their customers' needs," Chodos said.

He said the past three years have been tough times for small and large businesses, particularly around the holidays. However, Chodos said, small businesses that participated in Small Business Saturday reported an increase in revenues and in the number of customers. He had no formal statistics, saying it was all anecdotal.

Chodos believes there will be money left over from the Black Friday shopping blitz to patronize small businesses, especially if those businesses create a buzz about Small Business Saturday ahead of time through advertising, posters, fliers and promotions.

"If store owners start talking about the day beforehand, shoppers will start thinking about what they want to buy," Chodos said.

HIGH IMPACT:

Buying local keeps money in community

By Kathryn Sucich
More Content Now

It sounds like a nice idea to shop local on Small Business Saturday, but does it really make a difference if you shop at an independent store versus a big-box retailer? Especially when many of the large chains are offering steep discounts for the holiday season?

Michael Chodos, associate administrator for entrepreneurial development for the U.S. Small Business Administration, says that buying goods from a small local business has many positive benefits. Here are a few:

• You're supporting more than half of all workers. Chodos says that small businesses are key to the economic recovery. Two-thirds of net new jobs are created by small businesses, and more than half of all people currently employed in the U.S. work at small businesses. By supporting independent retailers, grocers and more, we are supporting putting people back to work.

• More of your money spent at a locally owned store stays within the community. The 3/50 Project, an organization that supports independent businesses, uses statistics from Civic Economics on its website, the350project.net/home.html, that says of every $100 you spend locally, $68 stays within the local community. If you spend that same $100 at a national chain, $43 stays in the community. And if you spend it online? $0.

When considering what products you should buy locally, scour local businesses for sales or promotions. Many will be offering deals in conjunction with Small Business Saturday. Also think about your holiday list, and what items might require a helping hand with regards to picking out the right gift, or post-purchase customer service. Small businesses are often better equipped to handle this, especially during the holiday rush.

You can also think about those stores that you have frequented over the years but maybe haven't dropped into recently. Making a purchase will demonstrate your support for that business and desire to see them remain within your community.

The 3/50 Project website says that showing support for three local businesses can make an enormous difference. If just half of the population spent $50 per month locally, that would result in $42.6 billion in revenue - an enormous economic impact.

Money trail

According to The 3/50 Project, when you purchase products and services at local businesses instead of big-box stores or online, more money stays within the community. Here's a breakdown:

SUPPORTING LOCAL RETAILERS
For every $100 spent at local stores, $68 stays within the local community.

SUPPORTING NONLOCAL CORPORATE RETAILERS
For every $100 spent at non-local big-box stores, only $43 stays within the community.

SUPPORTING ONLINE RETAILERS
For every $100 spent online, none will stay within the community, unless the online retailer has a facility in town.

Stats on small-biz shoppers

According to The American Express OPEN Small Business Saturday Consumer Pulse 2011, an online survey of 1,000 consumers 18 and older, 93 percent of respondents believed it's important to support their local small businesses, and 73 percent consciously shopped at small businesses in their communities because they did not want them to go away.

More stats on Small Business Saturday, a national movement sponsored by American Express to patronize local retailers:

33% Average percentage of monthly discretionary spending consumers spent at locally owned, independent businesses.

46% Percentage of consumers who believed the strength of the small business economy was worse in 2011 than five years ago, with 21 percent responding the strength was the same as it was five years ago.

Why do people shop at local businesses?

23% Respondents who said because the people there are friendly and know my name.

22% Respondents who said because of staff recommendations based on knowing them as a customer.

Food pantry

I wanted to ask everyone reading for a small favor this holiday season. Each community has a food pantry that is available, no questions asked for those who are in need. I recently had a talk with someone about this and she looked at me like I was crazy when I suggested a way to encourage local involvement and donations. Her response was: "no one around here needs a food pantry." This made me so sad and I want you to know that Cohasset and surrounding communities have families in need on any given day and that can be a local senior citizen, your friend or a neighbor.

If possible, take a few moments to donate groceries and non-perishable food to the food pantry. Please remember to check expiration dates. 'Tis the season for giving and a food pantry donation is indeed a gift from the heart.

Scholarship

We want to thank Pat McCarthy for sharing this with us. Many Cohasseters will remember the late Everett Dorr, who was the athletic director, teacher and coach at Cohasset High. Everett's wife, Fran, passed away on Oct. 3 in Camden, Maine. Fran will always be remembered for her strong voice and support along the sidelines at CHS football games!

Fran was predeceased by their sons, Daniel and David. Donations in Fran's name can be made to the David Dorr Scholarship Fund, in care of the Scituate Youth Center, P.O. Box 757, Scituate, MA 02066

LIFE AT CHS

Football, football and more football!

MATTHEW MACCORMACK

For starters, CHS's favorite Thanksgiving tradition, Powderpuff football, saw radical changes this year.

With only two and half days of school this week, nothing much happened at CHS. Everything winded down, and everyone set up shop in preparation for a long weekend of turkey feasts and family gatherings.

Oh, if only that were true!

This truncated November week proved to be possibly the most active 2.5 days of the entire year. For starters, CHS's favorite Thanksgiving tradition, Powderpuff football, saw radical changes this year. The new Powderpuff format was debuted, with the game taking place on Tuesday night, rather than the usual Wednesday afternoon. A back and forth struggle all night long, it was fitting that the game came down to one single play at the end of the bout. The Seniors made a goal line stand as the last few seconds ticked off the clock, thwarting the Junior comeback effort. The class of 2014 once again proved itself to be "1-4 The Ages" with its gritty 12-8 victory.

In addition to the game itself, Powderpuff is also quite the event off the field. Students enjoy their Powderpuff shirts (which are handed out to the juniors and seniors a week before the game), and the quirky nicknames students selected to tote on the back of their shirts. The CHS Student Council also made its presence felt at the game, with a snack shack, as well as the school's newest vending installment, a school store rollaway cart (which was manned by StuCo representatives Tommy Powers and Jack O'Brien) that dispenses products such as key chains, T-Shirts, and lip balm.

And speaking of Student Council, the "Philanthropy for the Philippines" penny war fundraiser concluded on Tuesday, with a flurry of last-minute donations from the student body. As of press time, the final donation count had not been tallied, but I will certainly deliver said figure when it arrives.

The Drama Club's production of LOL: A Century of Comedy debuted last Friday and Sunday to much applause. I hope many of you attended the performances, and will be sure to keep you updated on all upcoming drama endeavors.

And finally, a quick sports update: CHS football took down St. Clement last Saturday by a score of 40-20, and now will move on to the Division 6 Super Bowl at Gillete Stadium on Saturday, Dec. 7th at 9 a.m. Before that, however, came the Turkey Day rivalry showdown at Hull, which figures, as always, to be entertaining. Good luck Skippers!

And good luck to you all during your holiday weekend. I have had an awesome time writing for you all so far this year, and I look forward to the rest of the year. So enjoy the three F's of Thanksgiving (football, family, and food), and have yourself a good one. Even though you may find yourself in a food coma, or may have to resort to adding an extra notch in that belt of yours, be sure to keep it classy Cohasset!

Students help 'Scare Away Hunger'

As the final days of November fly by, the first thing on nearly everyone's mind is the month of December — the food, the gifts, the family gatherings. However, amidst the turkey feasts, Black Friday sales, and gift-buying frenzy, we mustn't overlook the true meaning of the holiday season: giving back.

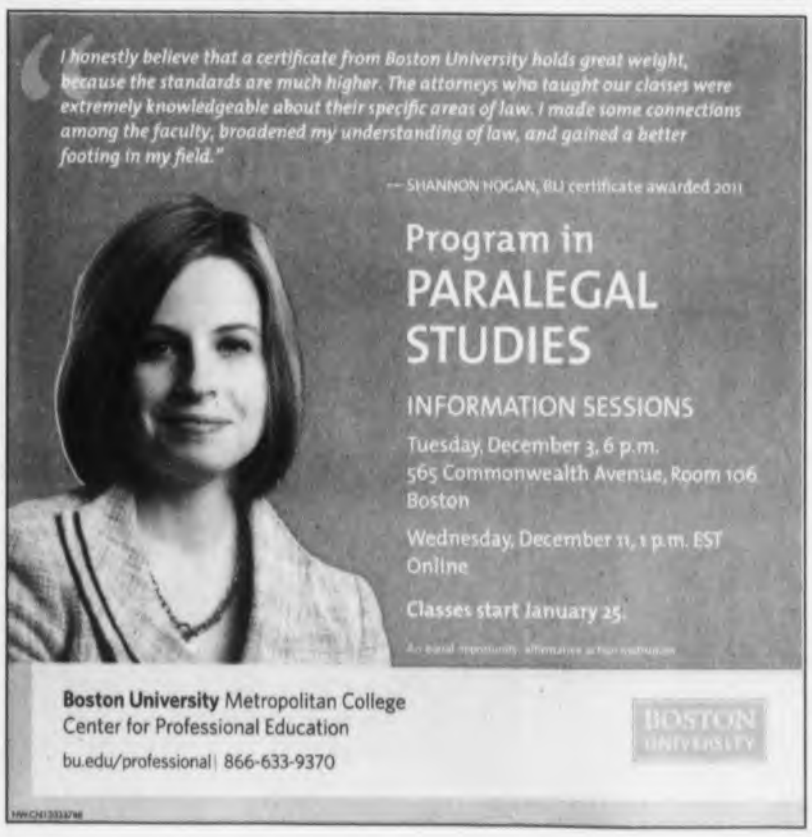
Luckily, the students at Cohasset High School haven't forgotten.

The CHS Student Council (StuCo), which is made up of representatives from all four high school grades, has made it its mission this fall to give back. Under the direction of faculty advisor Kate McAlarney, StuCo has begun to flourish in its mission.

In an idea proposed by Senior Class Vice President Matthew MacCormack, the Student Council began its "Scare Away Hunger" campaign this past Halloween.

Students were encouraged to not only wear a light costume to school to enjoy the day, but also to bring a small donation for the Cohasset Food Pantry. The holiday season can often be the toughest time for families in need, so the fundraising efforts were timed to coincide with the holiday season.

Fortunately, the student body responded with a more than thorough participation rate on Halloween morning. StuCo participants made posters, adorned the school's entrance and hallways with spooky decorations, and made announcements all week to hype up the student population.



StuCo reps lined the school entrance, armed with jack lantern Trick-or-Treat buckets as donation bins. When it was all said and done, CHS had raised $245 for the Food Pantry.

McAlarney said she is proud of the Student Council.

"I work with a truly amazing group of kids. They gave up their limited free time to make posters, decorate and rally their peers to make this happen," she said. "It is wonderful to see the students at CHS being concerned for the welfare and happiness of others in their own community and then doing something to help."

While not completely eradicated, hunger might just be a bit more scared after the efforts of CHS and its Student Council.

Auditions for 'Shrek'

The Cohasset Dramatic Club will hold auditions for "Shrek the Musical," based upon the award-winning Dreamworks animation film. This stage musical version tells the story of the unlikely hero, an ogre named Shrek, who just wants to "save his swamp" and his loyal steed Donkey, who embark on a quest to rescue the beautiful (if slightly temperamental) Princess Fiona from a fire-breathing lovesick Dragon. Add the diminutive Lord Farquaad, a gang of fairy-tale misfits, and a biscuit with attitude and you've got "Shrek the Musical," big, bright and beautiful! Performance dates are March 14-30, 2014.

Auditions will be held on Dec. 8 and 9 at the Cohasset Town Hall Theater, 41 Highland Avenue. Audition details can be found at www.cohassetdramaticclub.org/auditions.html. They are looking to assemble a large cast and there are roles available for ages 11 to adult. Email us info@cohassetdramaticclub.org with questions.

Holly Day Fair at Holly Hill Farm

Holly Hill Farm will hold its fifth annual Holly Day Fair from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 7, in the heated greenhouse at the farm.

This artisan fair will have unique and beautiful hand crafted items for everyone on your holiday shopping list - jewelry, soaps, pottery, toys, jams, hand knitted items, rustic furniture, upcycled pillows and bags, sketchbooks, one of a kind apparel, candles and so much more.

There will be a wreath making workshop (time TBD) and food available for purchase during the fair. Holly Hill Farm is located at 236 Jerusalem Road. For directions and more information, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

Small Business at Buttonwood

In celebration of Small Business Saturday, Buttonwood Books and Toys will join with Indie Bookstores across the country to celebrate Sherman Alexie's initiative, "Indies First." Alexie encouraged local authors to become a bookseller-for-a-day and advocate for their favorite books at their local independent bookstore.

In that spirit, local author, A. C. Gaughen, will be at Buttonwood,747 CJC Hwy., Route 3A, Cohasset, from 3 to 5 p.m., on Saturday, Nov. 30, to meet, greet and personally help suggest great books for middle and teen readers.

Gaughen is the author of "Scarlet," a re-imagined tale of Robin Hood, and the soon to be released "Lady Thief" (Feb. 11, 2014).

Also from 3 to 5 p.m., young adults are invited to play the board game Settlers of Catan. All are welcome.

Call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665 for more information.

Caroling at the Village Stroll

Exceptional singing voices are not required; participants will be backed by the "world-renowned" First Parish Choir, which will lead us in a medley of familiar and simple carols.

For our 11th year in a row, First Parish on the Common is sponsoring an old and well-loved Cohasset tradition. Caroling at the Village Stroll, on Saturday, Dec. 14.

Everyone is welcome. This is a community event for young and old, especially families with school-age children. Bring some friends. Exceptional singing voices are not required; participants will be backed by the "world-renowned" First Parish Choir, which will lead us in a medley of familiar and simple carols.

An early dinner of pizza will be served in the Parish House starting at 4:30 p.m.; participants will then walk downtown to Darilynn's store on Main Street around 5:15 p.m. to enjoy hot cocoa, hot cider and cookies. Cookie donations will be much appreciated. We'll do singing for about 30 minutes from 5:30 to 6 p.m. after which you'll be free to sample the wares of our Village stores, and take a ride on the hay wagon.

Join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word. The more the merrier. For further information contact Sandy Bailey at 781-383-1100 or Woody Chittick at 383-3215.

OUR VIEW

First Thanksgiving

"Would you please pass the furmity, Governor?"

"You boiled it just right in the pipkin, Mary."

"I'll have a little more aqua vita, Susanna."

It's possible the conversation went a bit like this that first Thanksgiving Day in Plimoth so many years ago.

About 140 people sat at the three-day harvest: 90 Indians and 50 Pilgrims.

If you happen to have been the cook and thought that you're going to work hard Thursday, keep in mind that at the first Thanksgiving, only four women did all the cooking.

They roasted wildfowl, turkeys, and deer in English fashion. They boiled cod and sea bass in Indian tradition.

They cooked breads and fruit tarts in a skillet over an open fire.

For dessert, they made furmity by beating wet wheat in a sack with a washbeetle, boiling it overnight, soaking it on a fire, boiling it in cream in a pipkin, then topping it with sugar.

Their guests were not worried about their cholesterol level or the fat content in the food.

They ate to their hearts' content and then washed it all down with beer called aqua vita.

They scooped food from wooden bowls with their hands.

There were knives and a few spoons, but no forks.

Huge napkins were very important.

It was a whole year after the Pilgrims first put their tattered boots on Plimoth Rock before the first Thanksgiving.

Their tiny and overcrowded Mayflower had tossed like a toy boat upon the fierce Atlantic waves for two months.

Their trip had been stormy and long.

Their arrival was dismal and discouraging.

The first winter saw more than half their number starve or freeze to death.

Their first harvest was a disaster, but in the second year, with the help of the Indians, their fields bore fruit.

Instead of saying "It's about time, God," they thanked Him for His blessing.

It is now over three and a half centuries later.

We went a-hunting in a well-stocked supermarket and speared our frozen turkey with icy fingers.

Instead of checking our meat for arrowheads, we read the labels for the fat and MSG content.

Instead of cooking herbs and roots for days, we might have popped a pouch of peas in boiling water.

Instead of skillet baked bread, we might have browned and served some rolls.

Instead of beating wet wheat for furmity, we might have heated up a pre-baked apple pie.

But the warmth of Thanksgiving was still the same.

We asked nothing more from it than a great football game between the Skippers and the Hull Pirates in the morning, a perfect turkey dinner with a loving family in the afternoon, and a feeling of contentment with life in the evening.

We needed the peace of Thanksgiving more than ever in these troubled times.

Hope your Thanksgiving was a happy one.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Money should go to the schools

The Cohasset Public Schools experienced over $250,000 in budget cuts this year because the Town simply didn't have the revenue to support the schools at previous levels. It's not an easy task to cut that amount from a budget that is already tight and being supplemented by fees, and in the case of kindergarten, tuition.

Now 6 months later the Town finds itself with $1.2million in free cash and an additional $600,000 in State Aid, much of it aid to education. That's $1.8 million in revenue that was not budgeted for operating expenses. So the town restores the $250,000 to the school budget and looks at pressing capital needs, or one would expect. But it doesn't. Instead, the chair of the School Committee spearheads a petition drive to call a Town Meeting and put virtually all of the money away for a "rainy day". The only money that was added to the budget was put into the DPW for road repairs. I still cannot understand why the School Dept. didn't ask that the $250,000 be put back into their budget. Obviously the town can now well afford to do so.

Additional state aid to education should be used for education. There is no guarantee that any of the money that was put away will be used for the schools, and now the school budget is fixed at a much lower level than it should be. There were no good answers to the many questions raised at town meeting about why this new revenue wasn't going to the schools in accordance with adopted financial policies.

Cohasset has always recognized the full funding of its schools as a priority. In lean times, both town and schools shared the pain. But when the town is experiencing robust new revenue, the schools should be at the top of the recipient list. It's wise to save for a rainy day, but it's equally wise to fund a topnotch school district. I'm disappointed and frankly baffled by these actions. I'm still hoping that some light will be shed on this.

Wellspring grateful for community support

The Big Wish for Wellspring was an amazing success thanks, in part, to generous Cohasset businesses that enable Wellspring to lend a hand up to neighbors in need. The event on Nov. 8, was remarkable. Guests enjoyed incredible food, a rocking band — The Smoking Jackets! and the chance to make real wishes come true.

Wellspring has a food pantry and emergency services, but the adult education classes, GED program, high school diploma program, career counseling and job-training programs truly give clients the hand up to a better life. The Big Wish was our most successful fundraiser ever, and will help fund these vital programs.

Cohasset chefs including Julia Lisinski of Fresh Feast, Brian Houlihan of Bia Bistro, Jen Warshaw of 5 South Main and Baked and 12 other vendors provided fabulous food for 280 guests. Heartfelt thanks to Cohasset business sponsors: Joyce Whitman of Twist Creative Group, Terri MacDonald of Coldwell Banker, John and Debbie Flanagan of Edward Jones, Michael Filbey of Canary, Inc., Connie and Nadir Afshar of Panache and Andy Kuhn of The Smoking Jackets.

The need for Wellspring's services grows daily. Susan, a former client, spoke at the event, and talked about the many ways that Wellspring helped her escape a destructive environment and start a new life. She said: "Wellspring has been a terrific resource for me through the years. The education classes, the pantry, the bookstore and all the kind and wonderful people who work or volunteer there. Thank you. You are beacons of light to so many people like myself who come to you for all kinds of help in their time of need."

On behalf of clients like Susan, we thank all the Cohasset businesses and residents who continually help Wellspring help others. Thanks for giving.

Monica McKenney, director of development & advancement, Wellspring Multi-Service Center

Tea Party tactics

Truism: Persistent lobby groups often prevail at Town Meetings

Truism: Results of Town elections often reverse lobbyist initiatives

Similarly, once upon a time, Cohasset and the Country respected election outcomes. Despite despicable last minute signage deception tactics, we have a certified elected Board of Selectman. Since the election, poor losers have sought to prevail by petition. ENUF.

COLLEGE CONNECTION

Taking time to give thanks

Taking it a step further this is also a wonderful time to thank your guidance counselor teachers and coaches who wrote reference letters for you.

STEPHANIE SEARS

Thanksgiving is undoubtedly my favorite time of year. I love to cook and eat so the holiday provides me with opportunity to do both well. It is a wonderful time to reconnect with family and friends. It is also a welcome break from the heavy commercialism of Halloween and Christmas. Most importantly though it gives me time to reflect on the positive aspects of my life.

If you are a high school senior there is also much for which you can be thankful. You've made it through nearly 12 years of school. You have been endowed with a brain, which allows you to think creatively and logically. You have attended excellent schools in a very supportive community. The physical environment you live in is gorgeous and full of resources.

Each of you can add to this list – your gift as an athlete your natural ability to design and create fabulous music or art your kindness to be a true friend your sense of humor to name a few. Every person I have met has unique talents and gifts even if they sometimes go unnoticed. My sense is that if you allow yourself to brag a little you will have quite a list of things you do well.

Who are the people in your life for whom you're thankful? Maybe it is your parents and siblings who have always been there for you. Perhaps it is another adult who has made an impact on your life. Most likely you have at least one person your age who has been a good friend. Now is an excellent time to tell them thanks for the difference they have made to you. Life is too short not to tell the people close to you how you feel.

Taking it a step further this is also a wonderful time to thank your guidance counselor teachers and coaches who wrote reference letters for you. A lot of extra time went into crafting well-thought-out recommendations and they did so not because they were obligated but because they believed in you.

It is still too early to thank the college admissions office but a note to your regional representative asking a question or updating them on a recent event (I starred in the fall play! Our team made it to the playoffs and I scored a goal! I aced my SAT exam!) is appropriate.

Once we pause to count our blessings it seems an easy thing to do. The challenge for all of us is to remember to take time to do so in the first place. For me making conscious daily decisions to slow down keeps my life more uncluttered and focused. Even in your hurried high school career you can find moments to take a step back and ponder all that you've been given. I have found again and again that blessings always outweigh the difficulties in life. Of course in the words of W.T. Purkiser "Not what we say about our blessings but how we use them is the true measure of our thanksgiving." My hope is that the spirit of gratefulness, which is so abundant this month will continue throughout the year for you.

GROWING ON THE FARM

Sharing some thoughts on milk

Consuming raw milk is a risk. Pulling an organic carrot from the ground, wiping it off and eating it, with potential soil in its crevices, is also a risk.

JON BELBER

In the main barn at Holly Hill Farm, there is a faded picture of cows in the barnyard, circa late 1890's.

The cows were on the farm providing milk for the farmers and the family that lived on the farm at the time.

Milk is good for us and it was good for the farmers and family then as well. At that time, it may have even been raw. It was also a time when many farmers, even in Cohasset, had cows providing milk.

These days, milk is still a sought after source of nutrients and good health. Many kids at school, mustached youths and adults respond to the phrase "Got milk?" with a resounding yes. Cartons, gallons and jugs of milk are filled at dairies near and far.

There is also an increase in local, dairy cows in nearby Norwell, making the journey of fresh milk from pasture to fridge much shorter. On dwindling Massachusetts dairy farms some cows are fed growth hormones, others may eat genetically modified grain.

Much of this milk, delivered in old-fashioned trucks or by conventional means, goes through many steps and quite a process to secure health and a long lasting shelf life. It takes a lot of effort to meet the demands of all these milk drinkers.

It takes a lot to grow food for the masses, too.

Growing organic food with sustainable agricultural practices takes a great amount of work, certifying the growing fields, following specifics for compost operations and hours of labor to make sure all seeds are organically sourced, just to name a few of the details.

And there are further explanations as to why organic produce is often more expensive. Providing raw milk, as does Oake Knoll Farm in Foxboro, Mass. also takes a lot of work.

For more than five years, I have been among a group that takes turns traveling to the farm to pick up raw milk for a group of health conscious folks who want to consume this product.

And – with no offense to Louis Pasteur and his hard work – raw, unpasteurized milk with its beneficial bacteria may actually be good for us. I can point to many fewer illnesses in my family, a great number of reduced cases of asthma and a good tasting product.

There is an effort in Foxboro to shut down the farm due to one failed test, which was later negated by a positive test. The farm ironically sits in the shadow of Gillette stadium where there are tests and retests on the dangers of football causing concussions.

Consuming raw milk is a risk. Pulling an organic carrot from the ground, wiping it off and eating it, with potential soil in its crevices, is also a risk. Eating GMO products and food grown with synthetic fertilizers and processed with trans fats is also risky.

There are many things to harm us in this frightening world, both seen and unseen. I would rather know more about from where food comes and how it is grown. Know your farmer, his and her practices and learn about how animals live and grow.

I will drink to that, cream on the top, it hits the spot, 12 fluid ounces, that's a lot.

Jon Belber is a Scituate resident and the education director at Holly Hill Farm in Cohasset. He teaches students and adults about organic gardening and farming. His column appears twice monthly in the Mariner. He can be reached by email at jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com. For information on upcoming programs at Holly Hill, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

STATEHOUSE NEWS

Hedlund marks school building milestone

(MSBA Payments Reach $10 Billion Statewide... $32.4M for Cohasset)

Nine years after co-sponsoring and helping to pass legislation to reform the state's broken school building assistance program, Senator Robert L. Hedlund celebrated the Massachusetts School Building Authority's (MSBA) recent announcement that it has surpassed $10 billion in payments to cities and towns across the Commonwealth.

"When I was pushing to create the MSBA in 2004, there were over 400 school building projects across the state waiting for funding. Towns were faced with waiting up to 20 years for funding," explained Hedlund. "With the reforms made and with the leadership of then Treasurer and MSBA Chairman, Tim Cahill, those projects were fully funded within two years. We helped towns save millions of dollars in interest," said Hedlund.

"The creation and success of the state's School Building Assistance Program is one of the proudest achievements I've been a part of on Beacon Hill."

State Sen. Robert Hedlund

The $10 billion in payments since the program's inception represents a total of 490 projects statewide that the MSBA has participated in or is currently working on. The new MSBA program has helped to improve learning facilities for over 600,000 students across the Commonwealth.

In an email to Sen. Hedlund announcing the milestone, John K. McCarthy, Executive Director of the MSBA, wrote, "Reaching the $10 billion mark in such a short period of time could not have been achieved without your continued legislative support and leadership."

The MSBA program has provided over $300 million in school building funds to Senator Hedlund's district, including $32.4 million for Cohasset schools. "The creation and success of the state's School Building Assistance Program is one of the proudest achievements I've been a part of on Beacon Hill," said Hedlund.

"It's not often we end up seeing meaningful results from reforms passed on Beacon Hill. The MSBA is a clear exception," Hedlund said. "Modern, clean, up-to-date schools are crucial to strengthening the educational experience here in the Commonwealth."

State Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, represents the eight-town Plymouth Norfolk District that includes Cohasset.

FOR THE RECORD

Good news, bad news

Their belief is the local paper should focus on all the positive things happening in the community – the good news. Let the big daily newspapers and the local television news channels deal with any negativity.

GREGORY MATHIS

First, the good news – there won't be any bad news in this week's column.

The bad news? You'll probably come across some of it – bad news, that is – elsewhere in the newspaper.

Some readers are somewhat sensitive to the type of stories they want to see in their local community newspaper. They don't want to read about violent crimes or tragedies, or negative attacks on hard working town officials who they argue are just looking out for the best interest of the town.

Their belief is the local paper should focus on all the positive things happening in the community – the good news. Let the big daily newspapers and the local television news channels deal with any negativity.

News, though, means different things to different people.

By definition, news is a report of recent events. But a broader explanation would include previewing upcoming events, analysis of important town issues, investigations into wrongdoing, profiling influential or interesting people or organizations, sharing personal news of births, graduations, marriages and even deaths, and so much more.

Good news – or positive news – isn't hard to find in our newspapers. While daily newspapers might focus more on all the bad stuff happening around the state, the country, and the world, your local community paper has its share of human-interest features and feel-good stories, as well as reader-generated content touting all types of personal achievements.

But that doesn't mean we shy away from hard news. Readers are sometimes surprised to see stories on drug busts, rape arrests and murders. We've actually had real estate agents complain about murder stories on the front page because in their mind it paints the town in a negative light.

But it's not always a chamber of commerce kind of day or week.

If we're doing our job properly you're getting a good mix of the good, bad and maybe even some ugly.

It's not uncommon to have a story about a drug bust or some other crime on the front page, along with a feature photo of a cute kid from a school event and a report about an upcoming fundraiser to help a community member in need.

We've done our fair share of profiles on residents turning 100 years old, people being rescued from precarious situations, along with other good deeds and acts of heroism.

But bad news seems to find us easier.

Covering town government or police and fire news, by its very nature, lends itself to the negative category. But don't you want to know if your taxes are going up and where the money is being spent? Aren't you interested in criminal behavior going on in the community or closer to home, in your neighborhood?

It's harder to track down the positive news, but with your help, we can strive to maintain a balance of coverage that's a true reflection of the community.

One thing we do know, though, despite what newspaper readers might say, people are interested in reading bad news when they log on to our websites. Crime stories, controversial issues and nasty comments are the driving forces for that audience.

So bad news is good news for our website traffic, but that's a column for another time.

COMING UP

CPC public hearing

The Community Preservation Committee (CPC) is seeking input on how state community preservation grant monies should be spent, and is holding its annual public hearing on Monday, Dec. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Members of other town boards are invited to attend the public hearing and propose recreation, open space, affordable housing, and other potential projects. The CPC is considering a possible mid-January deadline for fiscal 2015 grant applications.

The CPA is a 10-year-old law that set the stage to increase the amount of historical preservation, open space, affordable housing, recreational facilities, and other community enrichment projects. There are currently 148 communities in Massachusetts that have adopted the CPA.

The CPC is required to set aside 10 percent of its revenues, excluding the state's matching funds, for recreation, open space and affordable housing in particular.The funds come from a 1.5 percent surcharge on Cohasset property taxes with some level of state match.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

Money matters taken care of Financial housekeeping articles passed

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Town money transfers were approved and a few "housekeeping" bylaws were enacted during the Saturday, Nov. 23 Town Meeting in the Cohasset High School gymnasium.

The meeting began around 9:15 a.m., after a quorum of 100 voters was reached. The biggest draw was to deal with the petitioned Article 1 on the warrant, concerning the transfer of $1.3 million in free cash and excess funds to town stabilization accounts. The biggest question on the article concerned $600,000 in excess revenue that has yet to be collected in the current fiscal year.

However, after discussion, a majority of voters were satisfied with the word of town officials, including the Board of Selectmen and Advisory Committee that voted unanimously to recommend the article's passage.

The advisory board changed their vote to a unanimous "yes" on Thursday night (Nov. 21), after initially voting against the article the previous week and after the Mariner went to press. Advisory chairman Peter Pescatore said the board simply needed more information and a second look at the article before agreeing on how to allocate the funds involved.

Advisory's chief concern was how the funds should be divided among the various town stabilization accounts.

"We would have liked it to go into different reserves, but at the end of the day, it's all in stabilization," Pescatore said.

Paul Schubert, School Committee chair, addressed Town Meeting as the petition's sponsor and explained why he felt the matter was important enough to call a STM.

"I would not have brought this forward if I did not think it was important," said Schubert. "I believe passing article one is in the best interest of the fiscal health of this town, and is also in keeping with the recommendations previously put forth by the financial team in our town."

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski explained that the town's financial management policies, which the 2012 Town Meeting voted to support, "demonstrate sound financial management of your resources," such as striving for a "triple A" bond rating, building up the town's stabilization accounts, and funding capital expenditures.

"We have many wants and desires in this town," said Milanoski, "but we have to live within our known revenues."

Finance Director Mary Gallagher explained that the $1.3 million in free cash was certified by the state Dept. of Revenue, and while the $600,000 excess funds have yet to be certified, the funds could still be appropriated. DOR will certify the money once the town has submitted the tax recap, said Gallagher.

"We are talking about estimated revenues," said Gallagher. "We are setting our tax rate now. The $600,000 is excess we can levy; the money will be coming in."

The "ayes" were dominant when it came time for a voice vote on Article 1.

While officials dubbed the remaining articles as innocuous, "housekeeping" matters, most of which passed unanimously, one article did not pass with a clean sweep.

Article 5

Article 5, proposing a bylaw change to allow licensing boards to withhold licenses and permits from those who fail to pay taxes, was debated by a few individuals that deemed the proposed policy too draconian.

Ronnie McMorris, Doane Street, said she was concerned that the bylaw "goes beyond people who fail to pay their taxes," adding that it seemed people who forget to pay library fees or parking tickets could be affected. "This seems to me a very heavy-handed approach when there are other remedies and administrative procedures for failing to pay fees... I think we want to be very careful before we head down this road."

Treasurer Collector Paula Linhares explained that the town actually adopted the policy in 2004, however a paragraph was left out of the text at the time, rendering the bylaw null and void. "The Attorney General did not accept it," said Linhares.

When it came to a voice vote, the "ayes" and "nays" were equally vocal, enough for Town Moderator Daniel Evans to ask for a hand count. The article narrowly passed with 63 for it and 43 opposed.

Other articles were taken care of quickly, including transfers for the sewer and water commissions to use retained earnings for operating costs. A bylaw proposed by the Zoning Board of Appeals also passed muster, allowing for elected board and commission members who miss one public hearing to still be able to vote on an issue, provided the member shows he or she is "up to speed" on the matter. Not having to send a commissioner to court every time one misses a hearing will save the town money in the long run, said ZBA chairman Woody Chittick.

SELECTMEN

Board tackles search during Saturday meeting

Chairman Koed sends email explaining absence

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset's town manager search has taken another turn, with the Board of Selectmen narrowing down the candidate finalists from five to three.

The selectmen convened at 11 a.m. on Saturday, just after the Special Town Meeting concluded in the Cohasset High School gymnasium, and voted to make a cut down from five to three. They then selected the top three candidates during their Tuesday, Nov. 26 meeting: Stephen Hartford, Grady Miller, and Christopher Senior (see related story).

However, on Saturday the selectmen were at a stalemate when it came to deciding whether to name the top three choices for the job. Chairman Fred Koed did not attend the board meeting or Special Town Meeting due to a last-minute conflict (see sidebar).

Two selectmen, vice-chair Diane Kennedy and Steve Gaumer, said they did not want to make such an important decision with Koed present. The other two members, Karen Quigley and Martha Gjesteby, urged that a decision should be made on the basis that an email from Koed to the rest of the board indicated that the show must go on without him.

Koed's email suggested that he had faith in the board to conduct these matters without him. "I have confidence that you will be able to get through the STM and the 7 articles and get through the selectmen's meeting without me," he wrote in an email to the board members, Town Counsel Paul DeRensis, and Town Moderator Daniel Evans.

Koed also made some general recommendations for how the remainder of the board should conduct their meeting, advising that they keep their points brief and keep in mind that "this is the most important job the selectmen have right now. This is going to take some leadership from all of you and a willingness to compromise a bit if needed."

The chairman said of the five finalists, "These are five great candidates; we just need to figure out the best fit for Cohasset."

Cohasset's town manager search launched in July, when the selectmen hired a consultant from the UMass Boston Collins Center. The Collins Center worked with the board to draft a town profile and town manager job description, then advertised the position and winnowed the applicants down to six finalists. After one dropped out of the running, five finalists were presented to the selectmen. All five interviewed with the board in Cohasset between Monday and Wednesday last week.

Will Cohasset's next town manager hail from Massachusetts, Rhode Island or New York? The selectmen interviewed the following candidates:

- William DiLibero, who was Town Administrator in Charlestown, Rhode Island from 2009 to 2012 and was previously Town Manager in Hopkinton, Rhode Island;
- Stephen Hartford, who was Town Manager of Westerly, Rhode Island from 2009 to 2013;
- Timothy King, who has been the Assistant Town Administrator in Wellfleet, Mass. since 2011 and previously worked as Town Manager of Ellsworth, Maine for 13 years; he was also Town Manager of Westerly, Rhode Island for two years and spent six years as Town Administrator of Auburn, Mass.;
- Grady Miller, Town Manager of Narragansett, Rhode Island from 2010 to 2012 who previously worked in Peoria, Arizona;
- Christopher Senior, who has been Deputy Town Supervisor for North Hempstead, New York since 2004.

"I like all of these candidates — it's tough," said Gjesteby, however adding that she is "ready to choose."

Each of the five candidates interviewed with the selectmen, met with town department heads, and took a tour of Cohasset last week. The four selectmen present at Saturday's meeting indicated that, based on comments from various department heads, there seems to be a consensus on who the top two candidates should be.

However, the board decided that three should be chosen in the event that one candidate opts out.

The other chief concern — selecting the top three contenders without the input of the board's chairman.

Kennedy said she was uncomfortable making the decision without Koed. Gaumer said that as a representative of the town, the chairman should be heard.

Kennedy read Koed's email sent to the board at 12:24 a.m. into the record, which explained that he had a conflict come up and was unable to attend either the Special Town Meeting or selectmen's meeting on Saturday. However, he indicated the board should proceed with the discussion on the candidates and suggested guidelines for the discussion

Quigley and Gjesteby both stated that the email gives the impression that the board should vote without Koed.

Quigley said she would agree with Kennedy and Gaumer to wait for Koed, "if he'd indicated any reluctance to proceed without him." She added, "He has confidence in us and he trusts us."

She recognized, however, that the board could "go back and forth for a long time" over the issue.

"We're at a stalemate," Quigley said.

The selectmen voted 3-1 to invite three candidates back for a second round of interviews, with Kennedy voting in the negative because she was "uncomfortable having this discussion go forward without the full board."

The board then voted 2-2 to select the top three candidates, with Quigley and Gjesteby in favor of discussing the candidates and Gaumer and Kennedy against.

choices and passed their selections to chairman Fred Koed. Koed then read each member's top three picks out loud.

Four selectmen favored Hartford, Miller and Senior, while one wanted Miller, Senior and King.

Selectmen vice-chair Diane Kennedy said she was proud of the board for the near unanimity, adding that the choices "are reflective of where the staff was leaning. There's a lot of universality in these three candidates."

Selectman Martha Gjesteby said it was a tough decision. "I liked all five."

Selectman Karen Quigley agreed. "I felt all five candidates were qualified to be town manager. The input from town employees was very helpful in that aspect. For myself what weighed heavily was the temperament and personality as a fit for Cohasset."

Not everyone is happy about the selectmen's choices — or the town manger search itself.

Edward Goff, Ledgewood Drive, said during the meeting's public comment portion that he was "very disappointed in the candidates proposed," adding that he thought the board should keep the current acting town manager onboard.

"I think as a town we could do better, and as a citizen I deserve better," said Goff. "We have a man who's been doing the job... I don't see anybody who's going to come in on a white horse and make things any better than they are; they can only make them worse. I'm so opposed to this entire process."

Goff said he felt the town should hire "homegrown" individuals who live in town. Milanoski, he said, "has done a great job. If it's a personality issue, get over it."

Advisory Committee chairman Peter Pescatore said that he feels Milanoski should have at least been in the final running for the position. While noting that the candidates "are all very credible," Pescatore said in a phone call last week, "I think it's a miscarriage of justice that Mike isn't included in the interview process. He's done an outstanding job for the job. It's a bad precedent that he wasn't included in the interview."

When asked by selectman Steve Gaumer why Milanoski was not among the finalists, Kobayashi said that he could not disclose that information.

Milanoski said in a Nov. 13 statement that he was disappointed to not be selected as a final candidate adding that, however, "I respect the process the Board of Selectmen voted as the elected body of the Town of Cohasset to establish the criteria they were looking for as their Town Manager. The Collins Center selected the Board of Selectmen's candidates accordingly. The record compiled by my dedicated and skilled team of department heads is one of which I will always be proud."

The selectmen also discussed the issue of conducting further background checks for each final candidate. The Collins Center conducted background checks as part of the search process; however the selectmen are not privy to the confidential information compiled. Gaumer said that since the board is paying the center, they should be able to see something.

Koed cautioned that any information the board receives on the candidates becomes public, which could trip confidentiality and legal issues. The selectmen voted to authorize Koed to confer with Town Counsel on the matter.

Meet the candidates

- Stephen Hartford was Town Manager of Westerly, Rhode Island from 2009 to 2013. Prior to that, he worked as Town Solicitor for nine years. He has a B.A. from Fairfield University and a J.D. from the Thomas Cooley Law School in Lansing, Michigan.
- Grady Miller, Town Manager of Narragansett, Rhode Island from 2010 to 2012, previously worked for 20 years in Peoria, Arizona as the assistant to the city manager from 1990 to 2002, and later as the director of communications and public affairs until 2009, when he became deputy director of community services. He has a B.A. from San Diego University and a M.P.A. from Arizona State University.
- Christopher Senior has been Deputy Town Supervisor for North Hempstead, New York since 2004. He holds a B.S. in Journalism and a B.A. in Economics from Boston University and a J.D. from Hofstra University.

Selectmen chair explains STM absence

Selectmen Chairman Fred Koed was absent from the Saturday, Nov. 23 Special Town Meeting and the selectmen meeting that followed that day, stating that a conflict had arisen and he was unable to attend either meeting, and unavailable for communication apart from text messaging, if that.

When asked Tuesday about the conflict, Koed would not confirm or deny reports that he had been serving during the mayoral recount in Lawrence on Saturday.

"I think the email speaks for itself," said Koed. "I had a bunch of stuff going on that day... It was a major conflict. It was a tough decision for me, but life isn't always simple."

Koed, who is a Democratic State Committeeman, said that he has worked on elections in the past. "In 2000 I was in Florida for Al Gore doing the recount."

The selectmen chairman, who has served on the board for 14 years, also stated that he did not know this conflict would arise when the board last convened on Wednesday, Nov. 20.

"I didn't have the conflict; that's the nature of personal stuff that comes at you. It's just the way things happened," he said. "My feeling is, I've got an excellent attendance record, but obviously you can't make every meeting."

And while he did state that hiring a town manager is the most important job the board has right now, Koed said that he felt the decision to whittle the candidate list down from five to three could have been made without him.

"I don't think my absence should hold up the work of the board," he said. "I felt as long as they picked three, I'd have somebody I preferred. I could have lived with the other two. I hoped they'd come to a consensus.

"It's an important decision, and I appreciate that they wanted to wait for me," Koed added. "But sometimes big decisions are made without you."

FROM BOTSWANA, WITH LOVE:

The story of Fila Konege

By Matthew MacCormack
Special to the Mariner

A vibrant, white smile persists, stretching across his face, meeting at its ends a pair of dimples. Wispy black hairs sprout from above his upper lip, circling down into a scruffy goatee that clings to the very tip of his dark brown chin. Brown eyes give off a tender vibe. His wiry arms dangle by his sides, capped off with calloused, weathered hands that jingle a keychain in the foggy fall afternoon.

Fila Konege sits on the silver, dew-glossed benches at Milliken Field with a smile on his face, clad in his navy blue Cohasset Soccer zip-up, as youth players giggle and frolic before a late afternoon practice. Every time he opens his mouth, his hands come alive, animating and acting out every word that rolls off his tongue. Reserved, yet insightful when called upon, he seems to be truly invested in every conversation, working hard to interpret and understand what I say.

After all, it has only been a little more than a year since Fila left his native Kumakwane, Botswana and emigrated to the United States of America. The language barrier still exists, its foundation not as strong as it once was. He admits that he still has trouble understanding fast speaking high school students such as myself, and often has to support his words with hand motions and such to articulate his message. But Fila is not at all afraid or embarrassed; he understands and accepts the difficulties of adapting to a new country. "I am strong," he says, "because I know I am going to have challenges...some of the players may not understand me, but you have to focus."

Fila Konege has been playing and coaching soccer for more than 20 years in his native Botswana. After emigrating to Cohasset and marrying Peace Corps member Mary Duggan, he has joined the coaching staff of the Skipper team that made it all the way to the State Championship game this season. Skippers mission to win Super Bowl

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

Cohasset football coach Peter Afanasiw had a quick message after his team's 40-20 Div. 6 State Semifinal win over Saint Clement.

"We are going to Gillette Stadium," said Afanasiw. "We are not going to Gillette just to show up. We are on a mission and you are the team that can do it."

The Skippers will face Littleton at Gillette Stadium Dec. 7 at 9 a.m.

Littleton defeated Turner's Falls, 52-26 in the Central/Western Mass playoff game. Most recently, Littleton was the Div. 3 runner-up in 2008 when they lost 24-21 to Putnam.

Cohasset had one brief stop before attempting to complete their mission on their first trip to the Super Bowl. The annual Thanksgiving Day game with Hull (results were unavailable at press time. Get the latest score by following @scifisportsguy or @cohassetsports on Twitter.

"We will try to roll out a team and stay healthy," said Afanasiw about his plans for the Hull game. "We need to win one more game to set a school record. No Cohasset team has won 11 games in a season before. We will talk about how we will play people as a staff."

With the new playoff format, the Skippers hosted Hull Sept. 27 in a 42-12 victory.

Still, Afanasiw knows anything can happen on the peninsula where Hull plays.

Several responses ran in last week's Cohasset Mariner, bur due to time and space, some were unable to appear in that edition.

Today we bring the continuation of the feature, knowing that the team will be playing Littleton in the Div. 6 Super Bowl, Dec. 7 at 9 a.m.

Q: What is your favorite aspect of playing football:

A: The bond that you gain throughout the season with your teammates.

Q. How does it feel to go so far in the playoffs?

A: Playing deep into the playoffs is amazing. We have been playing together since freshman year and all our work is coming together.

Q: Who inspires you the most when it comes to football, and why?

A: My inspiration just comes from my teammates. All of us working together picking each other up if we fall. It's amazing the bond that we have with each other.

Q: Has football made a difference in school?

A: Football has made going to school in the morning far more enjoyable. Every day I know I have something to work for outside of school. All

WILL WASSERSUG

Hope everyone had a great Thanksgiving and the Skippers were victorious over Hull.

You don't see results from that game in this week's Cohasset Mariner due to the nature of the holiday and a printing schedule that moved everything ahead a day, meaning that this particular newspaper is build, written and designed on Wednesday, rather than our usual Thursday prep day, but still comes out on Friday, meaning the Thanksgiving football game will be covered next week, along with previews of the Super Bowl against Littleton.

Yes, I am already doing some homework to help you get set for the Super Bowl.

For Thanksgiving coverage online, check out wickedlocal.com/Cohasset or follow @cohassetsports and @scifisportsguy on Twitter.

For the record, this has nothing to do with the rest of mass media forsaking Thanksgiving for starting the Christmas season in October, or Black Friday (I will not shop on Thanksgiving and probably not on Friday either).

I was personally glad to see that the Wal-Mart in Plymouth was closed Thursday. I can't think of a bigger slap in the face to Thanksgiving, the Pilgrims and families than opening in the home of Thanksgiving.

Congratulations to the Seniors for their 12-8 Powderpuff victory over the Juniors on Tuesday night.

Must have been an interesting game between the cold and the rain and wind. Still, I'm sure everyone had a good time.

I personally am a supporter of these games. As a parent of a 12-year old daughter Katy, I know that I'll be the biggest fan if she decides to play in our game in Marshfield.

Q: What is your favorite aspect of playing football:

A: My favorite aspect of football I would have to say is being able to practice with all my peers then being able to also play almost every Friday under the lights with them. It truly feels like I am apart of a family and theses are going to be some of my best memories from high school.

Q. How does it feel to go so far in the playoffs?

A: Going so deep in to the playoffs I would say is definitely a new experience and playing in each game I know my team can only strive forward and do better each.

Q: Who inspires you the most when it comes to football, and why?

A: My parents I would say inspired the most when it comes to playing football. The reason I say that is because they have been behind me since day one and have been bettering me and pushing me constantly cause they see potential in me I sometimes don't.

Q: Has football made a difference in school?

A: I would definitely say that school has made a difference in football. I say this because it shows me how independent I need to be in life to succeed. Also it helps me keep my grades up because I must do well or I won't be able to play.

Chris Lund, DL

Q: What is your favorite aspect of playing football?

A: My favorite aspect of football is the environment on and off the field on a Friday night. Also having the chance to play under the lights in front of family and friends.

Q. How does it feel to go so far in the playoffs?

A: It is an incredible feeling to go deep into the playoffs,especially knowing it has never been done before.

Q: Who inspires you the most when it comes to football, and why?

A: Throughout my high-school career my coaches and teammates have been the biggest inspiration. Their energy and passion is seen at ever practice and is always motivational.

Q: Has football made a difference in school?

A: Football has made a difference in school because each day it is something to look forward to, making the week fly by.

Jack O'Brien, DT

Q: What is your favorite aspect of playing football?

A: My favorite aspect of football is the camaraderie that develops from spending countless hours working-out, practicing and playing with your friends.

Q. How does it feel to go so far in the playoffs?

A: Its an amazing feeling to go so deep in the playoffs especially because no Cohasset team has ever made it this far.

Q: Who inspires you the most when it comes to football, and why?

A: My teammates inspire me most when it comes to football because we all work so hard to achieve a common goal.

Q: Has football made a difference in school?

A: Football has definitely made a difference in school because a 2 hour practice every day forces me to get organized.

call from the bearded Botswanan. There is something about his game day attire that exudes confidence; from his Adidas cleats and black mid-calf socks, all the way up to his gold-rimmed aviators and Boston Red Sox cap that sits perched, ever so slightly askew, on the top of his buzz cut. Young faces stare up at him, knowing that a powerful soccer mind stands before them. It's true; Fila has had a ball at his feet for as long as he can remember; "[Soccer] is in my blood, I love playing" he proudly states.

His love for the beautiful game was certainly a product of his soccer-crazed homeland, where the ball and net hold an absolutist rule. "Everything was fun," Fila says of his childhood, "I was always playing soccer." He recollects his time as the coach of a team he started for the youth in his community; the trouble of finding a sponsor and addressing logistics, but also the incredible times he had watching young minds develop. "I love seeing kids grow", he says.

And grow was exactly what Fila himself wanted to do. After coaching and playing in Kumakwane for the first 20 or so years of his life, Fila was forever changed when a few Americans with the Peace Corps showed up in his village.

From there, the story seems to plop right out from the weathered pages of a fairy tale. Fila met Mary Duggan, the woman who would forever change his life. It couldn't be more storybook, actually; a woman goes to a foreign land, meets a man, and the two fall in love. And that is just what happened. "We want to build our new life [in America], have kids, you know?" says a rosy cheeked, beaming Fila. Oh yeah, and as Fila courageously announced to the whole soccer team during the recent tournament run, he and Mary are expecting!

When Mary's Peace Corps tour was up, the pair decided to come back to the United States to get married. And, upon arrival in the home of the free, the first thing Fila found was a soccer field, the great green equalizer where one common language is spoken; the language of the beautiful game. It just so happened that Mary's brother, John Duggan, was the JV coach at Cohasset. Fila attended a few practices and games late last season, before joining the staff full time in 2013.

Fila's background story, soccer career, and love life make him quite the interesting figure as it is, but there is more to this man than a family and a soccer ball. He takes classes at Massasoit, a local community college: trying his best to not only assimilate into American culture, but also earn his GED. In addition, he works at Cardinal Cushing, a center for children and teens who struggle with mental and physical disabilities; "I love caring for people. That's who I am. I want to lift someone up who is struggling."

And the people who Fila cares for the most, his family members, are always on his mind. He plans to briefly go back to Africa in the next year to visit his relatives, and check in on those he grew up with. Although he recognizes that he is a changed man after his time in the U.S, he is not worried about reconnecting; "Yeah, it will be different...but I am still me!" he says. Although Fila has found his new home in America, he still considers himself "Botswana, through and through", and gets giddy just at the thought of visiting his homeland in the future.

There is also a humorous flair about Fila that makes one smile just in his presence. When asked about his favorite part of the United States, Fila took the obvious answer; go karts (he insisted we race before the year is over). After snapping two pictures of him for this article, I asked Fila which one he liked better. "It does not matter man, I look good all the time" he giggled.

So let's recap; we have a Botswana-born, rehab center-employed, smile-glued-to-the-face kinda guy who loves only two things more than soccer; his wife and family. He loved watching the children in Kumakwane, and the student-athletes of CHS, grow and master the game of soccer. In love with caring for others, he also helps puts everything he has into his work at Cardinal Cushing. And of course, he has his beloved wife, and a child on the way that will undoubtedly be loved. It seems we have a trend here; everything Fila does, he does so with love.

Funny. Confident. Brave. Smart. Loving.

Not a bad formula for making it in America.

Matthew MacCormack is a senior at CHS and a regular contributor to the Cohasset Mariner.

Yes, I'm already expecting a good game for that year because as a coach in the Marshfield NFL Flag Football program, she was one of the better snappers in the league, and another young lady on the squad was one of the best overall athletes I've seen.

Also, congratulations to the Freshman-Sophomore football team for beating Hull in their last game of the season.

Did anyone watch the entire Patriots game on Sunday night.

I did, kind of, switching back and forth between Family Guy and American Dad in the early part of the game.

If you haven't seen Sunday's Family Guy, watch it, and make sure to have the tissue ready to wipe your eyes. It was the saddest thing I have ever seen. Seriously, Family Guy almost made me cry.

I also loved following Twitter Sunday night during the Patriots game against Denver – yes, the one where the Patriots fell behind 24-0 by halftime and ended up making the biggest comeback in team history, winning 34-31 in overtime.

It may have also been the time to trade in any Stevan Ridley jerseys – Captain Fumble may not see the ball again. Not sure if he's the next Lawrence Maroney, simply because Ridley runs straight and hard – no dancing in the backfield – but the fumbles are killers.

Here are a few comments from the game from various sources.

@BHallESPN – Maybe it would help if the crowd yelled "ball!" every time Manning throws it, like in high school games.

@Rwsports – I'm done with this game

@scifisportsguy – American Dad on Fox

@blerch27 – 3 fumbles and clock malfunctions make for an entertaining live chat session. Join in here...

@jimrome – If ever there were a time to throw the lights, Roger Goodell, it's right now.

@AdamSchefter – If Shannon Sharpe were commenting on this, he'd call for the National Guard because the Broncos are killing the Patriots.

@Patriots – Patriots take their first lead of the game, up 28-24 with 13:13 to go in the game. #comeback #patriotsnation

@scifisportsguy – TOUCHDOWN Edelman!!! Pats lead. Freakin sweet! Glad I didn't give up in this one!!

@Patriots @GilletteStadium is ROCKING right now. Thanks to all the amazing fans sticking it out in the freezing cold! #PatriotsNation

Note – By this time I was comfy and warm with a blanket on my easy chair, not freezing.

I personally felt it was the best way to watch a game like this, considering I was outside for about 10 minutes taking in groceries and was a popsicle from that.

@Rwsports What an odd game (Guess he stuck it out too.) Actually that's Wicked Local's Ryan Wood, a true fan. I wasn't believing him when he said he was out.

@flynn985 - Tails never fails.

@blerch27 – I think Belichick just broke Twitter with the decision to give Denver the ball in OT...

@Rwsports – Why give Manning the ball? Don't care how windy it is. (I agreed with this premise, until I realized that it took away the easy field goal option – yes I know Pats could still get the ball after a Denver FG, but also made it that Denver needed a touchdown.)

@RefereeJimD – It's not about the officials deciding games, it's about making the correct call, and that was pass interference!

@scifisportsguy – (That's me by the way) As a fan Patriots have to be the most infuriating team to watch. At least late game defense.

@jimrome – Hoodie looking awfully smart taking the wind.

@pgarceau – Never been so happy to be proved wrong "Best case scenario it's a tie." I'd be wrong 100 out of 100 times there.

@ShaneVicrorino - #Patriots #Patriots #Patriots

@ElizabethBanks – I interrupt my relentless Catching Fire tweets to say .... Paaatttttsss! #hauntingPeyton

@elizadushku (emojis) happy face, clapping hands, zzzz #PatsNation

That about said it all.

Glad I stuck it out, even though I'm pretty exhausted today.

Oh well. It was worth it, especially when they mentioned my old friend Mike Anderson, a former US Marine and Denver Bronco who holds the Broncos single game rushing record

Mewis heading home

Local star traded to Boston

The Boston Breakers acquired midfielder Kristie Mewis from Seattle Reign FC Monday in exchange for forward Sydney Leroux. In addition, Boston also received goalkeeper Michelle Betos as well as Seattle's first-round and second-round picks in the 2015 NWSL College Draft.

"I have been trying to get Kristie in a Breakers jersey since January," Breakers general manager Lee Billiard said. "It has taken the better part of a year, but we have finally been able to bring Kristie back home. She is a fantastic player who has proven herself at the international level, and as a homegrown talent, will be able to connect with our fan base."

Mewis, a native of Hanson, Mass. and three-time NSCAA All-American at Boston College, played 20 games in 2013 for FC Kansas City and scored one goal for the Blues.

The 22-year-old was the No. 3 overall pick in the 2013 NWSL College Draft and this year earned her first cap (Feb. 9 vs. Scotland) and scored her first goal (June 15 vs. Korea Republic) with the U.S. Women's National Team.

Leroux led the Breakers and finished second in the league in scoring in 2013 with 11 goals. The 23-year-old, who had a team-best four game-winning goals, also tallied two assists in 19 games for the Breakers.

"While we are sad to see Sydney leave, we are happy we could help her move closer to her family," Billiard said. "After speaking with Sydney, it was clear she needed to be closer to home. It was tough for me to do, but I'm confident we got the best we could out of the trade. I want to thank Sydney for everything she did for us as a Boston Breaker and wish her the best in Seattle."

Leroux earned NWSL Best XI First Team honors and was twice named NWSL Player of the Week in 2013. A 2012 Olympic gold medalist with the U.S. Women's National Team, Leroux scored 10 goals for the U.S. in 2013, upping her international total to 24 goals. She has won 42 caps for the U.S. since making her debut in early 2011.

"I would like to thank the Boston Breakers organization, my teammates, and the fans for a wonderful experience last year," Leroux said. "I truly enjoyed my time in Boston and have many great memories, but I had a strong desire to be closer to my family in the Pacific Northwest. While I am sad to leave the Breakers, I appreciate their accommodating of my request and wish everyone well."

Mewis has 10 caps, one goal, and two assists for the U.S. She was a mainstay on U.S. youth national teams, having captained the U-17 team that finished second in the 2008 FIFA U-17 World Cup. She won the bronze ball at the tournament. Mewis also played in the 2010 FIFA U-20 World Cup in Germany, alongside her younger sister, Samantha, who currently plays for UCLA.

Mewis made her professional soccer debut in January 2013, playing for Canberra United in the Westfield W-League in Australia. She scored two goals in two games for Canberra.

Betos made seven starts for Seattle in 2013. The 25-year-old makes her return to Boston after she played for Boston Aztec Breakers Reserves in 2011, helping to lead the team to the WPSL Final Four.

Betos most recently played in the UEFA Women's Champions League with Breakers Joanna Lohman and Lianne Sanderson for Cypriot champions Apollon Limassol. A star at the University of Georgia, Betos finished her college career with 26 shutouts, which ranks her third all-time at the school.

"Michelle is another player who has ties to Boston and a player who just spent a full season training with one of the best female goalkeepers in the world - Hope Solo," Billiard said. "Michelle will add more quality to the roster."

The acquisition of Mewis and Betos adds to a busy offseason for the Breakers, which also have acquired forward Courtney Jones from FC Kansas City and Canada international midfielder Kaylyn Kyle in an earlier trade with Seattle. The Breakers have traded away Canadian defender Carmelina Moscato and midfielder Mariah Nogueira (both to Seattle in separate transactions), and the rights to defender Casey Short (to Chicago).

MISSION

Crazy winds, a grass field and being the away team make it tough to play there.

Cohasset lost 20-7 at Hull in 2009, the last time they made the playoffs.

This year is special, and will always be.

"We had not won a playoff game until this year. We were 0-4," Afanasiw said.

Cohasset took care of that mission by winning their four Div. 6 playoff games. That included defeating Millis-Hopedale to win the Div. 6 South Sectional.

The Skippers appeared to have an easy time on Friday night as far as their mission plans went in getting to Gillette Stadium. They were up 27-6 in the third period and had control of the game with their defense and ground game.

Saint Clement however, nearly slowed that idea down as they came back with a Deron Hines 3-yard touchdown run and a Michael Sullivan 37-yard touchdown pass to Khanell Bruce to close to seven, 27-20.

The Anchormen had a chance to possibly to tie or take the lead as they had the ball on Cohasset 10 with a fourth-and-four situation. They were turned away by linebacker Matt Froio, who picked off a slant pass at his five and took the ball all the way back to the Saint Clement 12. Ryan Gillis, who ran for 94 yards on 16 carries scored on the next play. It was the first of two touchdowns for Gillis in the span of 75 seconds.

His other touchdown came after a Nick Hall diving interception at the Saint Clement 18. Gillis scored three plays later after the Hall interception a 6-yard run to give the Skippers a 40-20 lead.

"There has no team that has won a Super Bowl in our town before," said Froio. "We need one more win. It is an unbelievable feeling."

"I was told to stay in the middle to watch the slant (on the fourth down play). They tried it earlier and it worked real well. No. 5 (Bruce) is a great receiver and I sat in the middle and waited for it to come to me."

Cohasset's Cole Kissick ran for an astonishing 240 yards and three touchdowns in the Skippers win 40-20 win over St. Clement on Friday night. In this photo he leaps over Joe Fawkes in the Div. 6 South Sectional Championship game. STAFF PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN

"The thing was," said Afanasiw. "we did not take our foot off the pedal, they just started making plays. They have some players that can make some plays. I was thinking that it was the Blue Hills game all over again, you got to be kidding me when they got to within seven."

Cohasset never trailed in the game and that was because of the running of Cole Kissick and a tough defense and special teams.

Kissick provided the yardage on the ground with his abilty to find the openings that his line created and allowed him to get to the outside.

The junior running back finished the game with 29 carries for 240 yards and three touchdowns. Kissick had 20 carries and 199 yards in the first half and scored two of his touchdowns.

"There were a lot of plays that were designed to get me to the outside," said Kissick "I could not have done any of it without our linemen. Everything was working very well and our receivers were doing a great job outside, it was all working for us."

"I knew that it was windy tonight. They have outstanding defensive backs. I knew that we would not be throwing the ball that much and we would be running. Everything worked out well for us."

Kissick at one point in the third period had as many carries, 23, which was as many plays that Saint Clement had run.

"Cole was phenomenal," said Afanasiw. "I have to give my offensive line a considerable amount of credit, they created some tremendous holes for him all night. They have done a great job all year long. "

"Cole is so quick and he knows how to run. He is a great football player and he might be even a better lacrosse player I understand. I will take him all day."

The Skippers defense stopped Saint Clement on downs at their 33 on the Anchormen's first possession of the game.

The special teams for Cohasset recovered two fumbles on squib kickoffs that led to touchdowns both times.

GIMME SHELTER

Prim, who is pictured here, has such a fabulous collection of personality traits to share with an equally wonderful person or family. COURTESY PHOTO

Prim is Miss Personality!

PAULA J. FATERSIK

Prim is the kind of cat who wants to be with you, greet you and follow you around. In her room here, she enjoys being perched up on the cat tree or wherever else she can get close to you.

November's fallen leaves circling in a frenzied dance....two glowing green eyes darting and capturing the dip and swirl from a warm and sunny window. Thankful and knowing eyes that will smile at you, awaiting your gentle touch, and a soft furry head that will nudge you for love. This could be one enchanting scene, in one perfect home, for one beautiful cat, Prim.

What a fabulous picture of a safe and happy life for the lovey and lovely Prim. But let me tell you, her road to rescue, along with her housemate, was harrowing and not for the faint of heart. Sadly, some tough decisions had to be made. We know that Prim and Peeta were loved, as is evident by their awesome personalities and gentle natures, but sudden change occurred in their lives and Hull Seaside Animal Rescue became their new residence.

Imagine a night spent outside, alone in a soft-sided pet carrier, hanging from the doorknob of a pet store. Being abandoned is always tragic for animals, but it seems that their owner felt that this was the only option and that help could be found for these wonderful cats. Of course, a pet store cannot keep any animal that is dropped off and after many people became involved, Prim and Peeta, true survivors, were brought to Hull Seaside Animal Rescue and found safety, love and shelter from the cold.

Losing your owners is heartbreaking. Finding yourself in a situation so frightening, not knowing what is happening or why, is beyond confusing. But we look for the silver lining. Moving to a new home where you don't have to worry anymore, well, isn't that the perfect ending? Yes! So we want to make it happen once again. Peeta has just found his new home, and it is time for Prim to feel loved, wanted and cared for again.

Prim has such a fabulous collection of personality traits to share with an equally wonderful person or family. She is the kind of cat who wants to be with you, greet you and follow you around. In her room here, she enjoys being perched up on the cat tree or wherever else she can get close to you. Affection and love? She will give so much and adores gentle petting and having you within her sight. Prim is a people cat and will be very social with her owner and others. Did we mention play? Oh yes, at just about 2-1/2 years old, she wants to be interactive with you. Given the room to chase and tumble with toys and strings, she will be happily bouncing around and getting herself some fun exercise.

Her face is beautiful, eyes, just stunning, soft, silky, dilute calico shaded fur so plush and long white whiskers, as fresh as glittering snow, complete this pretty package. As winter approaches, wouldn't it be just wonderful for Prim to watch the first flakes fall from the windows of her very special, welcoming and loving forever home? We think so. And when her perfect match appears at the shelter, her sweet and loving ways will be missed.

Please call Judy at 781-534-4902 for more information on precious Prim. She would love to spend the coming holidays in a safe and warm forever home so please visit Hull Seaside Animal Rescue soon. We are located at 50 L St. Open Hours are Monday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 and Saturdays from 2-3 p.m. You can see more of our wonderful adult cats and kittens who are waiting for their best match and home byvisiting www.HSAR.org and clicking on Available Pets.

On Petfinder.com you will see more photos and information. Just enter our zip code, 02045. Also, please visit our Facebook page for updates and information about our special cats and events.

Just a reminder that we will be at the Hull Holiday Showcase at the Nantasket Beach Resort at 45 Hull Shore Dr. on Saturday, Nov. 30 from 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. Admission and parking are free and we will be raffling off fantastic cat and dog baskets and have many items and goodies for sale to help support our shelter. Kittendale's Calendars, which are selling fast and furious online at www.kittendales.com, will also be available so please set aside some time and join HSAR and all of the merchants and artisans who put together this great event.

Thank you to all of our volunteers who will be manning the booth at the Showcase and to all of the people who make it to the shelter every week to give their time, effort and love to the cats and kittens who call HSAR home as they await their special connection with a forever family. If you are interested in joining this hard working group of animal lovers, please call Sue at 617-733-2986 for information about the tasks and responsibilities of Hull Seaside volunteers.

Holly Hill Farm and Giving Tuesday

The Friends of Holly Hill Farm is participating in #Giving Tuesday — a day of national philanthropy following "Black Friday" and "Cyber Monday." Now there is a new day to note on the calendar for this holiday season — "Giving Tuesday" — a day to give back.

The Friends is raising money to support the Farm Pantry Garden Program. The Farm Pantry Garden was started in 2012 by Education Director Jon Belber as a way of engaging teens to learn about sustainable agriculture by growing organic produce to be donated to local food pantries. This weeklong summer program is offered as a free community service opportunity. A fence is needed to surround the 60 x 40 foot garden area as well as funding for the program. The goal is to raise $5,000.

Please visit the farm website any time on Tuesday, Dec. 3 to donate by using your credit card or PayPal account. In addition to cash donations, the public is encouraged to participate in the Farm Pantry Garden on Tuesday from 10 a.m. to noon to help add a winter mulch of compost to improve soil fertility in 2014.

Contact Education Director Jon Belber at 781-383-6565 or jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com for more information.

Toys for Tots drive in Cohasset

The Cohasset Police Department has joined with the Marine Corps for the annual Toys for Tots campaign. New toys and games can be dropped off at the Cohasset Police Headquarters, on Elm Street, 24 hours a day, and seven days a week though Dec. 24. Toys and games should not be wrapped. For more information, call the station at 781-383-1212.

The mission of the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Program is to collect new, unwrapped toys and distribute those toys as Christmas gifts to needy children.

The Marine Toys for Tots Foundation enjoys one of the best programs to support ratios within the nonprofit world. More than 98 percent of monetary donations go to their mission of providing toys, books and other gifts to less fortunate children. The 2 percent, which is spent on support, principally covers fundraising expenses — not one donated dollar goes to pay for salaries or any other manpower costs. (Source: toysfortots.org)

OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families, often through the services of a funeral director.

John F. French

John F. French

COHASSET – John F. French, age 79, of Cohasset and Hull, passed away suddenly Nov. 20, 2013, after battling with Parkinson's Disease for over 25 years.

He was the beloved husband of Elaine H. (Kulturides); and loving father of Darlene A. French of Hull and Christine French-Finch of Hull; brother of Wayne French of Texas, and the late Dorothy French and Sharon French; brother-in-law of Peter Kulturides and Louis Kulturides; grandfather of James Finch of Hull and Nina Finch of Hull. Also survived by many nieces, nephews, and cousins.

Mr. French was a veteran of U.S. Army. He was a member of the Teamsters Union Local 25 and worked for Stop and Shop for 20 years.

A funeral was held from the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St. (across from St. Anthony Church), Cohasset, Tuesday, Nov. 26, 2013, at 9:30 a.m., followed by a funeral service at 10:30 a.m. in Nativity-Assumption of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church (Panagia), 811 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset.

Visiting hours were held Monday, Nov. 25, 2013, from 4-8 p.m. in McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset. Interment in High Street Cemetery, Hingham.

Donations to honor John may be made to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute at South Shore Hospital, 101 Columbian St., South Weymouth, MA 02190.

Cameron Baird

COHASSET – Cameron Muirhead Baird age 87, of Cohasset, formerly of Scituate, passed away on Nov. 23, 2013.

He was predeceased by his parents, Charles Campbell Baird and Marion (MacChlerie) Baird. He is survived by his loving wife of 62 years, Ann (Graham) Baird, daughters Heather Lashier, Laurie Ducey , and Carolyn Chamberlain, grandchildren Garrett Baird, Colin Lashier, Eric Ducey, Gregg Ducey, Lindsay Simpson, and Cam Chamberlain, great-grandchildren, Maguire Lashier and Graham Lashier.

Cameron was born Feb. 4, 1926, in Quincy. He is a graduate of Thayer Academy, received his Bachelor's degree from Norwich University and his Master's degree in Chemistry from Middlebury College. He served with the US Navy during WW II and was stationed in the Pacific aboard the destroyer, USS Harwood.

He was a chemist at Baird and McGuire, Inc. in Holbrook, president of the company until his retirement in 1993. He was then employed by Drexel Chemical Co. in Memphis, TN until 1999. Cameron served on the Board of Governors for Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association (CSMA) of New York, NY. He was a corporator for the Randolph Savings Bank in Randolph and on the Board of the South Scituate Savings Bank in Norwell. After retirement, Cameron volunteered as a driver for the handicapped in Scituate and after moving from Scituate, where he resided for 51 years, he drove for FISH in Cohasset. He was a member at St. Francis X Cabrini church in Scituate and later Saint Anthony in Cohasset. Cameron was active in the Satuit Boat Club, where he served on the race committee and was past Commodore. He and Ann traveled to Scotland, where they would visit his family home in Bridge of Allan, Stirlingshire.

A Memorial Mass was celebrated on Wednesday, Nov. 27, 2013 at 10 a.m. in St. Anthony Church, Cohasset. Visiting hours was on Tuesday, Nov. 26, from 4 - 7 p.m. at McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St. (across from St. Anthony Church), Cohasset.

In lieu of flowers, donations to honor Cameron may be made to the Beacon Hospice, Inc., Resnik Rd. Ste. 3, Plymouth, MA. 02360.

Cohasset dancers perform in 'The Nutcracker'

Dancers at the International Ballet Academy (IBA) of Norwell have been rehearsing for their upcoming performances of The Nutcracker. Performances will be Saturday, Dec. 7th at 6 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 8th at 2 p.m. at Abigail Adams Middle School, 89 Middle Street in Weymouth. Tickets are priced at $25 to $30. Performances will also be held at the New England Movement Arts Black Box Theatre, 123 Muller Road in Burlington, Mass., on Saturday, Dec. 21st at 6 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 22nd at 2 p.m. Tickets for the Black Box Theater are priced at $25. Tickets for all shows can be purchased online at: ibanorwell.org. Girls and boys from all over the South Shore, including Braintree, Weymouth, Norwell, Scituate, Marshfield, Cohasset, Hingham, as well as Boston have been rehearsing with their professional counterparts readying for the performances. IBA students have the opportunity to perform on stage with free-lance and semi-professional dancers from Cohasset, Scituate, Boston, and New Hampshire. All of the dancers are under the artistic direction of Melinda Marculetiu and Cosmin Marculetiu.

Performances will be Saturday, Dec. 7th at 6 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 8th at 2 p.m. at Abigail Adams Middle School, 89 Middle Street in Weymouth. Tickets are priced at $25 to $30.

Dancers from Cohasset include Ainsley Allen, Olivia Garelick, Bella Kristal, and Grace Vainisi. This year Grace dances the part of Clara in several of the Academy's performances.

The International Ballet Academy of Norwell is a non-profit 501(c)(3) organization that is dedicated to bringing increased awareness and appreciation for dance, ballet in particular, to our South Shore Community.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF DEC. 9, 2013

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your Arian penchant for impatience shows, as you consider passing a problem-prone project on to someone else. Best advice: Stay with it and work out those snarls yourself.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Even patient Bovines can be frustrated when carefully made plans go awry. But crank up that "stick-to-it-ivity" you do so well, and you'll soon find that your schedule is back in sync.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your aspect favors using more resourceful means in dealing with a workplace situation. Some discreet checking around could help shed light on the root cause of the problem.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You show an unusually strong streak of stubbornness in rejecting suggestions from friends and/or family members early in the week. But you become more receptive by the week's end.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat might find a gentler approach more effective when dealing with those who resist needed changes. Remember, the word "persuasion" starts with the sound "purr."

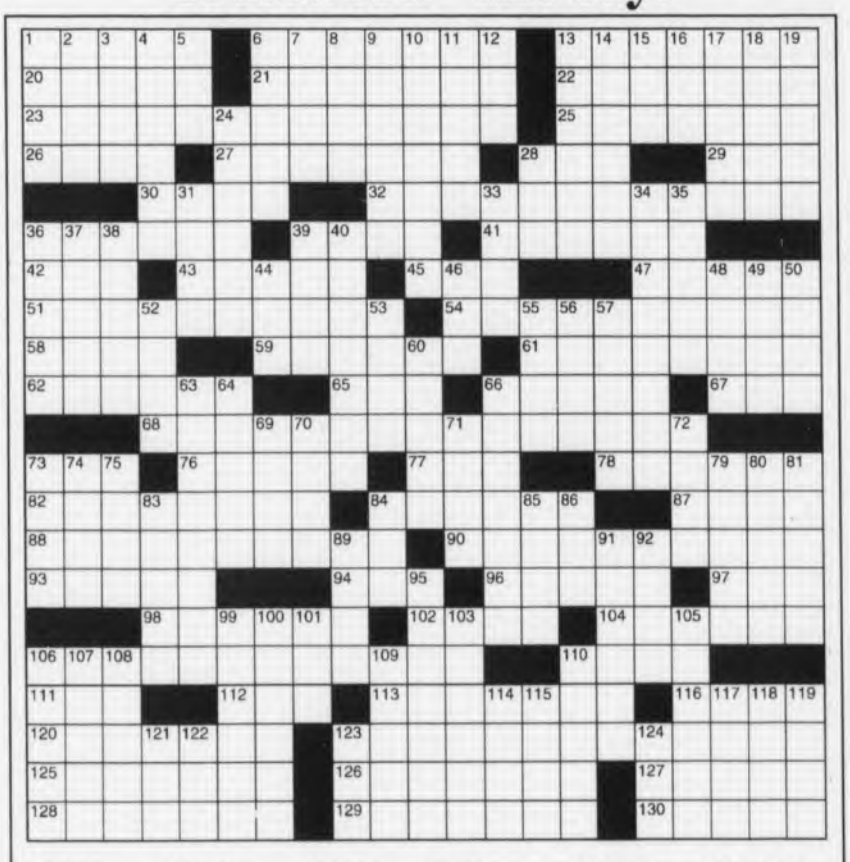
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A disappointing experience with someone you felt you could trust can be painful. But there just might be more to this situation than you're aware of. Press for an explanation.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Changing your views about something you believe in isn't easy. But you might reconsider as the facts come in. Keep your mind open, even if you're uneasy about what you might learn.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to do some serious shifting of gears to get your project back on track. But cheer up. Your hard work starts to produce some positive results by the week's end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unsettling mood at the start of the week soon lifts and gives way to a more positive attitude as you find fun and friendship beginning to dominate your aspect.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A delay in firming up holiday plans could work to your advantage. Use this time to scout out possibilities that might be more in line with what those close to you would prefer.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some people might question some of the new friends you've welcomed into your life. But your ability to see beyond the obvious helps you recognize how special they are.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Financial matters can be especially tricky this week. It's best to follow a conservative investment path for now, and wait for a more fortuitous time to take a bolder approach.

(c) 2013 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your warmth, your humor and your genuine concern for others make you someone people love to keep close to their lives.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles?

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

'TIS THE SEASON

Week of holiday fun

Village Fair on Sat., Village Stroll next Thurs.

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

When the holiday season comes around, Cohasset pulls out all the stops.

Following last week's post-Thanksgiving Jingle Bell Walk around the harbor and the common, the town is gearing up for more festivities leading up to Christmas.

This Saturday, Dec. 7, is the annual Village Fair on the common, sponsored by four of Cohasset's churches and the Appalachia Service Project, bringing the town a little yuletide cheer. The festivities, including a holiday marketplace, crafts, baked goods and raffles, are from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Next Thursday, Dec. 14, is the annual Holiday Stroll from 12 to 4 p.m. at Cohasset businesses along Route 3A and 4 to 7 p.m. in the village. More than a simple stroll around town, the Chamber of Commerce event features promotions from local merchants, arts and crafts, face painting, carillon concert, caroling, ice sculpture, Touch-a-Truck, even a parade with Santa himself.

It's all about kicking off the holiday season close to home.

Darilynn Evans, owner of Darilynn's and Chamber of Commerce member, said of the stroll, "It's a nice tradition for a small town, especially with all the emphasis on shopping and doing business locally." Not only does the stroll support village businesses; it supports Toys for Tots with a drive run by the Police and Fire Departments, as well as the Food Pantry and soldiers overseas. "It's not just about holiday shopping."

Saturday fair

Hosted by three of the town's churches and the non-profit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (CASP), the Village Fair has been a holiday tradition in Cohasset for over 60 years. Volunteers from First Parish Unitarian Church, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Second Congregational Church, METCO and Cohasset ASP are all working together to offer the holiday marketplace.

Second Congregational reverend Gary Ritts said

TOWN MANAGER

2nd round

Town Manager decision expected Dec. 17

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The Board of Selectmen kicked off its second round of interviews with the top three finalists for the town manager position this week, bringing Steven Hartford of Westerly, Rhode Island, and Chris Senior of Long Island, New York, back for another look. The board plans to interview finalist Grady Miller of Narragansett, Rhode Island, on Dec. 16, and will make a decision by Dec. 17.

The search for a permanent town manager was launched in July when the selectmen hired the UMass Collins Center to draft a town profile and job description, advertise the position and winnow down the pool of candidates. The Center presented five candidates to the selectmen from a pool of 24. Cohasset's Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski, who has served in the capacity since March 2012, applied for the job but was not one of the top five (see sidebar).

The selectmen conducted the interviews, then met after the Nov. 23 Special Town Meeting to decide whether to whittle the list down to two or three finalists, and after voting for three, met again on Tues., Nov. 26 to select the top three. The board was nearly unanimous in naming Hartford, Miller and Senior.

The two finalists interviewed this week both had a chance to tour the town and meet citizens during open houses on Monday and Tuesday in the fire station. Town department heads and employees from the public safety department, dept. of public works, schools, and Town

SUPER BOWL

Skippers head to Gillette on Saturday

The Cohasset High School football team won their traditional Thanksgiving Day game against Hull, 20-0. Next stop – none other than Gillette Stadium. This Saturday, Dec. 7, the Skippers will play in their first-ever Division 6 Super Bowl championship at Gillette Stadium, facing off against Littleton High School. The battle begins at 9 a.m.

Tickets: Tickets are available on Ticketmaster.com and can also be purchased on game day at the Gillette Stadium ticket office, located outside the Patriot Place Gate, starting at 8 a.m. All fans will enter the stadium via the NRG Gate, located near The Hall at Patriot Place and CBS Scene.

Cost: Admission to the MIAA Football Championship experience at Gillette Stadium is $17 for adults and $14 for students/senior citizens. The ticket price includes parking, admission to all six MIAA state championship football games and a game day discount of $3 at The Hall at Patriot Place presented by Raytheon. Also included in the price of each ticket this year is a $2.55 Town of Foxboro user fee. All fans entering Gillette Stadium must purchase a ticket.

Parking: Parking is free for this event. Tailgating is not permitted at this event.

Cohasset Fan Bus: CHS will run Super Fan buses leaving CHS at 7:15 am. Please arrive at CHS by 7 a.m. This will allow time for fans to purchase tickets and be in their seats for kickoff at 9 a.m.

Student Super Fan Bus: Students may sign up for fan buses at school or by emailing Athletic Director Ron Ford at rford@cohassetk12.org.

Community Adult Bus: Tom Norton, CHS football parent and President of Coastal Dealerships is sponsoring a fan bus for adults and senior citizens in the community who want to attend the game. If you are interested in reserving a seat on the bus email Athletic Director Ron Ford at rford@cohassetk12.org or leave a message at the Athletic Department 781-383-6103.

Cohasset's Rocco Laugelle has had a fantastic senior season for the Skippers. STAFF PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN Spirit Items: Available for purchase at the high school this week: Cohasset SuperFan t-shirts, C Nike knit hats, C Nike baseball caps, and C flags.

HISTORICAL COMMISSION

Calling all Cohasset history buffs

Cohasset's Historical Commission is seeking new members. Selectmen Martha Gjesteby reported to the rest of the board that the commission would like to add three new members. Gjesteby said that she hopes the town "can get more people for the talent bank."

Anyone interested in joining the commission should send a letter of interest to the Board of Selectmen's office, 41 Highland Ave., or email Tracey Connors at tconnors@cohassetma.org.

POLICE BEAT

Two under protective custody

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Protective custody

On Monday (Nov. 25) at 11:38 p.m., dispatch received a call about a suspicious vehicle in Tedeschi Plaza in front of Curtis liquors. Officers discovered a 43-year-old Scituate woman passed out behind the wheel of a 2007 Volvo S40. After several attempts to wake her, she finally woke up. She had a strong odor of alcoholic beverage on her breath and was highly intoxicated, police said. Due to there being no operation and no keys visible, police could not prove operation. She was placed in protective custody and transported to police headquarters. She was held for 12 hours, the maximum allowed under protective custody laws, police said.

Protective custody

On Saturday (Nov. 30) at 7:33 p.m., dispatch was notified that an erratic operator was driving a 2007 Toyota pickup truck on Route 3A. Police located the vehicle inside a King Street parking lot. The operator was heavily intoxicated. There were no keys in the truck, so the woman was placed in protective custody. She was transported to headquarters where she was held overnight. The truck was towed for safekeeping.

Arrest

On Wednesday (Nov. 27) at 10:48 p.m., an officer working a paid private detail at the Red Lion Inn requested assistance from the area car. A 22-year-old Cohasset man had entered the bar area and appeared to be intoxicated, police said. The man refused to show his ID to the officer, and became belligerent and disorderly. He was escorted out of the bar area and continued to struggle with the officer, police said. The man struck the officer in the chest and was arrested. He was held overnight and bailed in the morning. Arrested was Widmaier M. Charles, 22, of 247 Forest Ave.; charges include assault & battery on a police officer, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Alleged larceny

On Saturday (Nov. 30) at 12:29 p.m., two Scituate men, one 18 and one 19, entered Graham Waste to inquire about employment. Upon hearing that they needed C.D.L. licenses, they both became upset and started rummaging through some boxes in the lobby of the building, police said. Two hooded sweatshirts were taken. The clerk took down the license plate of the vehicle as the men took off toward Scituate.

Scituate police responded to the registered owner's residence, and using registry photos identified the duo. Both sweatshirts were turned in to Scituate police. Cohasset police are pressing charges on behalf of the business but police said the owner of Graham Waste is willing to drop the charges if the two teens apologize.

Scam

At 7 p.m. on Monday (Nov. 25), a 22-year-old resident of Duxbury entered police headquarters to report she was a victim of a scam on Craigslist. She had sold a gym mat on Nov. 13 to a man on Craigslist for $200 and received a total of $925.25.

A short time later, she received a call from the buyer asking her to send the overage via Western Union. She ended up sending $680.80, minus fees and $20 for her troubles. On Nov. 20, her Cohasset bank notified her that the original Money Gram was fraudulent. The Money was sent to Porto Novo, Africa. Officers are working with Western Union fraud division on this investigation. Total amount lost to date is $925.25, police said.

Default warrant

On Friday (Nov. 29) at 5:26 p.m., officers went to a Forest Avenue home to serve a default warrant out of Quincy District Court for minor in possession of alcohol on a 21-year-old man at that address. Samuel J. Leahy, 21, of 215 Forest Ave., was arrested on the warrant and transported to headquarters, police said.

Manhole cover

On Tuesday (Nov. 26) at 2 p.m., a passing fire department engine reported that there was a man hitting a manhole cover with an ax near the railroad tracks at the Beechwood Street crossing. Officers responded to the area where it was discovered that the D.P.W. was preparing to repair the manhole and a subcontractor was opening the cover to give an estimate.

Crosswalk

At around 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 26), a cell phone caller phoned dispatch to report a black Honda Pilot failed to yield in a crosswalk in Hingham. Officers caught up to the alleged vehicle in Cohasset and checked the sobriety of the male operator who was sent on his way without incident.

No fraud

On Tuesday (Nov. 26) at 8 p.m., dispatch received a call from the manager of Stop & Shop reporting possible credit card misuse. Officers on scene reported a man returned with the female owner of credit card to process the transaction. There was no fraud involved, police said.

3-car crash

On Wednesday (Nov. 27) at 12:46 p.m., officers responded to a 3-car, chain-reaction accident in front of Avalon Drive. All three vehicles were heading south. The first vehicle, a 2013 Honda operated by a 55-year-old Hingham man had stopped to let traffic exit onto King Street (Route 3A). Vehicle two, a 2003 Volkswagen operated by an 83-year-old Marshfield woman was struck by vehicle three, a 2008 Jeep operated by a 16-year-old Scituate boy, which caused a chain reaction crash. No injuries, no tows, the Scituate teen was cited for following too closely, police said.

3-car crash

On Wednesday (Nov. 27) at 2 p.m., officers responded to a 3-car crash on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) south near Ridge Top Road. Two vehicles, a 1995 Jeep operated by an 18-year-old Cohasset man and a 2006 Nissan operated by a 41-year-ol Scituate woman were slowing for the red light at Pond Street. Vehicle three, a 2005 Buick operated by an 18-year-old Cohasset man, struck the Nissan, which struck the Jeep. No injuries, two vehicles were towed and the operator of the Jeep was cited for following too closely, police said.

Minor damage

On Wednesday (Nov. 27) at 4:37 p.m., officers responded to Norfolk Road for a report of a town vehicle struck. A 2012 Honda, operated by a 46-year-old Cohasset woman, was backing out of a driveway and struck a 2009 Ford Explorer, which was parked on the street. Very minor damage; there were no tows and no citations.

Erratic driving

On Wednesday (Nov. 27) at 8:24 p.m., dispatch received a call from a motorist on Route 3A following a 2001 Ford Focus traveling south. The vehicle was crossing over to the other travel lane. Officers caught up to this vehicle on Sohier Street and made observations consistent with those of caller. Police stopped the Ford Focus near the library on Sohier Street.

The operator, a 64-year-old Cohasset woman, told police she could not see at night and had difficulty operating in bright sunlight also. A citation was issued for marked lanes violation. The woman's license was suspended after an immediate threat was filed with the Registry of Motor Vehicles, police said. The vehicle was parked in the library for safekeeping.

Yelling

On Thursday (Nov. 28) at 1:43 a.m., a North Main Street resident called dispatch to report there were three people yelling out in front of his house. Officers on scene located a 20-year-old Cohasset man and a 19 year-old Scituate man walking on north Main Street with a 23-year-old Hull woman. All were transported to a residence on Red Gate Lane.

Custody dispute

On Thursday (Nov. 28) 11:24 a.m., officers responded to a Cohasset residence for a custody dispute. A 31-man from out of town was trying to pick up his two children for Thanksgiving. His estranged wife from Cohasset was reluctant to let them go, police said. A valid court order was presented to officers on scene, granting custody on Thanksgiving to the father. The children were allowed to leave without incident.

that his congregation has been hard at work, making crafts for several months and have solicited around 60 silent auction items along with a "Surf n' Turf" raffle of lobsters and filet, with five opportunities to win. The church will also have a bake table, cheese table and children's craft table.

While Santa Claus will be holding court of the common from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., he will relocate to the Second Congregational nursery if it rains.

The church is also hosting Santa Claus in the back of the church. At the entrance, available for purchase are handmade bows to go with wreaths available from METCO.

First Parish is also hard at work, collecting "some one else's treasure" to sell at their white elephant sale, which in honor of their denomination (Unitarian Universalist) is called the "U-Usable Sale."

St. Stephen's will have a Book Fair, selling high-quality hardback books. They will also be hosting the Secret Room run by the Cohasset Appalachia Service Project, where children can come and shop in secret for their parents and other siblings, along with a gift-wrapping room.

The Nativity of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church of Cohasset will also be having their Holiday Fair from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 7, at the Community Center, 3 N. Main St. Handmade Christmas wreaths and swags will be featured as well as Greek pastries, Greek Taverna food, pies, breads and other baked goods.

And, last but not least, the Rusty Skippers will perform their Annual Holiday Pops Concert at noon in First Parish.

Thursday stroll

The annual Holiday Stroll with the Route 3A and the downtown village businesses is from 12 to 7 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 14.

Darilynn's owner and stroll organizer, Darilyn Evans, said, "The businesses look forward to welcoming the community to celebrate the season. It's festive, and it's social, and it's fun."

Participating businesses will be marked with balloons, offering everything from sidewalk sales to arts and crafts, refreshments, photo booth, holiday decorating and more.

A Santa parade, hayride, and the carillon, performed by Mary Kennedy, will kick off at 4 p.m. in the village.

"This parade will be epic!" said Maria Monaco of Outside In, who is organizing it. "I am so pleased to have the Cohasset cheerleaders, hockey team , cub scouts girl scouts, town merchants, rusty skippers, St. Nick, the Grinch and more! I'm very excited that everyone who is taking part is equally excited."

Monaco said that she is still hoping the Cohasset High School chorus and football team will be able to join in the parade. The occasion will be especially momentous if the footballers manage to clinch victory during Saturday's Super Bowl Championship game against Littleton High School at Gillette Stadium. Either way, the town wants to celebrate. "We are hoping it will be a deserved celebration for them making it to the Super Bowl," said Monaco.

The police department will be running a Toys-For-Tots drive and will be in Pilgrim Bank with the department's children identification system, a $4,000 system that was purchased by Pilgrim Bank. Police Sgt. Jeff Treanor explained that system features a computer programmed to scan fingerprints, take photographs, and print CDs that parents can have in the event their children ever go missing.

The fire department will bring one of the engines downtown for Touch-a-Truck, and will also collect Toys-For-Tots.

A highlight of the stroll is the ice sculpture in front of Sullivan, Garrity and Donnelly Insurance. "We do it every year, and it's a big hit," said Kerry O'Keefe. She is also organizing a children's gingerbread house-decorating contest.

Participants are asked to sign up ahead of time by emailing O'Keefe at kerry.okeefe@sgdins.com and dropping off their already decorated gingerbread houses at Caldwell Bank on the day of the stroll, between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. The houses will be on display throughout the stroll for people to vote on.

Voting will be done for four age groups: 3 to 5, 6 to 9, 10 to 14, and 15 and up. Winners will receive prizes donated by JJ's Junction.

As always, strollers can enjoy stopping in the various downtown shops and starting their holiday shopping. There are also plenty of fun things for kids, including balloon art at Pilgrim Bank, face-painting at Paperscapes, and decorate cookies at French Memories. The public is invited to bid on wreaths with all proceeds benefiting the Food Pantry. The winning bidder will receive an Atlantica gift certificate.

Cohasset Village Greenery donated the two trees that will be all dressed up for the occasion. The public may bring decorations for the tree in between French Memories and Tedeschi's.

For more details on the Holiday Stroll, visit the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce website: www.cohassetchamber.org.

Greek Church Fair at Community Center

The Nativity of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church of Cohasset will be having their Holiday Fair from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 7, at the Community Center, 3 N. Main St. Handmade Christmas wreaths and swags will be featured as well as Greek pastries, Greek Taverna food, pies, breads and other baked goods. Orders for the wreaths may be placed now to ensure availability and ribbon color by calling 781-849-9543.

In addition, numerous vendors will be selling jewelry, scarves, clothing, photos, unique cards, knit goods, pottery, jams and jellies and Tupperware. The ladies of the Philoptochos Society, also known as "friend of the poor will prepare and sell freshly prepared holiday pastries and traditional Greek food for eat in or take out. Featured will be a mini-market of Greek cooking items. Check out Grandma's Attic.

Rusty Skippers at Holiday Pops Concert

The Rusty Skippers, Cohasset's own community concert band, will perform its annual Holiday Pops Concert at the Meeting House of First Parish Unitarian Universalist, on the Cohasset Common, at noon, this Saturday, Dec. 7. The band will play a selection of popular and jazzy Christmas music, as well as sing-alongs for the audience.

The concert is free, but a freewill cash offering for the Cohasset Food Pantry will be taken.

The Rusty Skippers will also play this program at 3 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 14, at Holy Nativity Church 8 Nevin Road Weymouth. The program will last about one hour.

Caroling at the Village Stroll

For our 11th year in a row, First Parish on the Common is sponsoring an old and well-loved Cohasset tradition. Caroling at the Village Stroll, on Saturday, Dec. 14.

Everyone is welcome. This is a community event for young and old, especially families with school-age children. Bring some friends. Exceptional singing voices are not required; participants will be backed by the "world-renowned" First Parish Choir, which will lead us in a medley of familiar and simple carols.

An early dinner of pizza will be served in the Parish House starting at 4:30 p.m.; participants will then walk downtown to Darilynn's store on Main Street around 5:15 p.m. to enjoy hot cocoa, hot cider and cookies. Cookie donations will be much appreciated. We'll do singing for about 30 minutes from 5:30 to 6 p.m. after which you'll be free to sample the wares of our Village stores, and take a ride on the hay wagon.

Join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word. The more the merrier. For further information contact Sandy Bailey at 781-383-1100 or Woody Chittick at 383-3215.

SUNDAY AUTHOR TALKS

Jay Parini to speak at library

Jay Parini, poet, novelist, biographer, critic and professor of literature at Middlebury College, will speak at Sunday Authortalks at 4 p.m., on Dec. 8, at Paul Pratt Memorial Library. He will talk about his recently published biography of Jesus, "Jesus: The Human Face of God."

Admission to the event is free but seating is limited so plan to arrive early to ensure a spot. A wine and cheese reception will follow Parini's talk; Buttonwood Books will have his book available for purchase and signing. For more information, call the library at 383-1348 or visit online at cohassetlibrary.org.

Sunday Authortalks is sponsored by Dean and Hamilton Realtors and the Cook Estate. Wines for the post-talk receptions are donated by A Taste for Wine and Spirits.

AROUND TOWN

Look for Santa on Saturday

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Greetings

Hi there Cohasset and Happy Holidays! I am still in complete and total denial that it is December but am excited for the season. I hope that you all had a wonderful and thankful, Thanksgiving Day with friends and family. The column this week includes a variety of events and programs coming up so let's get going and read about them.

Bravo!

A huge thank you goes out to Lisa Lynch of Port's Cohasset and Cotuit for creating another wonderful fashion show for the Greater New England Multiple Sclerosis Society. Nearly 600 women attended the recent event held at the Sheraton Boston. Lisa and her staff generously donate their time and talent to help make the "Real Women, Real Stories" event a truly special moment. All the models are women courageously living with MS. Lisa makes each of them feel beautiful both inside and outside. Bravo Lisa for your support and belief in making a positive difference!

Santa!

In conjunction with the Village Fair tomorrow , the Cohasset Appalachia Service Project will bring Santa Claus to town once again, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Due to current weather predictions, if he's not on the Common, he will be housed in the back part of Second Congregational Church. The entrance will be at the end of the brick walk between the church and the Town Hall. The visit is free of charge and pictures, in the form of ornaments, buttons, snow globes or cards may be purchased for a nominal fee.

Also for the children will be the Secret Room, open from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at St. Stephen's. Children will fill out a form, listing their intended gift recipients; then be escorted through the retail area to help them pick out gifts. Finally, moving through the cashier, they will be assisted in wrapping their gifts, all ready to be placed under the tree! Gifts range in price from $1 to $8. Sponsored by Cohasset ASP.

Wreaths

The Cohasset METCO program is proud to sponsor its annual Holiday Wreath Sale. Continuing its holiday tradition the METCO program is offering beautifully fresh, double-sided Balsam wreaths for your festive decorating. The cost is $10 per holiday wreath and the proceeds benefit the Cohasset METCO Scholarship Fund. Wreaths will be available for pick-up at the Second Congregational Church during the Cohasset Village Fair on Saturday, Dec. 7 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Pre-ordering is appreciated but not required. Beautiful Handmade BOWS will also be available at the sale! For more information or to place an order please contact Connie Afshar at 781 383 6006.

Auditions

The Cohasset Dramatic Club is pleased to announce auditions for "Shrek the Musical," based upon the award-winning Dreamworks animation film. Performance dates are March 14 - 30, 2014. Auditions will be held on Dec. 8 and 9 at the Cohasset Town Hall Theater, 41 Highland Ave. Audition details can be found on CDC's website at cohassetdramaticclub.org. They are looking to assemble a large cast and there are roles available for ages 11 - Adult. Please email them at info@cohassetdramaticclub .org with any questions.

Lunch programs

The following lunch programs will take place at Cohasset Elder Affairs, 3 N. Main St. Monday, Dec. 9, at 12 p.m., Brown Bag Lunch and Movie, Salmon Fishing in the Yemen. A fisheries expert is approached by a consultant to help realize a sheik's vision of bringing the sport of fly-fishing to the dessert and embarks on an upstream journey of faith and fish to prove the impossible possible.

Wednesday, December 11th at 11 a.m., dynamic musician and entertainer Dwayne Sullivan will perform songs of the season. Join all for Dwayne's show and afterwards for lunch one of the fantastic home cooks.

Thursday Dec. 12 at 11 a.m., Registrar William O'Donnell will be available to discuss protecting your home via the Homestead Act. In addition, registry staff will be available to print a recorded deed, confirm the status of a mortgage or to check on any other filing. As always, lunch will follow the program. A $3 donation is requested for lunches. Please call for reservations and transportation is available if necessary at 781-383-9112.

Wellspring

Here is a great program being offered at Wellspring, 814 Nantasket Ave in Hull (wellspring.org). "Buying a Computer"(Thursday, Dec, 12, from 6-8 p.m.)

Do you need a new PC or can you "tune up" your current one? Should you buy a desktop, a laptop, a tablet or can you just use a smart phone? Which microprocessor do you need, how much memory, what size hard drive and monitor? Do you need a video card, a network card or a wireless card? Should you buy a Windows machine or a Macintosh? Which version of Windows should you get and what brand computer should you buy? Should you buy at a retail store or online? What do you do with your old computer?

For more information or to preregister, call 781-925-0951 or email rick@wellspringhull.org

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box. EMAIL: aroundtowncohasset@yahoo.com

Debate team back in action

MATTHEW MACCORMACK

A lot has gone on since we last spoke, so let's not waste any time with an intro!

The Wednesday before Thanksgiving proved to be a relatively relaxing final day before the long weekend. Classes were shortened due to the half-day schedule, and although many students worked right up until the bell, the pinnacles of academia were hardly reached, with faculty and staff awaiting their turkey holiday. Wednesday also saw the gathering of the 2nd Annual Alumni Breakfast, where last year's graduates (in this case, the Class of 2013) enjoy a small luncheon with the current seniors before dismissal. Over bagels, muffins and fruit provided by the lovely cafeteria staff, the college freshman shared a little advice and met up with their friends from the CHS Class of 2014.

Monday morning brought everybody back together after what proved to be a restorative and scrumptious long weekend. Undoubtedly, the first thing everyone did once in school was compute the number of school days left until Christmas Break (it's 10, in case you were wondering). Still, life at CHS moves on, as it always does.

The Debate Team, led by faculty advisors and English teachers Mr. Jason McCabe and Mr. William Fish, saw its first action this Wednesday. The team took the bus to Old Rochester, where long-winded rhetoricians spewed claims and wove words together with the skill of expert basket makers. This year's topic centers on whether or not the United States should invest foreign aid in Central and South America. I'd like to wish luck to two skilled debaters, First Team Affirmative partners and CHS seniors Tim Cavanaro and Alexandros Deligiannidis, who look primed to make a run at the league title that just barely alluded their grasp last year.

CHS Student Council also has had a busy week, with the annual Red Cross Blood Drive occurring on Friday. Students lined up to donate blood and save a life, while StuCo members lined the hallways with posters and encouraged students to participate. Shout out to everyone who donated; it takes a lot of courage, and your contribution has not gone unnoticed. This columnist was not brave enough to share his red blood cells, but I promise to try in the next blood drive a few months from now.

Furthermore, StuCo has planned a special Holiday Event to reach out to the community. On Saturday, Dec. 14th, from the hours of 2 to 4p.m[, the Student Council will host the "Polar Express", where the famous animated holiday film will be showcased, and snacks will be served. Parents looking to spend a little time gift shopping or relaxing are encouraged to drop off their young one for a little holiday fun. The event will take place in the CHS Auditorium, and more details will be forthcoming.

As always, we end with CHS athletics. The football players are prepping for the biggest game of their lives, the Division 6 State Championship, which will pit the 12-1 Skippers against the undefeated Tigers of Littleton. Saturday at 9 a.m., Gillette Stadium should be packed with Skippers aficionados, and I hope you will join the crowd. The boys' are fresh off a 20-0 Thanksgiving trouncing of Hull, and will look to keep the momentum rolling, and hopefully raise the trophy.

Enjoy your week ladies and gentleman, and, as always, keep it classy Cohasset!

Tiny places, big story

Dollhouse exhibit opens

Throughout its history, Cohasset has been known for many things — as a seafaring New England village with a rich history in all things nautical, from the iconic harbor to the fishing fleet.

But as a hotbed for dolls and their furniture?

It turns out that some amazingly detailed mini-furniture was made right here in town. In this month's Historical Society exhibit, a whimsical array of dollhouses, dolls and furniture are on display, and if you decide to take a peek inside the tiny houses, you may find a few surprises.

There are several dollhouse on display in the Pratt Building, most of which were built in Cohasset and are decorated for Christmas. Items from the society's vast textile collection showcase the era of each house.

The exhibit highlights Carlo and Barbara Conte's dollhouse furniture and Marion Winsor's "Little Doll Company," which was based in Cohasset.

"They're unbelievable," Historical Society director Lynne DeGiacomo said of the houses, explaining a little about their origins. Several were made in Cohasset and donated by local families.

Key to the exhibit is the mini-furniture crafted by Carlo Conte, an Italian who immigrated to the U.S. in 1923 and eventually settled in Cohasset, where he made cabinets and restored antiques until his retirement in 1967.

Then, Conte went into the tiny furniture business. According to the Historical Society, his shop featured pieces that were exact, mini-replicas of early American furniture; his crowning glory was an Italian villa style dollhouse, made to scale.

Conte's shop, which used to be located across from the Music Circus, attracted many celebrity customers in its heyday, including Liberace and Lena Horne.

Cohasset was also home to Marion Winsor's "Little Doll Company," starting in the 1940s.

While the dolls, dollhouses and furniture on display at the Pratt Building may look like toys, and many of which once were, they are also dioramas representing Cohasset's past.

"Some of them go back to the 1800s," Historical Society member Jean Hajjar said. "They are truly works of art."

One Victorian-style dollhouse in particular is believed to have been built in 1860, and was gifted to the Historical Society by Mrs. George Willard-Smith and the Robert C. Jordan families. Many other Cohasset families gave or lent their dollhouses to the exhibit.

Each dollhouse, from as far back as the Victorian age to the 1950s and even a very 2013 "shabby-chic" replica of baby Prince George's nursery, tells a story, with furniture handpicked to represent the era and style of the house.

Many of the dollhouses feature furniture from Dollhouse Treasures in Braintree, one local shop that is carrying on the handmade mini-furniture tradition.

Also on display are clothes from the Historical Society's vast archive of textiles.

It's an exhibit to be enjoyed by dollhouse lovers of all ages.

Said Historical Society president Kathy O'Malley, "We found out dollhouses aren't just for little kids."

The dollhouse exhibit opens December 6 and runs through mid-January at the Pratt Building, 106 South Main Street, Cohasset, open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

WEDDING

Kovach – Romain

Peter William Kovach and Melissa Quethia Romain were wed at First Parish Church on the Cohasset Common on Saturday, Nov. 16, 2013. The Rev. Jill Cowie officiated at the 3:30 p.m. ceremony. Patrick Romain, the bride's uncle, accompanied her down the aisle to the processional song "Can You Feel the Love Tonight" by Elton John.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Daphney Romain, as Maid of Honor. Her sister, Shella Pratt, was her bridesmaid, and her aunt, Kettie Louis, and cousin, Ginadelle Romain, also attended her. The groom's best man was Kyle Weber. His brothers, Stephen and Jake Kovach, as well as friends Sean Chase and Shailesh Gupta, were his groomsmen. Soloist Nadia Schwartz sang three songs selected by the bride and groom including the recessional, Stevie Wonder's "Overjoyed." Musical accompanist was Sylvia Berry.

The bride is the daughter of Rose-Laure Romain and the late Jean Edvard Romain and the granddaughter of Princina Silverain Romain of Roslindale. She is a graduate of the UMass-Boston and is a member of the nursing staff at Massachusetts General Hospital. The groom, also a UMass-Boston graduate, is the son of George and Joan Kovach of Cohasset and is a science teacher at the Martin Luther King Middle School in Dorchester.

The couple is planning a honeymoon during the February school vacation break and will reside in Dorchester.

PAULA J. FATERSIK

Can you see them? Those adorable freckles and stunning markings? Annie is just perfect! When you look at Annie's delicately spotted face and fur, it is as if someone painted each one with a fine quill pen. She is unique in both personality and looks. The total, snuggly package! Living in the shelter is akin to being in an orphanage for this pretty little girl. Yes, Annie was lucky to have been found and rescued, but wouldn't a forever home be the best present ever? Especially with the holidays coming?

This friendly Tortie is one of the sweetest cats and hopefully her stay here will be very short! She is very friendly, loves to give and receive attention and affection, and has a thankful purr that will steal your heart. Just because she ran into some hard luck and was abandoned in a storm, that hasn't changed her fabulous, good-natured ways.

Annie is a small to medium sized cat with gorgeous green-gold eyes and at only 2 years old, she is anxious to be in a home where she can get back to playing with wand toys and fuzzy mice, share her time with her new family and lounge in a sunny window. In the shelter, she spends quite a bit of time on the windowsill, waiting for us to come in and give her special attention, and gazing at the activity outside. Mellow, with a sweet little meow, she is going to make a wonderful companion and family member for one lucky person or family. Do you have a cozy home and time to spend with this beautiful, charming girl?

Please call Judy at 781-534-4902 for more information on sweet Annie. She would love to leave the "orphanage" and spend the coming holidays in a home, safe from storms, where she will be loved forever. Please visit Hull Seaside Animal Rescue soon to spend some time with her.

We are located at 50 L St. Open Hours are Monday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 and Saturdays from 2-3 p.m. You can see more of our wonderful adult cats and kittens who are waiting for their best match and home by visiting HSAR.org and clicking on Available Pets. On Petfinder.com you will see more photos and information. Just enter our zip code, 02045.

SS VO-TECH

Cohasset families invited to open house

By Thomas Hickey
Special to the Mariner

For more than 50 years, Cohasset students have had the opportunity to experience a high quality vocational technical education at South Shore Vocational Technical High School in Hanover. Cohasset was one of the six towns that chartered the school in 1960.

I would like to invite Cohasset seventh and eighth grade families to get better acquainted with their community's vocational technical high school by attending our Open House on Dec. 10 from 5:30 to 8 p.m., where you can tour our vocational programs and meet our faculty and students.

Vocational technical education has grown in popularity over the last 20 years. In 2011, Harvard University's Pathways to Prosperity report cited the benefits of a vocational technical education:

"...[T]he statewide network of regional vocational technical high schools has been dubbed the Cadillac of CTE [Career and Technical Education]... Students in these schools spend half their time in career education, and academic instruction is integrated with technical education. The payoff has been enormous. These schools boast a far lower dropout rate than the state average, and have some of the state's highest graduation rates. Well over half of the graduates go on to postsecondary education. Perhaps most remarkably, in 2008, 96 percent of students at these high schools passed the state's rigorous MCAS high-stakes graduation test..."

Locally, SSVT's state accountability data aligns with the Pathways report. In 2013, 100 percent of our students passed the ELA MCAS test, and 97 percent passed both the mathematics and science MCAS tests. We are a Level 1 school with increasing numbers of students scoring advanced and proficient in MCAS each year. To ensure our students are ready for post-secondary education, our core curriculum fulfills Massachusetts Board of Higher Education requirements, which include requiring three years of a lab science and four years of mathematics. While not every career requires a college degree, we expect students to be college-ready.

SSVT's signature emphasis on career readiness is evident in its 14 rigorous vocational programs. Every day, I witness our culinary students running a restaurant, our electronics students building robots and our machining students programming milling machines to make intricate parts. In all of our programs, we provide students with an applied understanding of "employability" and a competitive resume of transferable technical skills that are key ingredients to a successful career pathway.

For parents, helping children on their education pathway can be challenging, and exploring all available educational options is important. At SSVT we help our students develop their pathway because we don't expect every 14-year-old student to know what they want to do with the rest of their life. That is why in ninth grade, SSVT students spend six months exploring eight of our 14 vocational programs before deciding on their vocational technical major.

At our Open House, families can meet students who have already chosen their vocational programs. You will undoubtedly notice their intelligence, confidence, pride and motivation. And more convincing than any statistic or report, these young men and women will confirm what we have always known: choosing a vocational technical pathway will only open the doors of opportunity, not close them. On Dec. 10, our schoolhouse doors will be open. We look forward to meeting you.

Thomas J. Hickey, Ed.D. is Superintendent-Director of South Shore Vocational Technical High School, located at 476 Webster St. in Hanover. SSVT serves students from Abington, Cohasset, Hanover, Hanson, Norwell, Rockland, Scituate and Whitman. For more information, visit www.ssvotech.org of call 781-871-4153.

CPC hearing slated for Dec. 9

The Community Preservation Committee's annual public hearing is Monday, Dec. 9.

The meeting is held each year to allow town committees and boards to propose town projects that could be funded using state Community Preservation Act (CPA) funds. Approved projects are submitted as warrant articles to be voted on by Town Meeting.

The hearing will discuss potential projects that could be voted on by the Annual Town Meeting next spring.

UPDATE

Red Lion Inn hearing held off again

Has been moved to Jan. 7

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

A hearing on a noise complaint against the Red Lion Inn has been pushed back, yet again.

The Board of Selectmen has planned to address a Sept. 28 alleged entertainment license violation by the Red Lion Inn for the past several weeks.

The selectmen are scheduled to renew licenses at an upcoming meeting (Tuesday, Dec. 17), but the upcoming hearing on the inn will decide whether the Red Lion Inn's liquor and entertainment licenses are renewed. However, now the hearing will have to wait until the new year, having been bumped to the selectmen's first meeting in January.

A public hearing was initially scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 26, allowing the inn time to respond to the complaint in writing, cooperating with the police department's request for information. Police Detective Lieutenant Gregory Lennon was appointed by the Board of Selectmen as a license enforcement agent to review a Sept. 28 alleged violation of the inn's entertainment license following a noise complaint filed by Michael and Rowena Karp, who live near the establishment.

The Karps said that the Inn hosted a noisy outdoor function, which was in violation of its entertainment license with the town. Per the license, any noise from events is supposed to be "inaudible." The Inn is also prohibited from serving alcohol outside.

However, Lennon reported Wednesday, Nov. 13 that 16 days after requesting information from the inn, the inn had yet to comply with the request.

The Nov. 26 hearing was bumped to Tuesday, Dec. 3. The inn's attorney, Charles Humphreys, owner Gerd Ordelheide, and several others attended the selectmen's meeting only to end up having to wait to testify another time. During a license hearing, said Town Counsel Paul DeRensis, "the licensee has a right to cross-examine witnesses... It's like a trial."

Humphreys was given a police report that exceeded 100 pages on the inn that he did not have a chance to review prior to the meeting. The selectmen said they had only received the document the day before.

The board agreed it was only fair to allow the inn's counsel to get up to speed rather than proceeding with the hearing that night.

"I'm concerned the Red Lion Inn counsel is just now getting this," said selectmen chair Fred Koed.

Selectman Steve Gaumer agreed, "As a matter of a hearing, evidence the town would be submitting should be disclosed to all."

The board voted 5-0 to postpone the hearing. It was rescheduled for Jan. 7 at 7:10 p.m.

Selectmen vice-chair Diane Kennedy said that while the inn owner and representation had not seen this particular report, "a lot of these documents that are in it are things that have been circulating."

Neighbors of the inn have made their complaints known. The Karps live next door to the inn and file the Sept. 28 complaint, providing video evidence and copies of complaints against the inn from TripAdvisor.com and Google reviews.

The Red Lion Inn is currently rated with four and a half out of six stars on TripAdvisor.

Chief complaints from the online reviews included the noise level, particularly in rooms that were located near the bar, which is open until 2 a.m. Others complained of partying, although many commenters also praised the venue as a "dream wedding destination" and touted the staff's friendliness.

The Karps, in a Nov. 27 letter to Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski, summed up the issue by quoting a Mariner police log entry from Feb. 2013 in which a man who was arrested at the inn told the arresting officer, "People at weddings make noise."

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

OUR VIEW

CJC Highway's namesake

Chief Justice Cushing Highway in Cohasset – better known as Route 3A – is the state highway that runs from Hingham to Scituate with the exception of the section where Route 3A becomes King Street. C.J.C. Highway also stretches through Scituate and part of Hingham.

C.J.C. Highway usually turns up in our police news when there is a traffic accident. But what our readers may not know is the highway is named for Chief Justice William Cushing, a prominent historical figure.

Peter Leavitt, a local historian, gave a talk about Cushing recently as part of the Scituate Historical Society's Fall Lecture Series.

Here are some interesting facts about Chief Justice Cushing:

- The Cushing family arrived in America in 1638 and settled in Hingham.
- William Cushing was born in Scituate in March 1732 and grew up on the family's 150 acres along the North River.
- Cushing's father, John, was a provincial magistrate who later became an associate justice on the Superior Court of Judicature – what is referred to today as the Supreme Court – of the province.
- Cushing became a member of the Boston Bar in 1755. He practiced law in Scituate for five years before moving to what is now known as Dresden, Maine.
- At the time, Maine was considered a part of the Massachusetts province, and Cushing became the first practicing attorney in the province's eastern district.
- He became Massachusetts' first sitting Chief Justice in 1777, a position he held until 1789.
- In 1776 Scituate Town Meeting approved to form a commission, with Cushing as its chairman, to write a letter outlining the community's opposition to the British sending in reinforcements to the area.
- His ruling in favor of Quock Walker, a Western Massachusetts slave pursuing his freedom through the law, is believed to have been the catalyst in abolishing slavery in Massachusetts.
- Cushing was among new President George Washington's first choices for Supreme Court justices. At George Washington's second inauguration as President, Cushing administered the Oath of Office.
- Like most of his family, Cushing wanted to be buried in the family cemetery in Scituate. His wife wanted something more significant and had a large tomb built in Norwell – then a part of Scituate. Upon her death her instructions were to remove her husband's body from his family's plot and bury him with her in Norwell. The family did not follow her wishes, and the couple remains buried in different cemeteries.
- The Cushing Cemetery is the smallest state park in Massachusetts.

CSCR LECTURE SERIES

Climate change talk planned

Cohasset Center for Student Coastal Research announces the kickoff of its Guest Lecture Program, a series of seminars and discussions hosted and organized by Dr. Carsten Haber, a founding member of the CSCR Board of Directors. The inaugural lecture will be delivered from 7 to 8 p.m., on Wednesday, Dec. 11, by John Clarkeson of the state's Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs. Clarkeson will discuss Climate Change Adaptation: Current Environmental Policy, Massachusetts Initiatives, and the work of the Adaptation Advisory Committee. This lecture will provide citizens with the opportunity to not only learn from a policy leader in the Commonwealth, but a chance to engage in discussion about climate change.

Mr. Clarkeson has a wealth of knowledge about how the state is working with communities to adapt to climate change, and it's important to provide a forum to facilitate science discussions on the local level.

"We want CSCR to be a forum where informative and even inspiring discussions take place that fit in with CSCR's core activities," said. Haber. "As a chemist working with small companies in the field of analytical biosciences, I know how important it is to bring people together to share information about cutting-edge scientific topics. Mr. Clarkeson has a wealth of knowledge about how the state is working with communities to adapt to climate change, and it's important to provide a forum to facilitate science discussions on the local level. John Clarkeson is the perfect guy to launch this series," said Haber.

Clarkeson's visit to CSCR is a must-attend event for those in tune with climate change impacts on the local level. As the state prepares computerized visualization tools to improve understanding of potential impacts from sea level rise and the federal government draws new "new flood maps that reach deep into the city," (Boston Globe, Nov 16, 2013), Clarkeson is at the forefront of initiatives developed to assist municipal planning in coastal communities.

Clarkeson joined EEA in 1995. He helped implement the Watershed Initiative, fostering shared responsibility for improving environmental quality. He designed the Outdoor Classroom grant providing funding for environmental education in public schools, the Drinking Water Supply Land Protection Grant, and now oversees the Commonwealth's $20 million Dam and Seawall Fund. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanksgiving Day Thank You

We extend our sincere gratitude to all who assisted our son during last week's Turkey Trot. After a spirited first mile, our son appeared to be having a seizure (he didn't, and he is fully recovered). While it was comforting to be among family, friends and familiar faces, we are particularly thankful for the assistance offered by strangers, particularly the men who stopped and called 911, and the nurse who stopped and stayed with us until services arrived. Special thanks to the Cohasset Fire Department for the professional and courteous care, and to Ted Carroll for checking in on us long after his race responsibilities were over. Our Turkey Trot was a reminder to us of our special community, for which we are thankful.

Rob and Lynne Schwandt, Beach Street

'LOL' was a hit!

A big shout out to the Cohasset Theatre Company for their great performance of "LOL: A Century of Comedy" at Cohasset High School. The play, comprised of five vignettes, was really funny and ironic – juxtaposing old play material (Anton Chekhov and others) with modern music and script. The set design was ingenious and the acting was professional. I look forward to the next production from these talented students and faculty.

Grateful for generosity

Thank you to the many family, friends, and neighbors who contributed to the Scouting for Food campaign. Cohasset scouts in Cub Scout Pack 38, Boy Scout Troop 28, and Venture Scout Crew 18 participated in this national campaign of the Boy Scouts of America to collect food for local food pantries. Thanks to the generosity of Cohasset citizens, the scouts collected over 50 bags of groceries, which were then donated to the Cohasset Food Pantry. At this time of Thanksgiving, we appreciate your kindness and generosity.

Atlantica thanked for annual luncheon

For 12 years, Atlantica has opened its welcoming doors to seniors , and has provided a delicious pre-Thanksgiving luncheon courtesy of Joe and Janet Campbell, Managers, their staff, and cadre of faithful volunteers. Each year the meal tastes even better than the year before, and is surpassed only by the conversation, laughter, and friendship of the fortunate attendees.

Joe and Janet's generosity is felt throughout the year but never more intensely than at Thanksgiving. How blessed are we to have such gracious hosts in Cohasset!

On behalf of the seniors, staff and Board of Directors at Cohasset Elder Affairs, we offer our sincere appreciation to Joe and Janet who made the afternoon such a wonderful success!

COMMENTARY

Time for a citizen revolt?

PETER DECAPRIO

Last week, we learned Fred Koed skipped town meeting and a vote on our town manager to work Lawrence's mayoral recount. According to the Patriot Ledger, this bothered some in town. It shouldn't. Given his sorry record of late, and the muddled thinking he brings to most issues, we should wish Mr. Koed skipped out on all votes.

The politicization of town government by Koed, Quigley and Gjesteby continues amok because it can.

In a midnight email to colleagues, Koed claimed a "personal conflict" stood in the way of his attendance. He then gallingly reminded our selectmen that choosing our next town manager was "the most important job (they) have right now." Not, apparently, as important as working Lawrence's polls.

Mr. Koed can communicate with Mike Coughlin and Mark DeLuca as they go about suing the town, but can't admit that he was in Lawrence instead of attending to our business. But, working the Lawrence recount and not being upfront about it is far less dishonest than his approach to blocking Bill Quigley's appointment as chief of police or our town manager search.

Consider this: just two days after excluding Milanoski from our search, the Collins Center, which rewrote our criteria at the behest of Karen Quigley, recommended him as a finalist in Carver. The Carver and Cohasset job descriptions on the Collins Center website are virtually identical. It defies logic then that the Collins Center thought Milanoski a good candidate for Carver but not us.

So now Mr. Koed and Ms. Quigley force us to choose an unknown for town manager whose qualifications, according to the Collins Center, are identical to Mr. Milanoski. Because of them, we just spent $13,000 to roll the dice.

Mr. Milanoski was once a finalist for another town manager position only a short time into his tenure here. He declined because he was promised a two-year contract extension and he wanted to make sure Cohasset's ship was righted. Were it not for the incompetence of our town counsel and the personal grudges of three selectmen, we would know exactly what we have in a town manager today and we would be assured of progress toward better municipal government.

Recently, Ms. Quigley and Martha Gjesteby have tried to undo the makeup of town committees and commissions based on individual attendance records. They would like to pack these commissions with people who will vote their way, and they have used attendance records as the excuse to boot loyal, hard-working townspeople that don't share their views. If missing a meeting is enough to be kicked off the Conservation Commission, what does it mean when the selectmen chair skips a vote?

The politicization of town government by Koed, Quigley and Gjesteby continues amok because it can. We have no recall mecha-

THE POLITICAL PERCH

Channeling Tolstoy in Cohasset

KEVIN MCCARTHY

However, if you watch one of our selectmen's meetings on Cable 143 TV and then visit our various town departments the next day you would think you had entered an alternate universe.

Despite continued turbulence and dysfunction at the upper levels of our town's governance, the Town of Cohasset has actually been running rather well over the last couple of years. In fact, better than well. Recently, the our bond rating was increased to AA by Standard and Poor's with a positive outlook, just two years after we suffered a near collapse of our town's financial functioning. This achievement was followed by our receipt of the prestigious Certificate of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting. As well, our town sewer treatment plant was recently recognized as the best small wastewater treatment facility in the state. Our schools consistently rank amongst the highest in the state. And our Harbormaster, working with the Acting Town Manager, recently secured $4 million in federal funding to dredge the channels of Cohasset Harbor.

But beyond formal recognition, go take a look yourself. Whether you visit our Town Clerk's office for a filing or to make an inquiry, or ask the DPW for guidance on petitioning at the recycling center, or need help from the town manager's staff at town hall, or need fast, accurate information or assistance from the police (K-9 Erik included) or fire department, or run into a town nurse volunteering her time to provide medical assistance and advice at a recent veterans forum and on her 28th wedding anniversary you quickly see that our town is blessed with many dedicated professional employees who keep Cohasset running rather smoothly, irrespective of malfunctioning top-level leadership. However, if you watch one of our selectmen's meetings on Cable 143 TV and then visit our various town departments the next day you would think you had entered an alternate universe. The former too often resembles a Mad Hatter's Tea Party and the latter a well-run, cheerful, efficient and rather pleasant New England town.

While this tale of two Cohassets might seem to be a mysterious contradiction, it would not be to Russian philosopher and writer Leo Tolstoy. In "War and Peace" Tolstoy laid out a view of top leadership and history, which might explain this seeming contradiction. Tolstoy's view is that top-level leaders have little to do with how historical events unfold. What really moves history and human events has to do with a multitude of underlying causes, circumstances and culture largely too random and complicated to be understood, let alone controlled by top leaders. In fact, he thought Napoleon was a posturing buffoon who rode the inevitable tide of history and took credit for great events that would have occurred without him.

Strangely enough there was one top-level leader Tolstoy did admire. His name was General Kutuzov, who headed the Russian Army as it repelled the invasion of Napoleon in 1812. When the invasion came, Czar Alexander had to appoint a new general to lead the Russian Army. The experts and other commanding generals fully expected the appointment to go to anyone other than the aging, half-blind seemingly lethargic old general. But the lower military ranks and the Russian people in general rose up in chorus insisting that Alexander, against his own wishes, appoint General Kutuzov to lead the military in opposition to Napoleon's invasion.

Kutuzov was popular amongst the Russian troops because he was one of them. He was Russian where most of the top military leaders were foreign. He respected and cared for his troops. He was of the Russian heartland and he was the only choice for the people who were to actually fight and risk their lives to run Napoleon out of Russia. And run him out they did, for Napoleon invaded Russia with some 500,000 soldiers in 1812 but staggered back to Paris with about 30,000 soldiers, after a long cold Russian winter and with Kutuzov's Russians fast on the chase.

Some have depicted Kutuzov as a sort of servant-leader. He knew what he could do and what he could not do. He did not try to control everything around him – a classic error of many top leaders. He cared for his troops, bided his time and opportunistically waited for events to unfold. He often fell asleep during strategy sessions with his top generals. But when he finally let loose guerilla hordes of Russian soldiers onto Napoleon's mighty war machine they readily chased and staggered Napoleon's army back to France in defeat.

Tolstoy noted how the regular Russian artillery troops methodically and calmly went about their business of loading and firing endless canon shots during long battles with the French, despite the constant turmoil and bombs dropping all around them. These were the true heroes who calmly but purposefully carried out their assigned tasks and finally brought Napoleon to his knees. The same seems to apply to Cohasset, whose town employees have not only kept Cohasset running remarkably smoothly, despite the obvious disconnect from top leadership, but they have done so with great distinction – winning awards and recognition all along the way. Cohasset's Best certainly deserve our gratitude and appreciation.

Mike Milanoski's leadership should also not go unrecognized during this time as he unwinds his term as our Acting Town Manger. Whether or not you have supported him as a permanent Town Manager, one abiding characteristic of his leadership style is the credit and recognition he always fully and sincerely gives to Cohasset's town employees. Whenever some award or recognition has been received or whenever something has gone right in our town administration (which is often the case) Mike's first reaction is always to credit the town employees who were responsible for the accomplishment. He does not posture himself as the cause of good government; he gives credit and applauds those who actually accomplish the tasks- and for that he is deserves recognition and our appreciation even though he would not point this out himself.

Cohasset has been around for 400 years and I fully expect it to be around and prospering 400 years from now. Our town is rich in culture, history and tradition. It is populated by many citizens, volunteers and employees who understand the deeper long- term meaning and purpose of a small New England community like ours and thus I am confident that Cohasset will long thrive and prosper because of its good people and that understanding.

SPEAKING FROM THE HEART

'A White Envelope Christmas'

JILL COWIE

On Christmas Eve, I placed a small white envelope on the tree, the note inside telling Mike what I had done, and that this was his gift from me.

Christmas is the story of how one baby born in the time of great hardship and fear brought hope to the world. A story of Mary, Joseph and the critters that made sure the light of this baby's love survived to illumine our lives today. A story that asks, time and time again, how is hope alive in our lives today, how do we make it through times of great hardship? This story, author unknown, is one of my favorite Christmas story remakes, a story that gives me hope every year.

It's just a small, white envelope. It has peeked through the branches of our Christmas tree for the past 10 years. It all began because my husband, Mike, hated Christmas. Oh, not the true meaning of the season, but the commercial aspects, the frantic, last-minute running around, the overspending, the useless gifts given in desperation because you couldn't think of anything else. So I decided to reach for something special, just for Mike. The inspiration came in an unusual way. Our son Kevin, who was 12 that year, was on the junior high wrestling team. Shortly before the holidays, there was a non-league match against a team from a very tough neighborhood in the city, sponsored by an urban church. Our team showed up in their beautiful blue and gold uniforms and brand new wrestling shoes. The other kids were ragtag, to say the least. They didn't even have headgear, the lightweight helmets designed to protect wrestlers' ears. Our kids walloped them; they took every weight class. As each of their boys got up from the mat, he'd swagger around with false bravado, that kind of pride that hurts to watch.

It hurt Mike, who was seated beside me. He loved kids – all kids – and had coached Little League lacrosse, football, and baseball over the years. "I wish just one of them could have won," he said. "They have a lot of potential, but losing like this could take the heart right out of them." That's when the idea for his present came. I decided I would help to level the playing field, as it were. That same afternoon, I went to the local sporting goods store and bought an assortment of wrestling headgear and shoes, and sent them anonymously to the other team.

On Christmas Eve, I placed a small white envelope on the tree, the note inside telling Mike what I had done, and that this was his gift from me. His smile was the brightest thing about Christmas that year, and for many years to come. Each Christmas, I followed the tradition. One year, his gift sent a group of kids with special needs to a hockey game; another year, a check went to a pair of elderly brothers whose home had burned to the ground the week before Christmas.

That small white envelope became the highlight of our Christmas. It was always the last thing opened on Christmas morning, and our children, leaving their new toys for a few moments, would crowd their dad with wide-eyed anticipation as he lifted the envelope from the branches to reveal its contents. The small white envelope never lost its allure.

The story doesn't end there. Last year, we lost Mike to cancer. When Christmas rolled around, I was still so wrapped in grief; I barely got the tree up. But Christmas Eve found me placing an envelope in its branches, somehow comforted by the gesture. In the morning, it was joined by three more. Each of our children, unbeknownst to the others, had placed a small white envelope on the tree for their dad. The tradition has grown, and someday will expand even further, with our grandchildren standing around the tree with wide-eyed anticipation, watching as their fathers take down the envelopes. Mike's spirit, like the Christmas spirit, will always be with us.

Wishing you a white envelope Christmas.

FOR THE RECORD

We're big fans of Facebook

GREGORY MATHIS

We also use Facebook to seek information on stories we're pursuing or feedback on relevant issues in the community.

Facebook, as we know, was created to connect with friends online.

While the social networking concept took root in dorm rooms at Harvard University in the winter of 2004, it has grown into a worldwide phenomenon that today plays an integral part of many people's online experience.

Since the fall of 2006, when the network was opened up to the general masses, billions of people have made Facebook billions of dollars. With all those eyes and that kind of incredible reach on a single platform, it makes sense that businesses of all shapes and sizes have tried to capitalize on such a big audience.

Locally, small businesses use Facebook to promote restaurant menus and specials, while others pass along coupons, product updates and details of events and other interesting tidbits and fun facts. Some of the local businesses we "Like" have an impressive number of Fans.

As many know, our newspapers and their affiliated websites have Facebook pages.

We've tried not to mix too much business with pleasure, so for the most part you'll find links to stories on Wicked Local, although we won't bombard you with every single story or press release. Just the ones we think you'll "Like." We also use Facebook to seek information on stories we're pursuing or feedback on relevant issues in the community.

Beyond those basics, though, we've had some interesting success stories on Facebook.

Facebook pages in Marshfield and Scituate served as information centers during the February 2013 blizzard. With many in both towns without power for days, Fans living in town and out of town logged on to get the latest updates from utility companies and the town. Fans also shared storm photos and provided information regarding what was happening in their neighborhoods. New Fan totals climbed dramatically during that five-day period.

One of our editors, fairly new to covering his town, reached out to Fans to find good places to walk. The responses led him to a number of places that resulted in videos and photo galleries.

He's also asked questions about stories to gauge interest before pursuing. Before writing a story about Lyme disease earlier this year, he put a post on Facebook asking people if they were nervous about the disease following a warning posted on the town website. There were numerous responses, which led to a story that included many personal experiences with Lyme disease.

We've also used Facebook to get news. Recently a high school was evacuated and we had trouble confirming why. The editor posted a note asking if anyone had received information from the school, given we know phone and email messages are sent to parents. Within 10 minutes, we received a Facebook comment and an email with the text of the principal's message, which ended up being a bomb threat.

In another Facebook instance, we received a mystery photo and asked our Fans if anyone knew what it was. Apparently there were at least four of these pylons shown in the photo around town, and the response generated many comments and almost 800 views. Turns out the mystery pylons are sewer vents.

So discover what you're missing. You can easily find our Facebook page by logging on your Wicked Local town website.

Hall came to meet the final candidates.

Then, both Hartford and Senior went through hour-long interviews with the selectmen on Monday and Tuesday, respectively. Both were asked questions that related their work experience to the work that needs to be done in Cohasset.

The selectmen wanted to know how the candidates, if hired, would work with town commissions and boards, work with Town Meeting, tackle issues like the town's outstanding other post-employment benefits (OPEB) liability, whether they had experience in building or managing HR functions, if they had written successful grants, and to explain what their budget processes are.

Hartford and Senior were also asked what they thought the top issues facing Cohasset were.

Senior responded that he should ask the same question of the board, adding, "From a town manager's perspective, you're the folks who set the direction and policy, and town meeting, too." Senior said that he felt "establishing a sense of stability" is important for the town moving forward, along with "getting clarity on policies and procedures."

Senior also said that he feels it's important for the new town manager to help the selectmen and other boards build a consensus, so that Cohasset "is ready to open the next chapter... learning from the past and building on it."

Selectmen Steve Gaumer asked Senior to dig into specifics that he would have gleaned from talking to key employees and department heads. Senior raised HR, which has "come up multiple times," and IT issues as causes for concern. He suggested Cohasset eventually start a technology committee. "I don't know if that's been discussed, but I do think there has to be a strategic IT plan. You don't have to build Microsoft here but... people do have to have the right equipment."

When posed the same question, Hartford listed a limited tax base, dealing with enterprise debt while pursuing capital projects, and changes in technology affecting the way the town offers services as top issues for Cohasset.

"There's clearly a limit in any development in town that could lead to greater revenues. How do you meet your long-term infrastructure costs? There's a lot of debt in regard to water system... How are you going to do the things you want to do in the next 10 years, with school, town facilities, the senior center project, the town hall renovation... being able to meet those needs with a limited revenue growth is big challenge for the community," said Hartford.

Another issue: "Being ready for changes in technology to allow you to deliver services in a more efficient manner," Hartford added. "The municipality needs to be positioned to adapt to those changes so we can take advantage and not be left behind."

Both finalists were also asked to describe what they felt the town manager's relationship to the selectmen.

"It's an important one," said Senior. "It's important to have good communication back and forth so you understand where I'm coming from and what I'm looking to do. It's an ongoing working relationship."

Hartford likewise called the relationship between the two "critical."

"I can't think of a more important relationship than with your direct supervisor," he added. "I'd want the board of selectmen to have confidence in the work I was doing and would work hard to win your trust and confidence... If you have a highly functioning administration the town is much freer to make good long-term choices."

Hartford said he would also meet frequently with the selectmen chair and schedule monthly one-on-one meetings with each selectman to hear their concerns. Selectman Karen Quigley, who posed the question, asked if he would be willing to work with the board in a cooperative way.

Hartford said that while he would want to "understand what the goals of the board are," ultimately the town manager is responsible for making management decisions. "You need to be informed on what I'm doing so you can understand it, so we can be responsive to the direction the board wants to take the town in."

Both candidates expressed an eagerness to come to Cohasset.

Senior said that he wants to take the town to the next level. "You've come from some challenging moments in time," he said. "I feel you're ready to go to the next level... That will not be boring in the slightest. It's an exciting opportunity."

Hartford said he hopes to make a difference in Cohasset while taking on all its challenges.

"I have good experience I can bring here without being so set in the way I've done business in the past that I can't adapt with a new perspective on things... Having had the experience as a chief executive, that adds value to Cohasset: I bring that to the table," said Hartford.

Look for more on this in upcoming editions of the Mariner.

Milanoski named finalist in Carver

Cohasset's Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski has been named a finalist for the Town Administrator position in Carver.

Milanoski said Wednesday that he first interviewed for the job in November and was asked to come back for another round. He is one of four finalists selected by the town's screening committee. Carver also utilized the UMass Collins Center to write town manager qualifications, as did Cohasset. However, Cohasset opted out of forming a screening committee and allowed the Collins Center to select finalists.

Milanoski was not one of the five finalists in Cohasset, although the job description and advertisement written by the Collins Center for both Cohasset and Carver were nearly identical. Both documents for each town ask for seven years of experience "in an executive position that oversees the operations of a complex multi-function public entity governed by an elected public body."

Collins Center senior associate Richard Kobayashi, when asked by selectman Steve Gaumer why Milanoski was not among the finalists, stated at the time that some of the information involved with the search must remain confidential.

Milanoski's employment contract with Cohasset ends on Dec. 31.

The selectmen stand to vote on hiring a new town manager on Dec. 17, after completing second interviews with the top three candidates. Gaumer raised the issue during the Tuesday, Dec. 3 meeting of how the board plans to transition to a new manager.

Milanoski said that for his part, he is willing to do whatever is necessary to ensure a smooth transition when the next town manager takes the helm.

"It's important there is an appropriate transition," said Milanoski. "As a resident and taxpayer, I want the next candidate to succeed and I'll do everything within my ability to help that individual succeed. There's a learning curve for anyone coming out of state to manage a municipality in Massachusetts. I've offered my support to making that person succeed."

Checking it twice

Selectmen to further review TM candidates

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

"One of the town manager's biggest roles is administering a budget. I want to know if a candidate has been late a dozen times over a year on three revolving credit accounts."
Selectman Steve Gaumer

The three Town Manager candidates may have a few additional hoops to jump through before being offered Cohasset's top job.

The Board of Selectmen interviewed five men for the position, inviting three back for second interviews. The final three are Steven Hartford, Grady Miller and Christopher Senior (see related story).

However, the selectmen also discussed conducting background checks on top of initial screenings that were done by the search consultants the board hired from the UMass Collins Center. Due to confidentiality agreements with the candidates, the selectmen are not privy to the information gleaned from the checks. However, the selectmen were told early on by the Center that the final candidates would not have made the cut if there were any red flags.

Selectman Steve Gaumer said that this is not enough assurance for him. "It puts us as at a disadvantage as elected body," Gaumer said during the Tuesday, Dec. 3 meeting. "We're trusting a third party to enforce standards that are consistent with our own... I believe I've got a duty to review things on my own rather than trust a third party, especially when I don't know or trust the third party's standards."

Gaumer would like another credit check to be done, while selectmen vice-chair Diane Kennedy wants to find out about any civil litigation matters. While a credit check, along with verifying the candidates' educational credentials, was already conducted by the consultants, Kennedy noted that the board doesn't get to see the "net" of that.

"We have to assume there is no criminal history, we have to assume from the educational reference check that the degree claimed from the school identified is confirmed," said Gaumer. However, he added, "One of the town manager's biggest roles is administering a budget. I want to know if a candidate has been late a dozen times over a year on three revolving credit accounts.

"The standards by which the candidates passed are still unknown to me," Gaumer concluded.

The issue is once the board receives that information, it becomes part of the public record. Town Counsel Paul DeRensis said any personal information contained in those documents would have to be redacted.

DeRensis said that investigating court matters is also "tricky." A computer search for those types of records would turn up divorces, child custody battles, and other similar matters.

The fact is, said DeRensis, "Anyone who works in public service is going to get sued a lot. If we did a search on this board, your names would come up a lot."

Town Counsel added, "The existence of a lawsuit means very little; it's the judgments that count."

Kennedy said that knowing this made her feel more confident about hiring Cohasset's last permanent town manager, Michael Coughlin, who was removed after six months on the job and is currently suing for reinstatement.

"That's what calmed me down the last time," said Kennedy. "These things happen all the time; they get fired, they file lawsuits against their towns."

The vice-chair said she would still like to know if candidates are in litigation with their former employers. The rest of the board authorized her to pose this question to the three finalists in a phone call, specifically asking if they are involved in any suits regarding their governmental service.

The board also authorized chairman Fred Koed to ask the Collins Center to explain what the criteria was for approving the candidates, specifically in regard to the background checks, and will forward the Center's response to the rest of the board.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby thinks these additional checks are too severe.

"I think we're getting way too persnickety," said Gjesteby. "I can see why you're concerned about liabilities and so forth, but I think the Collins Center has been doing this for many, many years. If anything had turned up, they would have not presented the candidates... I have great confidence in them."

Governance seeks extension

Due to 'sunset' at end of month

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The Governance Committee, due to sunset at the end of the month, is seeking an extension by the Board of Selectmen.

The committee, first formed in the fall of 2011, was appointed by the selectmen to review Cohasset's Town Manager Act (TMA) and bylaws, along with town committees, commissions, and boards. Governance members dug into the TMA and presented revisions, which were approved by the April 2013 Town Meeting and was sent as a bill to the state legislature. It had a State House hearing in July and continues to wend its way through the legislative process. This week, the Senate Counsel proposed minor language changes that are currently being reviewed by Town Counsel.

In the meantime, Governance chairman Kevin McCarthy said that there is still more work to be done. The committee, which meets at 7:30 a.m. every other Thursday in Town Hall, is in the midst of ensuring that the town bylaws will match up with the revised TMA, once it becomes law.

"What we really want to do is focus on the necessary technical work which needs to be done" to ensure "the new town manager act format and bylaws conform," said McCarthy.

"We're hopeful we get renewed for just enough time before the next town meeting in order to finish this task. We don't want to lose the momentum."

McCarthy said that it is "up to the selectmen to figure out how they want to get the task done, either with our committee or another."

The governance chair said that he has no "plan B" if the committee is not renewed.

"If they don't extend us, we sunset; we would have no legal authority to proceed and all of our work would cease," said McCarthy.

"For the sake of the town we want to finish the job off," he added. "With the [TMA] now in its final stages, once it's signed by the governor it automatically becomes law. At that point our existing bylaws no longer conform. The bylaws have to be changed; it needs to be done, and the people who are best able to do it are those that essentially wrote the Town Manager Act and are very familiar with where all the changes are. I feel personally that we have the key people who can now smoothly go ahead and make the changes."

McCarthy further explained why it's important to ensure the TMA and bylaws are in sync. "You have a Town Manager Act which essentially regulates the government from the town manager's perspective. Each town has their own bylaws, and the bylaws we have now reflect the old town manager act. They need to be brought up to date; someone has to do it. We need a few more months to complete that task, have the public meetings and the town meeting has to vote to approve it."

Key changes from the old TMA and new include clarification of the roles and authority of the town manager position and board of selectmen. The new TMA also changed who is eligible to become a permanent town manager, lifting a bar on committee members who would like to apply for the job.

Prior to the revision, anyone who had served the town in a volunteer board capacity would have to wait one year to apply for the job. Now, that bar only applies to the selectmen, and they must wait 15 months before applying.

Cohasset is currently winding down its search for a new town manager, with three finalists vying for the top spot. Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski, who was appointed in March 2012, is not a finalist in Cohasset but is a finalist in Carver's town administrator search.

Debate arose while the TMA was being revised as to whether Milanoski, who was a non-voting member of the Conservation Commission and Governance Committee chair at the time he was appointed Acting Town Manager, was eligible for the permanent position. Milanoski resigned from the two boards and at this point is eligible for the job under either TMA. It is not known why the acting town manager, who publicly stated that he applied for the town manager job in Cohasset, was not named a finalist.

Like the governance committee's scheduled sunset, Milanoski's employment contract with the town expires on Dec. 31.

McCarthy said he sent a memo to the selectmen recently and hopes the board will put governance on the agenda and vote to extend the committee until after the spring Town Meeting, at least. After that, the committee "could be reconfigured," said McCarthy, adding that he hopes the matter is dealt with soon and the board doesn't get "lost in the shuffle."

"We are looking forward to this being addressed quickly and briefly," the chairman said.

COMMENTARY

Politics and fiscal health

LEONORA JENKINS

It was painful listening to the misstatements of a former official with a track record of being against initiatives that help our fiscal condition.

The warrant of the Fall Special Town Meeting reiterated that our elected and appointed boards are committed to improving the town's fiscal health. Through untold hours Mike Milanoski, his financial team and the volunteer boards have realized the fiscal reality of decisions made over the years and are on the road to meeting future obligations and setting aside rainy day funds.

After several meetings, the boards had reached a consensus regarding disposition of current funds and housekeeping articles for policies and procedures going forward.

Therefore the discussion and subsequent vote on Article 5 was disconcerting with the vote of a sitting selectperson and statements of a former one. This article was to implement, through accepting current Mass. Gen. Law, the collection of past due bills to the town by requiring all taxes and fees be current before permits or licenses could be granted.

The town has receivables of residents who are not paying taxes, water and sewer bills, some of which are quite substantial. The yearly estimated taxes and fees are used to develop budgets and when they are not paid, deficits can result.

A lien is put on the delinquent properties that can last for years, sometimes until the property is sold. With Article 5, past due payments are required before the homeowner or business can receive a permit or license. This is good business practice, helps the cash flow for the town and ensures monies are available for needed town services.

In objecting to Article 5, former Selectman Ronnie McMorris presented ludicrous false scenarios, e.g. the town will be denying a dump permit for an unpaid school fee or a child's parking ticket. Unfortunately Ms. McMorris was doing her usual attempt to cloud the issue through half-truths and erroneous statements. The school has its own remedy, withholding diplomas until all bills are paid. Ms. McMorris to suggest otherwise was unconscionable and her examples were just further attempts in her group's ongoing campaign to discredit our Acting Town Manager and his financial team.

It was painful listening to the misstatements of a former official with a track record of being against initiatives that help our fiscal condition. We also witnessed a sitting selectperson, Ms. Quigley, who voted for this article in the warrant before she voted with her supporters against it on town meeting floor.

Guess this was like Ms. Quigley's campaign promise of honoring town meeting votes before she started to actively work against them behind the scenes with state officials.

Is it any wonder why a majority of taxpayers are concerned with the current state of the Board of Selectmen.

SENIOR SCENE

Good times at Senior Center

LOUISE SMULLEN

What a pleasure it is to enjoy a delicious meal while looking out those big glass windows at beautiful Cohasset Harbor.

It feels like winter will be arriving on schedule. Although the day before Thanksgiving was not good for travelers, we were fortunate that it was not snow. I trust everyone enjoyed the holiday with friends and family. This year I was surprised by a visit from one of my young great-granddaughter's who came all the way from Maine with Grandpa.

The seniors have had some good times starting with our Halloween party. Some of the lunch bunch came in costume and members of the staff appeared as a witch, Lady Ga-Ga and a mad scientist.

In October, Visiting Angels Homecare was the presenter at a seminar. They talked about healthy and fun strategies for keeping your memory. Their presentations are always enjoyable and usually include a little demonstration of ballroom dancing. If you are still of dancing age keep it up. It is a good exercise and helps keep your memory.

At the first November seminar, Peg McDonough regional SHINE coordinator spoke about Medicare open enrollment. She told what Medicare covered and what supplemental insurance would cover. She also answered questions about the new health care law.

Before Veterans Day we were pleased to be visited by Lily Sestito on vocals and Diane Kennedy on piano. We had quite a patriotic sing along. Lily also sang some beautiful solos.

The Sauce-Off at the Lightkeepers was well attended. Three members of the staff, Nancy, Richard and Liza, each made their own recipe for pasta sauce. The diners each received three small bowls of pasta, each topped with a different sauce. All sauces were excellent and it was hard to choose. We dropped our votes into a ballot box and when they were counted, Liza Salerno was declared the winner.

Mrs. Hanson and her class of fourth graders joined us one day for lunch. Afterward they entertained with instrumental music, a circus act and magic tricks. The finale was provided by the boys in the class singing a patriotic song. The kids are such fun and we have some good conversations.

You probably saw in the last week's Marnier the report of our annual pre-Thanksgiving dinner at Atlantica. What a pleasure it is to enjoy a delicious meal while looking out those big glass windows at beautiful Cohasset Harbor.

A number of programs are planned for this month. On Dec. 11, musician and entertainer Duane Sullivan will perform songs of the season.

On Dec. 12, at 11 a.m., Register William O'Donnell will be available to discuss protecting your home by way of the Homestead Act. There will also be registry staff available to print a recorded deed or to confirm the status of a mortgage.

On Dec. 18, Lori Welch will perform holiday songs and old time favorites. A festive feast will follow. All programs are at 11 a.m. followed by lunch. You may drop in for the program only, however we would love to have you join us for lunch afterward.

nism. Like Obamacare, Koed, Quigley and Gjesteby can ram through all votes on a party line basis with no concern for the will of the town because nothing is stopping them except good judgment and common decency.

In the 2011 four-way election for selectman, Diane Kennedy received 1,062 votes and Fred Koed 813. In 2013's four-way election, Steve Gaumer received 906 votes and Karen Quigley 805. So, Kennedy and Gaumer garnered 20 percent more of the town's vote than Koed and Quigley. If we had to vote on every issue before us, the Koed, Quigley, Gjesteby agenda would stand no chance. Bill Quigley would be Chief of Police, Mike Milanoski Town Manager, and conservation policies would be equitably applied based on the law instead of emotion and naked political ambition.

We once threw tea into a harbor to protest tyrannical policies and abject stupidity. Maybe it is time for another tax revolt. At the very least, we should make the ballot box a true extension of the will of the town.

Delivering safe, reliable natural gas service to our customers is our top priority. Pipeline safety is something we take very seriously at National Grid. Even though most lines are buried underground, that doesn't mean you can ignore them.

Keep your family and community safe by helping to prevent gas leaks. Always call DigSafe® at 1-888-DIG-SAFE (1-888-344-7233) or 811 before you dig.

Know the signs of a gas leak. We've added a spoiled egg smell that makes natural gas easier to identify. Look for bubbles in standing water, a white cloudy mist or blowing dust, which indicates that an underground gas line may have ruptured; or, listen for a hissing, roaring or whistling sound.

Turkey Day shutout tunes Cohasset up for Super Bowl

By John R. Johnson
For the Patriot Ledger

In the days leading up to their Thanksgiving Day tilt with Hull, the Cohasset football team put special emphasis on not looking past the Pirates to next Saturday's Division 6 state championship at Gillette Stadium.

The message delivered by the Skippers' coaching staff evidently sunk in. Cohasset won its fourth consecutive holiday matchup while managing to rest key players such as running back Cole Kissick for next Saturday's title appearance.

The Skippers (11-1) did all their scoring in the first quarter, striking for three wind-aided touchdowns in a 20-0 victory.

"It would have been easy to overlook this game," said senior quarterback Chris Haggerty, who attempted only three passes due to high winds at Hull's Finlayson Field. "We worked real hard just to focus on this game, but now we can look forward to playing at Gillette."

Cohasset won the coin toss and ran to a 20-0 lead with a strong wind at its back in the first quarter. Cohasset's first score was set up when Hull fumbled on its first drive, giving the Skippers the ball at the Pirates' 34-yard line. It took only four plays for senior back Rocco Laugelle to crash in from the 5-yard line for a 7-0 lead.

Super busy time for coach

Preparation is also off the field

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The past few weeks have been nothing short of hectic for Cohasset head football coach Pete Afanasiw as he and his football team prepare for the MIAA Division 6 State Championship Game at Gillette Stadium against Littleton, Saturday morning.

"It's been insane," Afanasiw said Wednesday, after spending much of the day at Gillette Stadium with his captains for Media Day and the MIAA Captains Breakfast. "It's not just the football, it's the paperwork. There is a lot of dealing with paperwork. There are more permission slips for Gillette, and they want rosters, by number, last name first, first name last. I can't imagine what a real Super Bowl must be like."

Afanasiw doesn't mind it though. The reward far outweighs the extra work.

"Being with the kids is awesome," he said. "They are so excited. That's exciting for me. The kids are fired up. They're ready to play today, but we still have some work to do."

Wednesday was an eye opener.

"It was great getting to see the facility," Afanasiw said. "Getting familiar with it, knowing 'This is where you go' to get to the locker rooms and the field entrance. It was pretty incredible to be on the field. I've never been to the new Gillette Stadium."

With the early 9 a.m. start, a victory will carry a special note in Mass. football history.

"Yes, I might have liked a little later start," Afanasiw said. "But it's all how you look at it. Having the first game, you don't have to wait around for the game, and with a win, we'd be the first State Champion the state has ever had."

With the new MIAA playoff format, this season marks the first time where the East and West play each other for the State Championship.

While the new format is still a work in progress, Afanasiw is pleased with the way it has worked out so far.

"I know there are some problems," he said, referring to the fact that some teams found themselves playing a single opponent twice and sometimes three times in one season . "It can be fixed. It's a step in the right direction. More teams are involved in the playoffs. For us, under the old rules we wouldn't be here. Our one loss to Abington would have left us out with a 10-1 record. That's happened time and again in the South Shore League.

"There was also the factor of three games in nine days if you did make it that far. Hopefully they'll iron out the plan so teams don't have to play two and three times."

Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw has been extremely busy this week preparing for Saturday's Super Bowl at Gillette Stadium.

The name Haggerty has been synonymous with athletic success at Cohasset High School over the last few years. Whenever a football, basketball or baseball team has made a tournament run or pushed for a playoff berth, a Haggerty has typically spearheaded the efforts.

Usually it had been older brother Shane, who graduated last spring and is now playing football at Mass. Maritime Academy, grabbing most of the accolades and headlines.

During his tenure at Cohasset, Shane earned Ledger All-Scholastic nods in football, basketball (he scored more than 1,000 career points) and baseball (he won two state championships).

Younger brother Chris, now a senior at Cohasset, had always been a steady contributor but had never gotten a chance to stand on his own two feet – until now.

Chris Haggerty is a quarterback and co-captain on the Cohasset football team that will compete for a state championship Saturday at Gillette Stadium. The Skippers (11-1) face Littleton (12-0) in the Division 6 final at 9 a.m.

How they got to the Super Bowl

It's been a special season for the Littleton High football team and now it's even more special.

The Tigers earned their spot in the MIAA Division 6 Super Bowl with a 52-26 victory over Turners Falls on Saturday at Westfield State University's Alumni Field.

After playing Ayer-Shirley on Thanksgiving Day, Littleton (11-0) will play Cohasset for the state championship on Dec. 7 at Gillette Stadium in Foxboro (9 a.m.).

"That was a goal, to win a state championship," said Littleton quarterback Alex McLaughlin., who rushed for 75 yards and a touchdown and completed three of four passes for 74 yards and a touchdown, all in the first half. "We want to be the first team to do that."

Littleton jumped out to a comfortable lead early in the game, holding a 24-0 lead at the end of the first quarter and a 46-12 advantage at the end of the first half.

Senior Travis Bassett scored five of the Tigers' touchdowns, while rushing for 100 yards on six carries. He also caught a 30-yard touchdown pass from McLaughlin with 27 seconds left in the first half.

"[McLaughlin] made the decisions," Bassett said. "Obviously, I wanted the ball."

Bassett scored the game's first touchdown on the second play from scrimmage, going through the middle of the line and cutting to the right sideline for a 41-yard scoring run.

Bassett also scored on runs of 5, 10 and 4 yards. He rushed for one two-point conversion.

McLaughlin scored the Tigers' second touchdown on an 8-yard keeper with 7:36 left in the first quarter.

Peter Murphy rushed for three two-point conversions and Elijah Pyram rushed for one.

Pyram also scored Littleton's final touchdown on a 51-yard run with 7:18 left in the third quarter.

"We took [Bassett and McLaughlin] out in the second half," said Littleton coach Mike Lynn. "We're happy to be 11-0 and happy to be playing in a Super Bowl."

In the second half, Matthew Jackson took over at quarterback for the Tigers. Midway through the fourth quarter, Littleton had the ball at the Turners Falls 7-yard line on first and goal, but elected to take a knee four times and turn the ball over on downs while holding a 52-12 lead.

Turners Falls (8-3) scored twice in the first half on touchdown passes from Malcolm Smith to Jalen Sanders. The first one was a 35-yard pass down the left sideline with 6:49 left in the half. The second was a 46-yard pass in the middle of the field.

The Indians added two late touchdowns at the end of the game on a 54-yard pass from Smith to Alex Carlisle and a 37-yard pass from Smith to Sanders.

Turners Falls, a team that reached the Western Mass. Division 4 Super Bowl last year, dressed 21 players, including nine freshmen. The Indians' only losses prior to Saturday were against Division 5 playoff qualifiers. Easthampton and Springfield Cathedral.

Christopher Bales had 1 ½ sacks for Littleton, while Jackson had half a sack and Christopher Renaccio had one.

Connor Bassett had an interception and a fumble recovery. Ryan Clark picked off a pass on a two-point conversion.

Note: Littleton beat Ayer/Shirley 36-8 on Thanksgiving Day.

punt on their second possession, leading to excellent field position for Cohasset. The Skippers turned to Laugelle once again, who scored from 5 yards out for a 14-0 lead after Henry Butenschoen's extra point.

Cohasset took a 20-0 edge when sophomore running back Nick Hall crashed in from the 2-yard line with 1:21 left in the first quarter. Hall, who spelled a resting Kissick, carried the ball 18 times for 70 yards. Laugelle has seven carries for 54 yards.

Hull's best opportunity to score came midway through the third quarter when the Pirates advanced to the Cohasset 20-yard line after nice runs by Ian Macdonald and Matt Frost, and a 10-yard completion from Joe Dubovy to Sean Hauter. Laugelle ended the drive when he picked off Dubovy on the goal line and returned the ball to midfield.

Terrence Dooley also had an interception for Cohasset, his fourth pick in his last three games. Linebacker Brett Dooley made a team-high 10 tackles for Cohasset, including four behind the line of scrimmage in the first half.

The Skippers prepared all week with memories of 2009, when the Pirates upset the playoff-bound Skippers on Thanksgiving and handed them their first loss of the season.

"We were in a similar situation back in 2009 when we were fighting for a perfect season and Hull came out and bit us," said Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw. "We definitely talked to the kids all week about not looking past these guys. Hull always comes out and plays hard. This is their Super Bowl and their seniors always want this game. I give Hull a lot of credit. They came out and battled and our guys rose to the occasion."

have been playing a style more similar to the new one all along.

"I've been talking to Littleton's coach (Mike Lynn)," he said. "The East part of the state is much more committed to leagues. Out there, there are leagues, but they don't have the automatic berth. They use a power ranking system."

In the East, power rankings are used for seeding and wildcard entries.

Littleton brings a 12-0 record to Saturday's game, but beyond that, there are questions.

"They have two kids that are very fast, quarterback Alex McLaughlin (2,557 total yards 18 TD's and more than 1,000 yards rushing) and Travis Bassett (1,025 rushing yards, 564 receiving and 29 TD's)," Afanasiw said. "They are a great one-two punch. Each have rushed for over 1,000 yards and double digit touchdowns. We haven't seen them though. It's hard to tell if they're that good or if it's a measure of their competition. There is no baseline. We haven't played anyone they have."

From what he has seen on films and possible roster numbers, he feels the lines will be key.

"This is one of the only teams we play where we are bigger up front," he said. "We have the physicality of the line. Their line looks solid. They're well coached and don't make mistakes. Still, we don't know that part of the state. It's tough to judge. I think the first five minutes will be important. It will tell us where we stand. How the offensive and defensive lines play will be a telltale sign to let us know if we can do what we want to do. I do feel with our size and athleticism up front that we can control the play. Their line shouldn't be able to move ours around. We want to hit them hard early and let them know we are a hard-hitting, physical defense. We want them to know they've been popped, to swivel their head and wait for that hit. Take them out of their game."

Offensively, if the line can create some space for Cole Kissick and Ryan Gillis, it will be a rough morning for Littleton.

Kissick has run for 1,400 yards this season and can break the big one any time. Gillis has 100-yard game capability any time.

That said, the Skippers will look to the run to set up an outstanding passing game led by quarterback Chris Haggerty, who has passed for nearly 1,200 yards and 14 TD's against five interceptions.

He'll look to Rocco Laugelle and Terence Doonan to lead the air attack, along with his backs.

"Balance," Afanasiw said about the offensive plan. "We want to spread it around offensively and be aggressive on defense."

The Skippers will be rested. With the Super Bowl on the immediate horizon, Kissick sat out Cohasset's 20-0 Thanksgiving Day victory, and once the team had the early 20-0 lead, Afanasiw sprinkled in his bench.

"The kids who have been taking a beating the past few weeks we tried to get them rest," Afanasiw said, adding that his team was playing all-out to win. "We won the toss and had the wind at our back. We kicked off with the wind at our back. We forced a punt and got great field position right away. We scored twice in the first minutes of the quarter and had three by the end of the first. That's when we sprinkled kids in."

Notes:

Cohasset won the coin toss at Wednesday's MIAA Super Bowl Breakfast and will be the home team tomorrow.

The Skippers have some experience when it comes to championship games. Thirteen players on the football roster were also on the roster of the 2013 lacrosse team that played in the State Championship game. (Thanks to boys lacrosse coach James Beaudoin for that fact.)

Cohasset football's last trip to the playoffs was in 2009 when they faced Holliston at Bridgewater-Raynham High School. In that game, the Skippers got touchdown on the board first when Brendan Doonan ran the opening kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown and a 6-0 lead, but despite the early fireworks and a 167-yard performance from Dana Valentine, the Skippers lost 14-6.

Doonan's younger brother Terence is on this season's squad.

A number of players also play baseball, where Afanasiw is the head coach. He has won a pair of Div. 4 State Championships in baseball.

Littleton is located northwest of Boston, right by Route 495 and Route 2, near Harvard, Weston, Boxborough and Acton. Concord is also nearby.

HAGGERTY

good way," said Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw. "He was passionate, but sometimes he'd get the best of himself if he made a mistake. But this year, being more mature, being more experienced, it's definitely visible both in the huddle, on the sideline and in practice. He takes everything in and his football IQ has elevated tremendously."

Chris and Shane have always had a strong relationship and worked well together on the field. Chris connected with Shane, a receiver, for 32 passes for 650 yards and seven touchdowns last year. Ironically, though, Shane's absence this fall is one of the reasons that Chris has emerged as a leader.

"I honestly think (that's true)," said Afanasiw. "He was always kind of in Shane's shadow. They had great chemistry, don't get me wrong, and they did a nice job working together, but with Shane away at college Chris has really taken this team under his own wing."

Chris has done more than elevate his leadership capabilities this season; his production has spiked as well. Haggerty has completed 74 of 125 passes (59 percent) for 1,103 yards with 14 touchdowns and five interceptions. He has also added 194 yards and three more TDs on the ground.

During the Skippers' four-game playoff run Haggerty has completed 67 percent of his attempts with five TDs and two INTs. In a 14-8 win over Millis/Hopedale in the Div. 6 South final he was 14 of 19 for 155 yards with two TDs.

With Shane having moved on – he made 20.5 tackles and averaged 25.2 yards per kickoff return for Mass. Maritime this season – Chris Haggerty has spread the passing-game wealth among Rocco Laugelle (29 catches for 391 yards, 4 TDs), Liam Burke (14-334, 4 TDs), Jack Donohue (13-196, 2 TDs) and Terence Doonan (7-118, 3 TDs).

"Last year we might have shied away from a certain play if Chris weren't in the right state of mind," Afanasiw said. "Where this year from Day 1, we've never had any hesitation. He's made very few, if any, mistakes and he's just done a really good job."

While Chris Haggerty admits that it has become easier to grasp a leadership role without his big brother sharing a huddle, he fully acknowledges that his brother's absence hasn't gone unnoticed.

"It was always nice to know that I could just throw it out to him if I got in trouble," Chris Haggerty said of his former favorite target, "but it's good to know that I'm a captain and a leader. We've been winning, so it's been a lot of fun."

Like most brothers, Shane and Chris have always had a competitive sibling rivalry with one always trying to one-up the other. In most cases it was Shane coming out on top, but Chris has a chance to put a notch on his belt that Shane cannot match.

"Shane obviously had a monster basketball season last year," said Afanasiw, referencing a senior campaign in which Shane averaged 20.4 points per game and was second on the team in assists, rebounds and steals. "I think they got one game away from playing at the Garden, but for Chris to have this opportunity is obviously a nice little feather in his cap that he can hold over his brother in, I'm sure, a very friendly sibling-rivalry-type of way."

The true beauty in the Haggerty brothers' relationship is that while their sibling rivalry has always been competitive, their support for one another has never waned, either.

"Shane's come to as many of my games as he can," said Chris Haggerty, whose older sister Carli was a two-time Ledger All-Scholastic in basketball and won a pair of state titles. "He has his own games at Mass. Maritime but he's come to as many of mine as he can. He's always congratulating me and wishing me good luck.

"He wishes he was here. He's been nothing but supportive about the whole thing."

Why can't you buy our windows from stores or contractors?

We take great pride in custom-building our windows, so we won't let just anyone sell or install them. We take care of the entire process: only we sell, build, install and warrant our windows.

How much stronger is our window material compared to vinyl?

Our exclusive Fibrex material is twice as strong as vinyl, and—unlike wood—requires virtually no maintenance.*

How are we able to install windows in just one day?

Our teams of installers are exceptionally trained, tested, and skilled. This is why most installations—including the clean up—are completed in just one day.

Noted fortepianist and harpsichordist Sylvia Berry has just released her debut CD – Haydn: The London Sonatas – on the Acis label, and she will perform her first official CD release concert at First Parish Cohasset's Trueblood Hall at 3 p.m., 23 North Main St. on Sunday Dec. 15. The CD was recorded on a Broadwood and Son grand piano built in London in 1806 that was restored by Dale Munschy in Somerville in 2011. She will perform solo works as well as chamber music with members of the Handel and Haydn Society period instrument orchestra (Jessica Park, violin; Colleen McGary-Smith, cello) and songs with critically acclaimed mezzo-soprano Thea Lobo. A reception will follow.

In conjunction with this festive event, Ms. Berry is also hosting a winter clothing drive for Second Chances, a 501 (c)(3) nonprofit organization that provides free clothing for people in need in the Boston area. Second Chances also accepts accessories, linens, and baby clothes.

Berry has been hailed for her performances in Early Music America and the Boston Phoenix, and has been a featured performer on WGBH radio. She has been the organist at First Parish Cohasset since 2010.

Admission: $15 general/$12 students and seniors/FREE for children 12 and under.

COHASSET DANCERS

Curtain to rise on 'The Nutcracker'

The curtains will open on Dec. 14th to South Shore Ballet Theatre's sixth annual Nutcracker production. With over 75 local South Shore children in the cast, including several from Cohasset, this is a show you cannot afford to miss. This year SSBT will say goodbye to six seniors, many who have been dancing at SSBT since their doors opened.

The four performances of The Nutcracker are Saturday, Dec. 14th at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 15th at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. Performances will be in Hingham at Derby Academy on Burditt Avenue. All seats are reserved. Tickets are $16. Stop by the school at 24 Rockland St, Hanover or call 781-312-7224. Visit the website at: southshoreballettheatre.com

SSBT was founded in 2008 by Marthavan McKeon. South Shore Ballet Theatre's mission is to provide pre-professional and recreational ballet training in a nurturing environment to dancers of all ages.

SSBT offers classes for dancers age 3 to adult and is located just off of Route 53 on Route 139 in Hanover SSBT's studios cover 5,700 square feet and offer professionally sprung floors, custom mirrors and barres and live musical accompaniment.

Toys for Tots drive in Cohasset

The Cohasset Police Department has joined with the Marine Corps for the annual Toys for Tots campaign. New toys and games can be dropped off at the Cohasset Police Headquarters, on Elm Street, 24 hours a day, and seven days a week though Dec. 24. Toys and games should not be wrapped. For more information, call the station at 781-383-1212.

The mission of the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Program is to collect new, unwrapped toys and distribute those toys as Christmas gifts to needy children.

The Marine Toys for Tots Foundation enjoys one of the best programs to support ratios within the nonprofit world. More than 98 percent of monetary donations go to their mission of providing toys, books and other gifts to less fortunate children. The 2 percent, which is spent on support, principally covers fundraising expenses — not one donated dollar goes to pay for salaries or any other manpower costs. (Source: toysfortots.org)

POLICE

Fender-bender

On Friday (Nov. 29) at 9:47 a.m., officers responded to a minor motor vehicle crash at the intersection of Chief Justice Cushing Highway (3A) and Pond Street. Two vehicles, 2005 Volkswagen, driven by a 71-year-old Hull woman, and a 2010 Toyota, driven by a 53-year-old Scituate man, bumped fenders at the light. There were no reported injuries, no citations, no tows, police said.

Snuck out

On Saturday (Nov. 30) at 2:36 a.m., an officer on patrol observed a 2006 Lexus parked in the Sandy Beach parking lot. An 18-year-old man and a 16-year-old girl, both from Hingham, were inside the vehicle. After determining that the girl was not being harmed, police notified her parents and the girl was transported to police headquarters to be picked up. She had snuck out of the house, police said.

Threats

On Saturday (Nov. 30) at 2:02 p.m., a resident of Fairoaks Lane reported getting threatening texts from a former snowplow contractor. Officers went to the residence and determined that no threats were made.

Summonsed

On Sunday (Dec. 1) at 6:47 a.m., an officer on patrol observed a 2004 Chevy van traveling at an excessive speed in the area of Route 3A and Beechwood Street. Police stopped the van and determined that the operator, a 36-year-old Rockland man, was driving with a suspended license. He will be summoned to court for speeding and operating after license suspension. A co-worker picked up the van.

Parking complaint

On Sunday (Dec. 1) at 1:36 p.m., officers responded to a Hull Street address for a parking complaint. The caller, an abutter, had asked a woman to move her vehicle, at which time she swore at him and entered a local business. Officers located the 50-year-old Hull woman and she agreed to move her vehicle.

3-car crash

On Sunday (Dec. 1) at 2:09 p.m., officers responded to a 3-vehicle crash on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A). A 1998 Volvo sedan, operated by a 49-year-old Hingham man, slowed to make a left into Old Colony Square, when it was rear-ended by a 2009 Toyota, driven by a 34-year-old Hanover woman. As a result of being rear-ended by the Toyota, the Volvo was pushed into northbound traffic and hit a 2013 BMW SUV head-on, police said. The BMW was being operated by a 49 year-old Scituate man. All three vehicles were towed, and the operator of the Toyota was cited for following too closely.

Sick fox

Several reports of a rabid fox have been reported, including a dog being bitten at 34 Atlantic Ave., and a sighting on Stevens Lane. Officers have not been able to observe this fox, but advise residents in these areas to keep domestic animals in the yard and call animal control if one is sighted.

Intoxicated

On Sunday (Dec. 1) at 10:08 p.m., an employee of Mr. Dooley's called to request a ride for an intoxicated patron. Officers on scene determined that the 54-year-old Amherst man was intoxicated and he was transported to a friend, who lived a short distance away.

Not missing

At 4 p.m. on Monday (Nov. 25), the desk officer at the police station received a call from the Osgood School principal. A 6-year-old student had not arrived home after being dismissed from school. The boy's mother had called the school to report him overdue. The boy had never boarded the bus to go home. A short time later, the boy's mother reported that a family friend had picked the boy up for a play date on the wrong day. Both mother and son were re-united without incident, police said.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF DEC. 16, 2013

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Careful, Lamb. Don't let your generous nature lead to some serious overspending as you contemplate your holiday gift-giving. Your social life kicks off into high gear by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A positive attitude helps you weather annoying but unavoidable changes in holiday plans. Aspects favor new friendships and reinforcement of existing relationships.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Demands on your energy level could be much higher than usual as you prepare for the upcoming holidays. Be sure to pace yourself. Friends and family will be happy to help.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't allow a suddenly icy reaction from a friend or family member to continue without learning what caused it — and what can be done to restore that once warm and caring relationship.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A relationship seems to be unraveling, mostly from a lack of attention. It might be a good idea to ease up on whatever else you're doing so you can spend more time working to mend it.

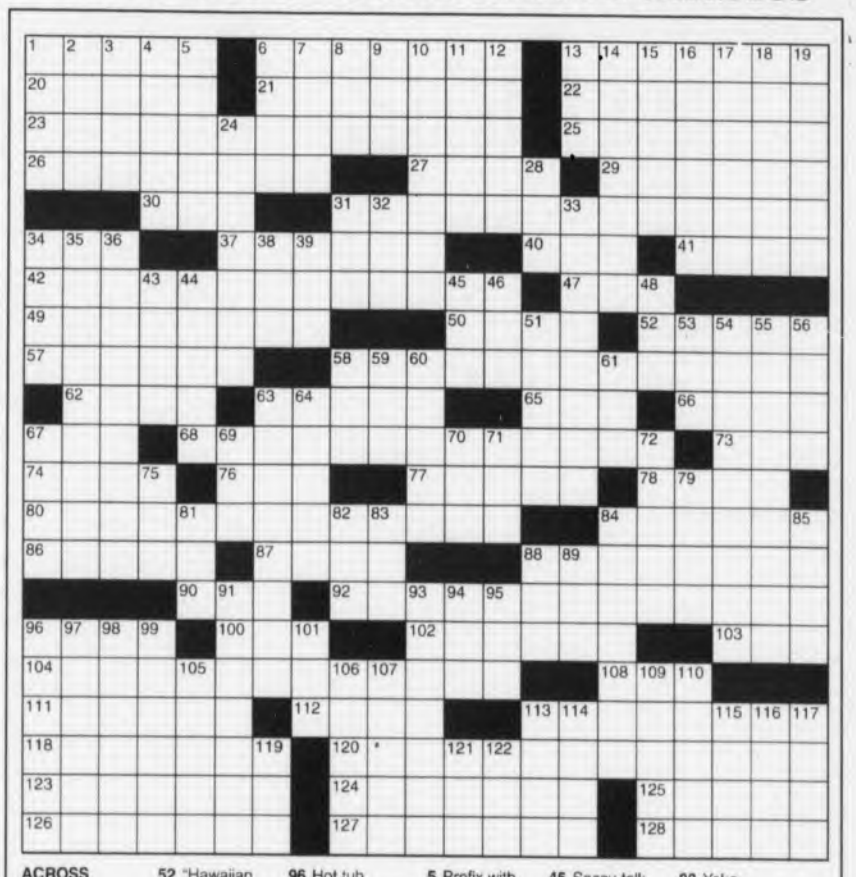
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) New facts emerge that not only help explain the recent rift with a trusted colleague, but also might provide a chance to wipe the slate clean and make a fresh start in your friendship.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family member's personal situation is, fortunately, resolved in time for you to get back into your hectic round of holiday preparations. An old friend might bring a new friend into your life.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Pace yourself in meeting holiday pressures and workplace demands to avoid winding up with a frayed temper and a Scorpian stinger that lashes out at puzzled kith, kin and colleagues.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A financial matter requires close attention. Also, news from a trusted source provides the means to help sort out a long-standing state of confusion and put it into perspective.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to reinforce family ties. Make it a priority to assess and resolve all outstanding problems. Start the upcoming holiday season with a full measure of love.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't be pressured into a so-called solid-gold investment. Wait until the holiday distractions are over. Then take a harder look at it. You might find that the "gold" is starting to flake off.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A former friend might be trying to heal the breach between you by using a mutual friend as an intermediary. Best advice: Keep an open mind despite any lingering bad feelings.

(c) 2013 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of saying the right thing at the right time. Your friendships are deep and lasting.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles?

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOLIDAY CHEER

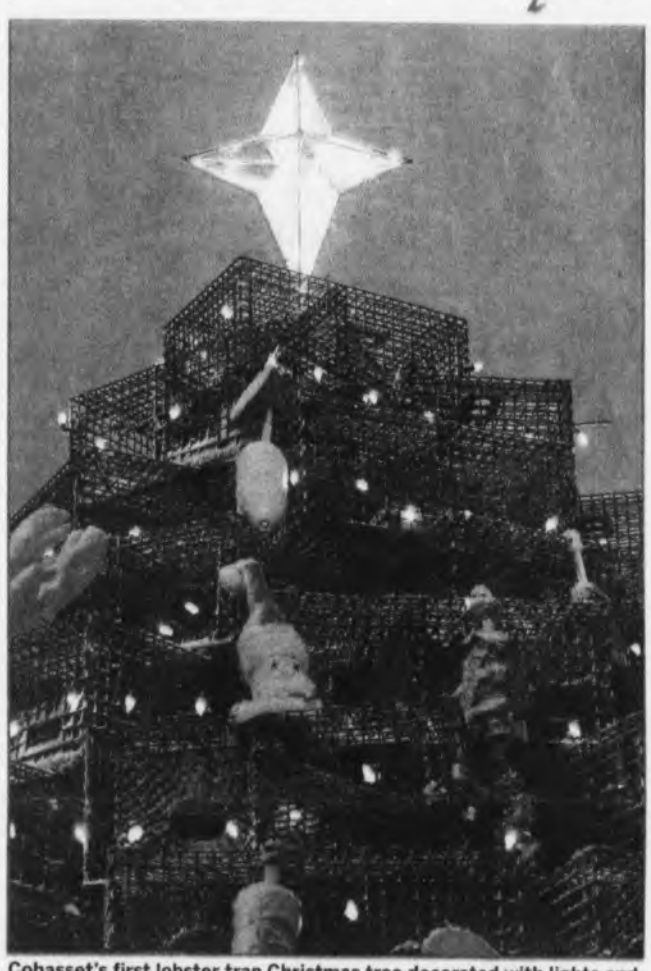
Christmas, Cohasset-style

Lobster trap tree on harbor has nautical flair

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

O lobster tree, o lobster tree, you're made of traps and buoys...

So the tune needs a little work. But the effort to build Cohasset's first lobster trap Christmas tree was a resounding success, as evidenced by the 24-foot tall structure that was erected last week along the harbor.



The quirky, nautical conical structures have become staples in many coastal New England towns during the holidays. Cohasset's tree was constructed with 400 lobster cages and 775 white lights, adorned with buoys from local lobstermen, decorated by merchants, residents and their children, and crowned with a four-foot nativity star.

The lobster trap tree was the brainchild of resident John Covell, who had heard of the phenomenon in other coastal towns and wanted Cohasset to have one of its own.

"About a year ago some friends of mine from Hull told me about a lobsterman who had built a small lobster trap Christmas tree on the beach in Hull... I never got the chance to see it, but I loved the idea," said Covell. "As a result, I went online and found other lobster trap Christmas trees in other seafaring towns. It's really a community event."

The construction and lighting on the tree was a town event that attracted over 100 people last weekend, starting with the con-

CPC UPDATE

Projects pitched

Hearing yields varied proposals

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

A cross-section of Cohasset attended Monday night's Community Preservation Committee (CPC) public hearing to suggest possible town projects for the board to fund.

Representatives from the Town Hall Restoration and Renovation Committee, Cohasset Swim Trust, Housing Authority and a few private citizens pitched ideas to for the CPC's consideration. One CPC member noted that each of the suggested projects represented the four categories the CPC can fund: historical preservation, open space, recreation and affordable housing.

"It was exciting; we had something from each of the four areas tonight," said member Susan Sardina.

The CPC is an outgrowth of the state Community Preservation Act (CPA), a 12-year-old law that set the stage to increase the amount of historical preservation, open space, affordable housing, recreational facilities, and other community enrichment projects. There are currently 155 communities in Massachusetts that have adopted the CPA.

The CPC is required to set aside 10 percent of its revenues, excluding the state's matching funds, for recreation, open space and affordable housing in particular. The funds come from a 1.5 percent surcharge on Cohasset property taxes with some level of state match.

The committee is also required by statute to hold an annual hearing seeking community input on how the CPA grant monies should be spent. The CPC is considering a mid-January deadline for fiscal year 2015 grant applications.

Monday's meeting was more of an informal pitch session than a night of formal presentations, but the suggested projects were varied.

SWEET TREATS

Baked opens second shop

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset village just got a little sweeter.

Across the street from its sister café 5 South Main comes Baked, whose slogan is "The Sweeter Side of 5 South Main." Baked, a café and bakery, is expanding from its Scituate location on 763 Country Way near the train, where it has been for two and a half years.

Baked is described on its website as an "old school bake shop with a funky side," owned by Jenn Warshaw and her mother, Maggie. Warshaw describes her style as "Europe meets San Francisco," which is evidenced by her love of Belgian chocolate and cappuccinos and "deep sea" blue paint on the walls.

The bake shop's newest location is also an intriguing clash of old meets new, formerly housing the town fire house, jail, and most recently, a floral shop. Warshaw said that some jail cells and a fireplace were removed during renovations. While keeping some things the same, she added bamboo floors for an eco-friendly element, sparking that California vibe.

"I love this building," Warshaw shared on a snowy afternoon, even as the shop itself was still under construction. "It's very quaint. There are lots of interesting stories" of the building's past, she added. "Everyone who comes in has a story."

Warshaw's story is this: she first got into the food business by working with

The Mariner caught up with First Parish pianist Sylvia Berry this week. Sylvia has just released her debut CD – Haydn: The London Sonatas – on the Acis label, and she will perform her first official CD release concert at First Parish Cohasset's Trueblood Hall at 3 p.m., 23 North Main St. on Sunday Dec. 15. COURTESY PHOTO

Sylvia Berry

Name: Sylvia Berry.

Occupation: Professional pianist who specializes in playing historical keyboard instruments (harpsichord, fortepiano, organ, clavichord) from the 17th, 18th, and early 19th centuries. I also teach piano lessons, and play organ and piano at First Parish in Cohasset.

Best day of your life: The day I got my acceptance letter from New England Conservatory. I had only taken piano lessons for five years (from the ages of 13-18), and I got in. One of my teachers (not my piano teacher, she was wonderful!) told me I wouldn't get in because I'd started so late, and because "conservatories only take people with very special talent." So, the second best day of my life was probably telling that teacher that I'd gotten accepted to NEC with a scholarship to boot. Well, meeting my husband is way up there too, of course!

Best vacation: A week spent in Vienna while I was living in Holland. Visiting the city where some of my favorite composers lived and performed (Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert).

Favorite season: Summer.

Favorite holiday: Fourth of July.

Favorite junk food, meal or dessert: Popcorn.

Best book: "The Time of Our Singing" by Richard Powers.

Best movie or actor: Too difficult! I love Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall. But I also love the Marx Brothers. One of my all-time favorite movies is "Rear Window" by Alfred Hitchcock. It's amazing that all that action happens in such a confined space. The music's great, too! More recently, I loved "Silver Linings Playbook," partly because I'm from Philadephia!

Best TV show: I don't watch TV. When I was growing up, I loved all the music and ballet that was on public television. The concerts featured classical, jazz, and opera. I was very lucky to be exposed to that at a young age.

Best music, group or artist: Too difficult, again! I can't pick one. I love my "Viennese" composers I listed above (Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert.) But I also love somewhat obscure 17th century keyboard music by composers such as Louis Couperin, Johann Froberger, Jan Pieterszoon Sweelinck, William Byrd, and Girolamo Frescobaldi. I love jazz VERY much, but don't play any. I also like to listen to gospel, R&B, James Brown, and Motown! ! One last one! I love the pianist Glenn Gould. My parents had a lot of his Bach recordings, and listening to them was one of the things that made me want to become a musician.

Pet peeve: It turns out I have a lot of these, which makes me feel like a curmudgeon! I'll go with people not using their turn signals. It's not only rude to your fellow drivers, but potentially dangerous. In general, driving in Mass. is no picnic. I grew up in Philadelphia and never had to drive. I ended up learning to drive in Oberlin, Ohio while at Oberlin Conservatory. Drivers were very patient and courteous there. Driving here was a real shock in the beginning!

Most embarrassing moment or fun fact: I like to dance, and sometimes I don't realize that I'm dancing in public. If I'm in a store and a song comes on that I like, I'll dance to it. It's not until I catch someone looking at me that I realize I'm doing it.

Person you would most like to meet: Franz Joseph Haydn. Not only because I play a lot of his music (my debut CD is music by Haydn), but because I've read his letters and a few biographies and he seems to have been an incredibly warm, generous, and funny person. I also have a few questions about his music I'd love to ask him!

Goal: To demystify classical music a bit. I enjoy telling audiences about the composers and the people they composed for because it seems to really bring this music to life for people. I also like talking about the instruments I play, which are much different from the pianos we're used to today.

Biggest worry: That I might not live up to my potential.

Best part of Cohasset: First Parish was my introduction to this town, and I will always have a special place in my heart for this wonderful congregation. For one thing, they enjoy all kinds of music! It's the first church I've worked in where I could play Mozart one week and songs from Vince Gauraldi's "Charlie Brown Christmas" the next! It is also incredible to step inside a building that was built in 1747 every week. So much history there! Also, I must say there's some good eating to be done in Cohasset! I've eaten at many of Cohasset's restaurants, but I especially love 5 South Main and the pastries and chocolates at French Memories. You all are very lucky to have a REAL French bakery in town!

Three-car crash closes part of 3A for half hour

By Mary Ford

Officer Chris Dias looks at the 2007 Honda sedan that was sideswiped by another vehicle and hit the guardrail following what started as a rear-end collision on Tuesday in wintry conditions. COURTESY PHOTO

A 2007 Honda sedan, operated by a 29-year-old Boston woman, was traveling south on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) between Pond Street and Mendel Road at around 3:40 p.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 10), when it slowed in traffic and was hit from behind by a 2006 Honda SUV, operated by a 57-year-old Weymouth man, police said. The collision cause the Honda, driven by the Boston woman, to careen across 3A into the northbound lane where it was sideswiped by a 2006 Mercury operated by a 23-year-old Scituate woman.

The Boston woman's car hit the guardrail on the northbound side. She was transported to the hospital with non-life-threatening injuries, police said. The Weymouth man was cited for following too closely on a state highway. All three vehicles were towed from the scene and 3A had to be closed for approximately 1/2 hour while crews removed debris and the MassDOT sanded slippery areas, police said.

OUI arrest

A 56-year-old Quincy man is facing a third-offense, drunken-driving charge after police observed the 2000 Mercury Marquis he was driving swerving all over the road on Sunday afternoon (Dec. 8).

Cohasset police received a radio dispatch from Scituate police to be on the lookout for the Marquis that a 9-1-1 caller had reported as being driving erratically all over the road and onto the shoulder along Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) in Scituate toward Cohasset. After the arrest, the caller went to the Cohasset Police Station and filled out an affidavit about what she had observed, police said.

After receiving the BOLO from Scituate, Cohasset officers intercepted the car on 3A and Sohier Street. They pulled behind the car to observe its erratic operation and pulled it over.

The operator, Joseph T. Monahan, 56, of 273 Newport Ave. #14, Quincy, failed a series of field sobriety tests. He showed the signs and symptoms of intoxication, police said. As a result, police had probable cause to arrest Monahan for drunken driving. A check through the registry showed that this was Monahan's third drunken driving offense, meaning that the had been convicted twice for OUI (alcohol), once out of Foxboro and once out of Sharon, police said. The registry also showed that he had a suspended license for non-payment of fees.

Monahan was arrested and charged with OUI (alcohol, third offense) and for operating after license suspension. He was held overnight at the station and transported to Quincy District Court for arraignment the following morning.

Lawnmower

A 76-year-old Hingham man sought the help of Cohasset police on Monday (Dec. 2) in retrieving his John Deere riding lawnmower that he had left at a mechanic's house in Cohasset six months ago and which had not been worked on as promised. Police escorted him to the house and the man, who had a truck with him, was able to get his lawnmower back.

Summonsed

A 45-year-old Cohasset woman is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation, operating an uninsured vehicle and speeding, police said. An officer was on radar patrol on Sohier Street on Tuesday morning (Dec. 3) around 9:30 a.m. when he clocked a black SUV traveling 45 in a 30 mph zone. He pulled the vehicle over on King Street by the Mobil Mart. Investigation revealed the female operator's license had expired and the 2003 Toyota SUV she was driving was unregistered.

Unwanted

Police called the former boyfriend, who lives in Marshfield, of a 42-year-old Cohasset woman after she complained to them last Tuesday (Dec. 3) that her ex-boyfriend kept calling and texting her in an effort to get back together. Police spoke to the man who agreed to stop contacting his ex-girlfriend.

Vandalism

Police responded to an eatery on Ripley Road about an incident of apparent vandalism on Wednesday (Dec. 4). Someone dumped a bucket of grease on the front deck by the main entrance of the establishment, police said. The employees planned to clean it up after showing it to police. The business did not have any idea who may have put the grease there.

Deer struck

A deer was killed last Thursday (Dec. 5) around 4:30 p.m. after it was struck by two cars on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (3A) near Mendel Road. One of the vehicles had minor damage. Both cars were headed south when they collided with the deer, police said.

Fraud

A 22-year-old Cohasset woman went to the police station on Thursday (Dec. 5) to report that her bankcard had been compromised. The bank notified her about suspicious activity on her charge card that included a $715 charge at a Target store in the Bronx, N.Y. She needed to report the crime so her bank could cover the charge, police said.

Scam

A 53-year-old Linden Drive woman reported to police last Friday (Dec. 6) that she had received a call that was an attempted scam. She did not provide any personal information and was not out any money, police said. She had received an automated phone call with a woman's voice asking her to press #1 for customer service because there had been suspicious activity on her bankcard.

She hung up and called her bank that told her it was a scam, police said.

Larceny

A 30-year-old Avalon Drive resident reported to police on Friday (Dec. 6) that about $2,000 in antique furniture had been stolen from his garage at the complex, including an antique mirror, accent table, plant stand, and two chairs. The man had left his garage door partially up to allow air to circulate and it is pos-

HOLIDAY PROGRAM

Police greeting cards include a safety reminder

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

What goes through a motorist's head when he or she sees the blue lights of a police cruiser is likely anything but a holiday greeting.

However, Cohasset police are changing that perception during the holiday season with a new, creative way to remind drivers to follow the rules of the road. They are handing out picturesque holiday cards wishing "Peace, Love, Joy" along with a warning about the alleged traffic violation.

"It is a pleasant surprise when you are pulled over and assuming the worst," Acting Chief William Quigley said. He explained that the intent is to educate the driver rather than mete out punishment.

The holiday warnings are in lieu of a verbal warning for very minor traffic violations such as going slightly above the speed limit, having a brake light out, or failure to use a turn signal, Quigley said.

Verbal warnings and in this case "holiday warnings" for minor infractions are logged but no official documentation goes to the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

Whether to issue a "holiday" warning (rather than an official written warning or traffic ticket) is still solely up to the discretion of the police officer.

Quigley said so far the feedback has been positive. Police have issued about a dozen of the holiday warnings so far. The acting chief said he hopes to issue the cards annually during the holidays.

He said the idea came to him during discussions about Christmas cards at the station. "So we took it a step further," Quigley said.

School security seminar held

The program was presented by A.L.I.C.E., which educates on how to deal with violent intruder incidents. Parents of schoolchildren were also invited to attend a presentation by A.L.I.C.E. on Wednesday evening, Dec. 11.

School administrators, employees and town officials participated in a special seminar on school safety this week.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski reported that he, several police officers including Acting Chief William Quigley, the school district Superintendent, Barbara Cataldo, and all of the teachers attended a seminar on school security "to figure out how we as a town can better protect our children." The program was presented by A.L.I.C.E., which educates on how to deal with violent intruder incidents.

Parents of schoolchildren were also invited to attend a presentation by A.L.I.C.E. on Wednesday evening, Dec. 11.

Cohasset officials participated in a two-day training program with A.L.I.C.E. earlier this year.

Milanoski also stated that the town has "invested additional revenue funds into making the [school] buildings more secure. Some additional security measures are being done this week, including blast-proof doors."

School security has been a subject at recent school committee meetings. Cataldo shared recently that grant monies have been received to install a new LobbyGuard sign-in kiosk.

Rehabbing Town Hall

Committee to pitch new design this winter

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset Town Hall: A brief history

- 1857: Town Hall is built, including first and second floor offices and the theater auditorium.
- 1928: The building's first major renovation sees the space flipped, placing the auditorium on the first floor and offices on the second.
- 1987: The "New" Town Hall addition is built.

Over the years, the Town Hall space has been used as office space, meeting space, theater, gymnasium, library and jail.

Rehabilitation goals:
Bring building into compliance with health, fire, ADA and building safety codes;
Energy efficiency;
Reorganized space for departmental and town office efficiencies;
Create more functional space for residents and visitors;
Restore the valuable historic elements of the building.

Town Hall is in need of a facelift, according to Cohasset officials.

The town has its own Town Hall Renovation and Restoration Committee comprised of several town employees and residents who serve on volunteer boards, who all spend a great deal of time in Town Hall.

"We've got a broad reach of different groups of people that use Town Hall, all weighing in on where things need to go and why, and what's going to be cost-efficient," said the committee's chairman, David Farrag.

The committee is in the midst of reviewing potential design schemes to restore and renovate the building that could be presented to town boards, from the Selectmen, Capital Budget, and the Community Preservation Committee, over the winter with the goal of coming before the spring 2014 Annual Town Meeting.

The chair approached the Community Preservation Committee this week about utilizing state grants to restore the "Old" Town Hall, which was built in 1857 and renovated in 1928. However, it turns out that the "new" portion of Town Hall, an addition built in 1987, is actually worse for wear.

"It's just as deplorable if not worse than the old side," said Farrag.

A recent building envelope study conducted on the newer side of the building revealed that it is plagued with everything from rotting wood, excessive moisture, chipping paint, and a roof in need of repair.

"It is dramatic," the chairman said of the organic growth and mildew coming out of the vents, and "windows only held in with screws, not nails."

In addition, said Farrag, an increase in the number of town employees and committee members using the building calls for more office and meeting space, and more efficiency overall. Farrag also said that with the Avalon apartment complex that was built two years ago and the Toll Brothers estate currently under construction, the town's population is expanding.

This could necessitate adding a third voting precinct, which would increase the traffic flow on voting day in the Town Hall auditorium (part of the old side of the building).

CPC funding could be used to help rehab the old side, in the name of historic preservation. CPC chairman, Russ Bonetti, said during his board's Monday night meeting that the project sounds expensive, so if the CPC votes to take it on, they might have to bond it.

Other funding mechanisms are being looked into by the committee in order to have the necessary work completed. Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski included rehabbing Town Hall as part of his 10-year capital improvement plan.

"We know it needs to be done, so we need to plan," Milanoski said in a phone call Wednesday. "It's much too easy to defer maintenance on our infrastructure, and then repairs become twice as expensive as they could have been."

Town Hall "is a great example of a building that has not been properly maintained," he added. "Being on the common of our community, the core of our community... It cannot be ignored."

CPC member Margie Charles likewise noted during the CPC meeting that it was a shame that work done in the late 1980s is already falling apart. Member Alex Koines suggested that any future improvements done to Town Hall should become part of a yearly maintenance plan.

Farrag said that the Capital Budget Committee is looking into it, and chalked many of the building's problems up to the construction of the era. "It's the building materials used during mid-eighties construction; it doesn't stand the test of time."

The restoration and renovation committee has been charged with bringing the whole building up to code for health and fire safety, make sure it's ADA-compliant for handicapped accessibility, along with finding ways to make the structure more energy-efficient, and reorganize the office space, all while still keeping the structure's historic elements.

Next steps

The committee is working with HKT Architects and reviewing possible design concepts for Town Hall. The ultimate goal is to have a design recommendation ready to go for the Annual Town Meeting in spring 2014.

"The town hall you want to have is multi-functional," said Farrag.

BRIEFLY

Third Town Manager finalist to interview

The Board of Selectmen will interview a third finalist for the Cohasset Town Manager position on Monday, Dec. 16. The selectmen interviewed the other two finalists last week. Both men also attended open houses held at the fire station on Monday and Tuesday, where town employees, department heads, committee members, and the general public were invited to meet and greet the candidate.

Grady Miller of Narragansett, Rhode Island, is the last finalist to be interviewed before the selectmen make a decision. There will also be a meet and greet for Miller at the fire station from 2 to 3 p.m. on Monday.

The selectmen previously interviewed five finalists and invited three back for second interviews, Miller along with Steven Hartford of Westfield, Rhode Island and Christopher Senior of Port Washington, New York. The board is expected to make a decision and could appoint a town manager during their Tuesday, Dec. 17 meeting.

The selectmen launched a search for a permanent town manager in July, hiring the UMass Collins Center to craft a town profile and town manager job description. The Center did the same for the town of Carver, where Cohasset's current Acting Town Manager, Michael Milanoski, is a finalist for town administrator. Milanoski, who has worked as ATM since March 2012, was not among the five finalists in Cohasset.

PROJECTS

Historic preservation

David Farrag, chairman of the Town Hall Restoration and Renovation Committee, brought the CPC up to speed on how plans to rehabilitate Town Hall are proceeding. He cited a lot of the problems found in the building structure that were uncovered during a recent building envelope study and also discussed the population growth in Cohasset as another factor as to why the building needs some upgrades.

"There are more town hall employees now, more committees and more meeting space needed, and substantive change in the Cohasset population... We're most likely going to need a third precinct" for voting, said Farrag, thanks to additions like the Avalon apartment complex and upcoming Toll Brothers estate.

Since Farrag's committee is seeking to restore and repair the "Old Town Hall" portion of the building complex (the "new" side is an addition built in 1987, also reportedly in need of repair), this is something that could be funded by the CPC.

First, the town hall committee will present a conceptual design plan, which they hope to do over the winter months. While the potential project costs are not yet known, Farrag hinted that it could be quite expensive. CPC chairman Russ Bonetti said that the CPC could always bond the project.

"We can leverage our cash by bonding it on our own," said Bonetti. "It sounds like it's going to be big money."

Farrag said, "It comes down to a policy decision by you guys, by statute what can be done."

CPC members appeared to support the idea right off the bat. Todd Goff, who is also on the town hall committee, said that the board is "doing due diligence to consider every option, not rushing to conclusions. There's a general consensus that they want to get it right."

CPC member Alex Koines noted that it's Cohasset's duty as a town to take care of its historic properties. "Many towns are guilty or letting their buildings go," adding that any improvements to the building should be included on a yearly maintenance schedule.

Also falling under the category of historic preservation is Sewer Commissioner Wayne Sawchuk's idea that the town should restore the pavilion on Border Street that honors Captain John Smith's landing in Cohasset nearly 400 years ago, especially with the 400-year anniversary approaching in 2014.

The pavilion was erected in 1914, said Sawchuk, but he thinks its roof requires repair. He is suggesting a re-roofing it with a rubber roof.

Sawchuk also suggested improving another iconic Cohasset landmark: Beacon Rock, which was recently given a new staircase thanks to an Eagle Scout project, which Sawchuk helped scout Jack O'Brien to complete.

Sawchuk said that while the view from Beacon Rock overlooking the harbor is a beautiful spot with a "spectacular view," he's concerned the new staircase might have created "an attractive nuisance." He is concerned about public safety involved with the climb to the top of the rock behind the Lightkeepers House, where a semaphore tower once stood.

A single-rod iron railing with a circle could solve the problem, said Sawchuk, adding that he would only want to install something that would have existed there 100 years ago when the tower was still there, in keeping with town tradition.

Sardina said she wouldn't want to see a railing that would take away from the "natural" spot, and Sawchuk agreed, adding that a railing could simply serve as the "backdrop" for when people take photos on the rock, not something to detract from the natural aspect of the site.

Recreation

The Cohasset Swim Trust is hoping to build a new structure with the CPC's help. Bonetti noted that until the CPA law was changed last year, the CPC could not previously take on recreation projects.

Chief concerns with the current swim trust building, which was erected in 1972, include increased maintenance costs, problems with the roof and plumbing, and failure to comply with handicapped-accessibility laws.

Diana Karcher of the Swim Trust said that she hopes a new swim building could go hand in hand with the new Senior Center and "become a village."

The proposed new building is estimated to cost $800,000. According to Keith Conforti of the Swim Trust, the design firm that was hired to draft a design scheme indicated that it would be cheaper to start from scratch than to renovate the current building.

Bonetti said the CPC could also look at bonding this project, if necessary.

Affordable housing

Taffy Nothnagle of the Cohasset Housing Authority said that while she did not come to the CPC with a proposal, she did have some updates and possible changes to share with the board. One of the CHA's buildings, Nothnagle shared, is in a state of disrepair.

The state-owned building could be sold while a replacement is built. Nothnagle said that the state has agreed to provide architects and erect a new four-person unit on town property and relocate the folks who live in the current house. She hopes to see this happen within the next year.

CPC member Margie Charles noted that the CPC could look into having the current house turned into another affordable housing unit, since the board has a "public purpose" to look into affordable housing opportunities. Nothnagle said that it's up to the state since they own the property.

Bonetti explained that the CPC has to set aside 10 percent of its annual income for affordable housing. "We now have just shy of $90,000," he said. "We also have unreserved funds not limited to the $90,000."

Open space

Resident Susan Bryant approached the CPC with a request to help create more walking trails to connect various open space locations across towns. She suggested a system of networking trails, presenting an open space plan for the town drafted in 2010.

"One of the best things about preserving open space is making it contiguous," said Bryant, adding that having more "foot access" in Cohasset could lead to "more appreciation for everybody about our town, more interactions, and wonderful freedom for people of all ages."

CPC member Clark Brewer, who also serves on the Planning Board, talked about a corridor study of Route 3A currently underway that is exploring sidewalks, shoulders for bike paths, and connector roads. "I agree — we should have safe ways to get from here to there," said Brewer.

Bonetti said that the CPC helped to fund the open space plan in 2010 and that it was good to see someone bringing it forward again.

Howie Alholtz, a Cohasset attorney who was in the audience, said he was also supportive of the idea. "Connecting all of these trails... you'd run into people, almost like the Robin Hood days." He also noted that sidewalks and better access to the town's commuter rail should have been "mitigated as part of the negotiations" for putting the train in town. "It's a liability issue."

Altholtz has been a critic of some CPC initiatives in the past, and made a presentation to the board earlier this year with suggested changes, including holding a public hearing and saving CPC articles for the spring Annual Town Meeting, which are currently being implemented.

Altholtz said after the meeting that he is pleased with the direction in which the CPC is going.

"I've been an advocate of change in the group, so I think it's appropriate to show up and compliment them. I want to support them," said Altholtz. "I appreciate they're moving in the direction with a better process — with enhanced public hearings and article presentation at annual town meeting, as opposed to special. That leads to a better-informed public and greater participation, which helps the program and serves the town's interests. It broadens the applicant base and helps limit the influence of special interest groups.

"I also like increased attention to the financial resources of applicants, which makes good sense," Alholtz added. "All the projects presented were interesting with the right emphasis on town property and private projects with widespread community benefit."

Look for more on these issues in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

CPC public hearing requirements

The following is the official requirement for Community Preservation Committees:

The Community Preservation Committee shall study the needs, possibilities and resources of the city or town regarding community preservation. The committee shall consult with existing municipal boards, including the conservation commission, the historical commission, the planning board, the board of park commissioners and the housing authority, or persons acting in those capacities or performing like duties, in conducting such studies.

As part of its study, the committee shall hold one or more public informational hearings on the needs, possibilities and resources of the city or town regarding community preservation possibilities and resources, notice of which shall be posted publicly and published for each of two weeks preceding a hearing in a newspaper of general circulation in the city or town.

FINANCE UPDATE

Milanoski forecasts 10-year and 20-year budgets

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

This holiday season, Cohasset has good reason to celebrate — as far as town finances are concerned.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski reported this week that the state Department of Revenue (DOR) has approved the town's tax rate and recap of fiscal year 2014. This allowed Milanoski to release a 20-year proforma, or budget forecast, for Cohasset. This was expanded from a five-year forecast he created for the FY13 budget shortly after he took the helm as acting town manager in March 2012.

According to Milanoski, this expanded financial tool will allow the town to better project its future revenue and expenditures to meet the Town Meeting-approved Financial Management Policies that seek "to develop a sustainable budget that provides the level of service Cohasset can afford within its known projected revenues."

Milanoski credited the town's financial team, including Mary Quill, Town Assessor; Paula Linhares, Treasure Collector; and Mary Gallagher, Finance Director/Town Accountant.

The acting town manager said that after consulting with town department heads, he is releasing his 10-year Capital Improvement Plan. The Capital Plan includes reconstruction of Town Hall, all Dept. of Public Works and Public Safety equipment, facilities improvement including new roofs at the schools, replacing the turf at Alumni Field, IT and Security Technology, half a mile of public road repair per year, and other necessary capital projects. The estimated 10-year cost is approximately $35,000,000. It is anticipated these projects will have to be trimmed or rescheduled as only $25,000,000 is projected to be raised over same time period within the tax base without borrowing.

The good news? According to the acting town manager, "Based upon our forecast, the pro-forma for the next 10 to 20 years, we will be able to afford and invest appropriately in the town's infrastructure."

This could include anything from repairing public roadways, repairing building roofs and bridges, "rehabbing" Town Hall, and purchasing vehicles, Milanoski explained. While not every town forecasts 20, 10 or even five years down the line, the acting town manager is trying to look at the big picture and plan accordingly.

"We have tried to capture all of the large capital expenditures the town will have to make over the next 10 years... Two years ago there was only a one-year plan; I created the first five-year plan. I've expanded that to ten because there's potentially need for some repairs to the school roof and Alumni Field that need to be done seven to eight years from now. We know it needs to be done, so we need to plan."

The need to repair and renovate Town Hall is a good example, he said. "It's much too easy to defer maintenance on our infrastructure, and then repairs become twice as expensive as the could have been. The town has a history of not investing in its infrastructure."

Town Hall, with rotting wood and chipping paint, among other issues, "is a great example of a building that has not been properly maintained," said Milanoski. "Being on the common of our community, the core of our community... It cannot be ignored."

"With the support of Special Town Meeting, Cohasset's finances are in a much stronger position and we have booked additional revenues from the state while still maintaining a conservative approach to the Town Budget."
Michael Milanoski, Acting Town Manage

Good financial planning goes along with the town's financial management policies. Milanoski added that a recent article passed by the Nov. 23 Special Town Meeting also helped.

"With the support of Special Town Meeting, Cohasset's finances are in a much stronger position and we have booked additional revenues from the state while still maintaining a conservative approach to the Town Budget," the acting town manager stated. "Key elements of the budget include adding a second IT position to the Chief Technology Office to support Cohasset's IT transformation, creating a town-wide Human Resource Coordinator and a Procurement and Utility Manager without increasing the town's head count, and investing $250,000 in the Town's Other Post-Employment Benefits (OPEB). In addition, $1.1 million is programmed to the Capital Stabilization Fund to continue to meet the towns' obligation of investing in itself."

Milanoski further explained that after accounting for these expenses and other town-wide shared costs, $1,320,000 is to be allocated by the Town Meeting's split at 61 percent for schools and 39 percent for the town, yielding $805,000 to supplement the FY15 School budget and $515,000 the Town side of the budget.

In another words, both the town and school sides of the budget should be able to "meet their contractual obligation and expand services for our children and the town," said Milanoski. "Last year $370,000 was allocated to the school and $237,000 for town. Prudent financial planning has paid off for Cohasset and we have additional funds to provide the services our residents demand all without tax overrides or debt exclusions."

Milanoski credited School Committee chairman and Budget Planning Committee member Dr. Paul Schubert, who sponsored a petitioned article to hold the Special Town Meeting in the first place, in order for the town to vote on financial matters.

"Through the diligent work of Dr. Schubert and working on the budget planning committee, we have the funding necessary to adequately run the school district this year and allow them to do some additional services they've been trying to roll out over last couple years," said Milanoski.

The Acting Town Manager is required to submit all of these documents to be reviewed by the Advisory Committee based on the Board of Selectmen's financial policies and timetable for the FY15 budget that they unanimously approved on Oct. 1 this year.

UPDATE

Governance Committee would like to continue

The Governance Committee continues to convene and work on amending town bylaws, even as its members wait to learn if their board, set to sunset at the end of December, will be extended. The committee's chairman, Kevin McCarthy, sent a letter to the Board of Selectmen in November seeking an extension.

The committee would like to have until the spring to work on the bylaw changes and present them to the spring 2014 Town Meeting.

The committee was formed and appointed by the selectmen in the fall of 2011 and was charged with revising the Town Manager Act to bring it and town bylaws into compliance with one another. While the revised TMA was approved by the spring 2013 Town Meeting and is currently working its way through the legislative process, the governance committee is still working on the bylaw changes.

McCarthy sent an email update to the selectmen this week, stating that the board is continuing to work on conforming the bylaws to the amended TMA, currently in the hands of the state senate. "It is rather detailed technical work, but we are making good progress," said McCarthy.

The committee would like to have until the spring to work on the bylaw changes and present them to the spring 2014 Town Meeting.

The chairman further said that on Dec. 4, selectmen chair Fred Koed asked governance to file a "gap analysis" showing what needs to be done in order to conform the town bylaws to the amended TMA. McCarthy said that this task was completed on Dec. 9.

The governance committee next meets at 7:30 a.m. on Thursday, Dec. 19.

BRIEFLY

Tri sells out in record time

The Cohasset Triathlon isn't until June 2014, but the event has already sold out. Over 225 Cohasset residents have signed up to race — making this the largest contingent of Cohasset residents ever for the event. This represents approximately 20 percent of the entire race field (the race attracts between 900 and 1,000 racers each year). It's another record sellout for the popular Cohasset event.

The 8th annual Cohasset Triathlon, with a run, swim, and bike ride through the town, is slated for Saturday, June 29, 2014.

Calling all history buffs

Cohasset's Historical Commission is seeking new members. Selectmen Martha Gjesteby reported to the rest of the board that the commission would like to add three new members. Gjesteby said that she hopes the town "can get more people for the talent bank."

Anyone interested in joining the commission should send a letter of interest to the Board of Selectmen's office, 41 Highland Ave., or email Tracey Connors at tconnors@cohassetma.org.

AROUND TOWN

Hat's off to Maggie Astley

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Winter's here

Hi there Cohasset...well, after our couple of snowy days that began this week and the storm that is predicted this weekend, big or small, it is obvious that winter has begun (officially, the first day falls on Dec. 21). I am a definite snow lover who would love to have storms galore but temps above 50 degrees! I don't handle this chilly stuff as well as I used to, so the snow just isn't as nice anymore. My request for 50-plus degree days and snow sounds great to me!

Please remember to slow down a bit during the snowy, icy and blustery days, whether in a car or on foot. Accidents happen so fast and many are avoidable by just slowing down. I also want to encourage each one of us to "slow down" and enjoy some winter-filled moments like a walk in the snow with friends, building a snow-person or having a fun little snowball fight with your kiddos. As we all know, life moves way too fast and you need to embrace each moment as it happens because BLINK, just like that, it is now your memories. Make each memory as special as you can.

Book talk

Author John Huth will give a talk on his new book, "The Lost Art of Finding Our Way" at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library on Sunday, Jan. 5, at 4 p.m. A wine and cheese reception and book signing will follow Mr. Huth's talk. This event has free admission and seating is limited. Call the library for more information at 781-383-1348. The event is sponsored by Dean & Hamilton Realtors and The Cook Estate with in-kind sponsorship provided by A Taste For Wine & Spirits.

Senior events

• On Wednesday, Dec.18th Cohasset Elder Affairs will be offering their annual holiday luncheon, including a delicious meal provided by a local chef. The fun begins at 11 a.m. at 3 North Main St. and features the seasonal songs and recollections of professional musician, Lori Welch. Call for reservations: 781-383-9112. Transportation available.

• Are you nearing retirement age? Preparing to retire can be a daunting task if you don't know where to turn. Mark your calendars now for Tuesday, Jan. 7, at 4:30 pm and a presentation by Kirsten Alberino, Public Affairs Specialist from the Social Security Administration. Topics will include how earnings and pensions affect benefits, how to estimate retirement benefits and the Social Security application process. This program will be held at Cohasset Elder Affairs, 3 North Main St. Light refreshments will be served. Reservations are required. Please call Cohasset Elder Affairs at 781-383-9112 to save your seat.

Save the date!

The 2014 Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Breakfast will be held on Monday, Jan. 20 at the First Parish Cohasset from 9 to 11 a.m. The cost is $5 per person or $15 per family and childcare will be provided.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

LIFE AT CHS

Final push before 2014!

MATTHEW MACCORMACK

The production of CHS's school newspaper, The Spinnaker, also began this week, as the editors prepared for the release of the Holiday Issue on December 20th.

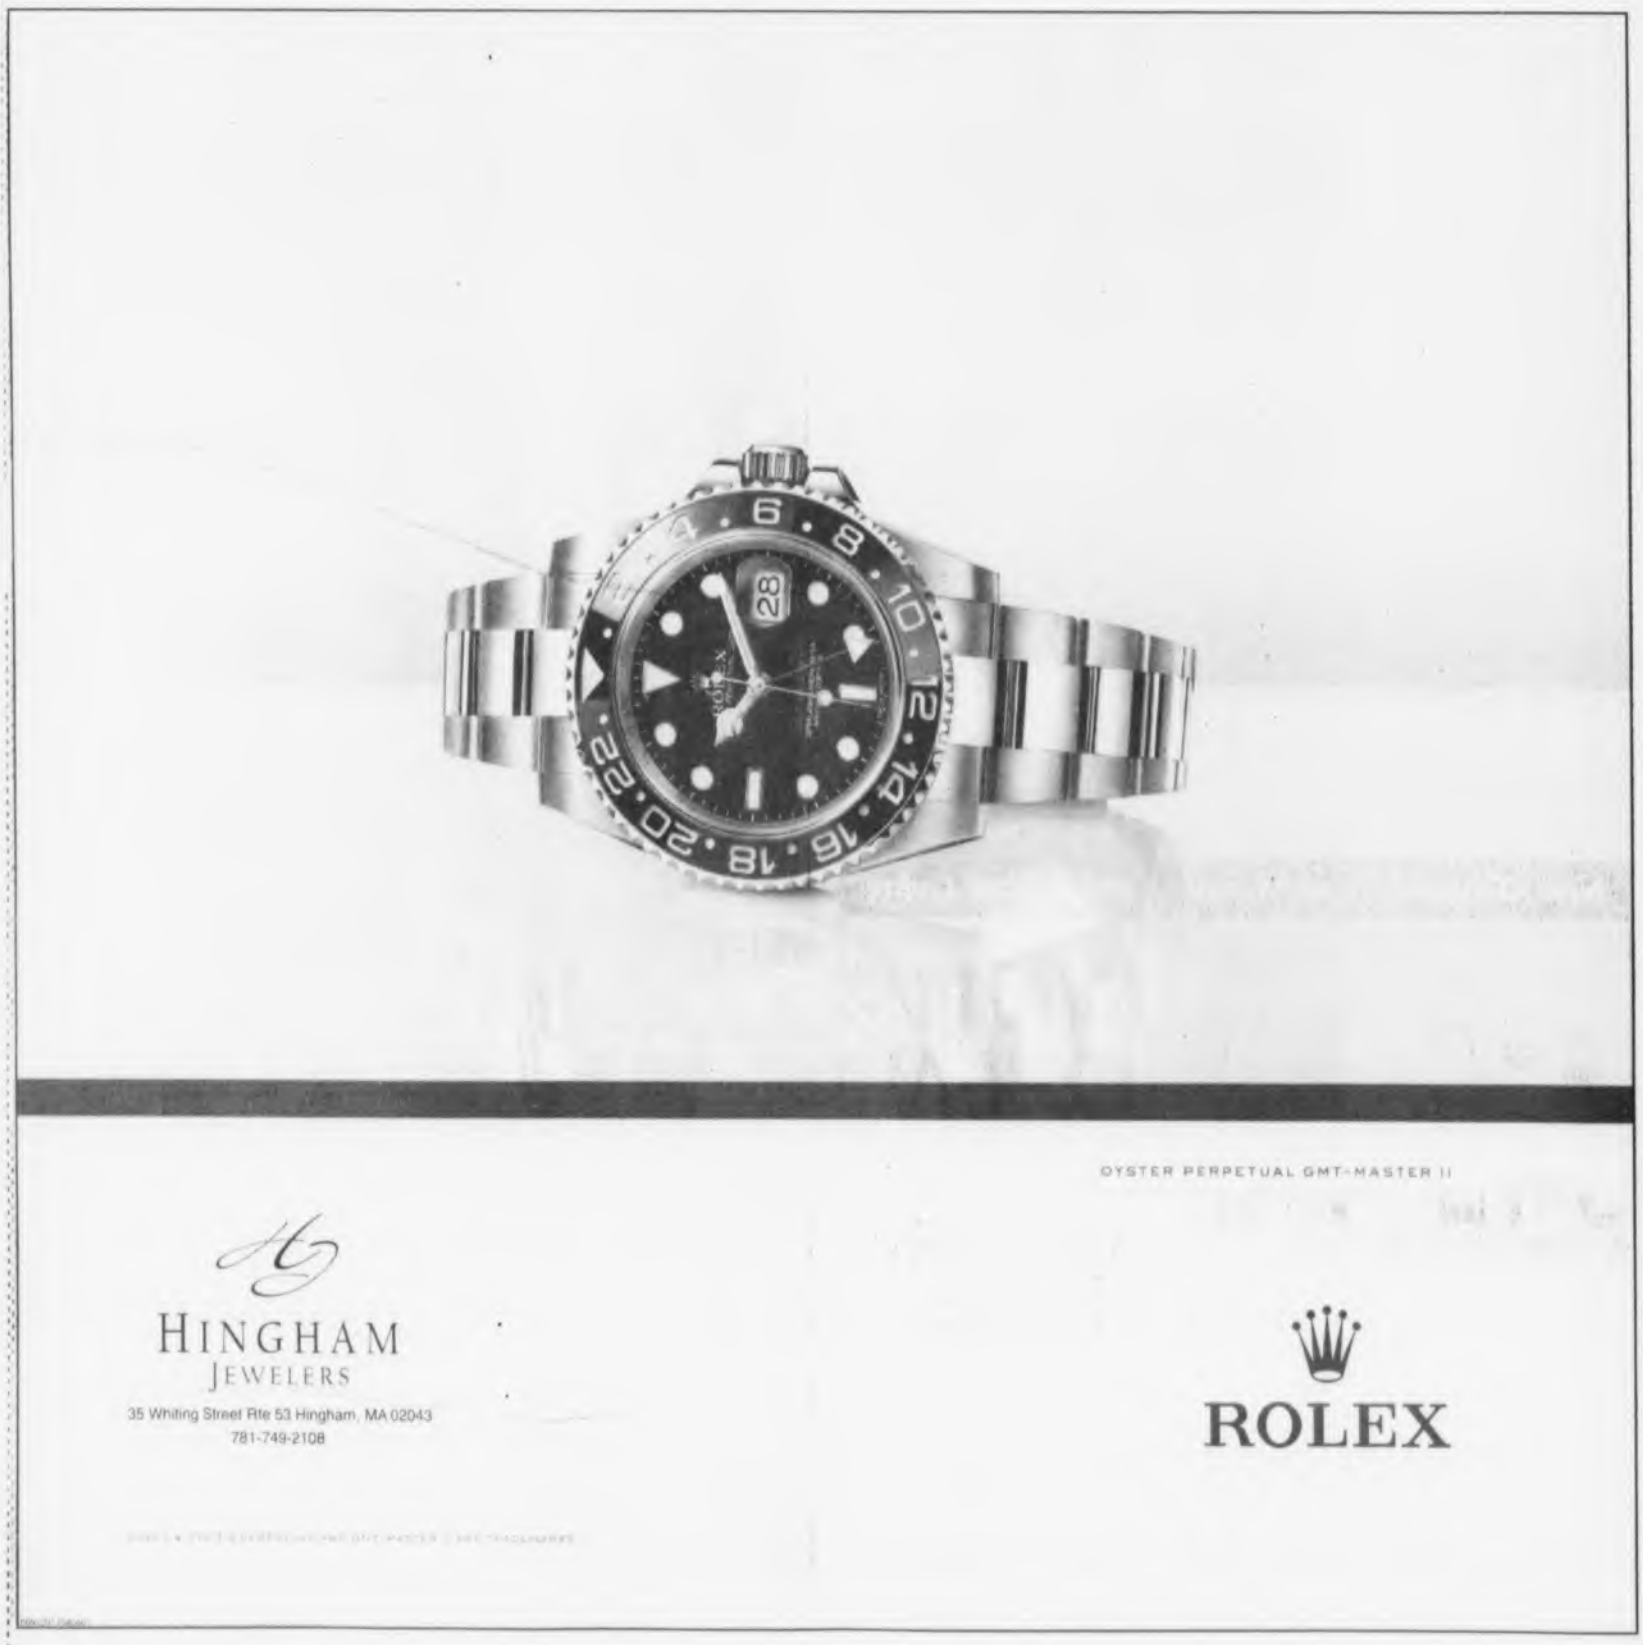
It was kinda just one of those weeks.

Here we sit, two weeks away from the much-awaited Holiday break; you can almost touch the freedom, the celebration, the holiday spirit; but it just barely escapes your fruitless grasp. If there is such thing as a "Hump Week", this was it.

The first legitimate snowfall of the year began on Tuesday morning, with fat flakes falling frivolously from the clouds, forming a thin white veneer that lasted for a short while. By the middle of the week, that layer turned to ice, and that "oh crap, it's winter" feeling really sunk in for the first time.

Despite the cold, CHS remained as active as ever, in a week that serves as somewhat of a final push before the re-opening of school in the New Year. From students and faculty that I conversed with, this week kicked the proverbial behinds of a good portion of CHS. Homework loads seemed to take a slight uptick, and the start of the winter athletics season left many an athlete scrambling to adjust.

But hey, what do we really have to complain about? Let's start off with some happy news; several members of the Class of 2014 have found out where they will be pursuing higher education next year! Congrats to all of those seniors who got accepted to their dream schools this week, and good luck to those still waiting to hear. No matter what, we seniors will always be "1-4 The Ages!"



Meanwhile, the musicians of CHS were quite active this week in prepping for their annual Holiday Concert and Holiday Tour. On Wednesday night, the CHS Band and Chorus teamed up for a quick rehearsal, and then sat down to a lovely pasta dinner concocted by volunteer parents. Thursday evening saw the performances of the Concert Band, Jazz Band, and Chorus, as students finally saw the results of the hard work they put in for the past few months. On Friday, CHS's delighted musicians got to skip school, and attend one the most enjoyable experiences of the year, the Holiday Tour. The Band and Chorus toured the South Shore, stopping at Deer Hill, Osgood, and even the Linden Ponds living community in Hingham, playing Holiday songs and spreading cheer everywhere they set foot. Shout out to CMHS teachers Mrs. Moriarty, Mr. DeWaal, and Mr. Mahoney for all of their efforts.

The production of CHS's school newspaper, The Spinnaker, also began this week, as the editors prepared for the release of the Holiday Issue on December 20th. Anticipated crowd-pleasing articles include "The Scallion", a satirical news column based off of The Onion, "Looking Up", a witty editorial written by CHS freshman Emma Humphrey, and of course, the gossipy "Scuttlebutt." More on The Spinnaker as press time approaches!

One final note: the Cohasset Student Council is running the first annual "Polar Express" event. Parents of Osgood and Deer Hill students can drop of their children from 2 to 4 p.m. this Saturday for a viewing of the popular animated holiday film, and take the time to shop, or just relax after an exhausting holiday scramble. If you are interested, please contact the school.

While this week may have kicked our butts, we still made it through, as we always do. And, on the bright side, we only have five more days left until break. Keep on chugging, and remember, keep it classy Cohasset!

Matthew MacCormack is a senior at Cohasset High and a regular contributor to the Cohasset Mariner.

GIMME SHELTER

Zsu deserves the gift of happiness

The best home for Zsu will be one where she can enjoy lots of attention and interactive playtime as she needs to get her kitten side out there for you to see.

It's a wonderful life! Or at least it should be for this gorgeous two-year-old. Zsu had dreams of a happy life in a cozy, loving home. Sometimes the best plans don't go as we want and unfortunately, Zsu found herself left alone and pretty much on her own. As special as she is, attention and affectionate interaction was what she needed most, and hoped for all along. If there is one thing we all need during this holiday season, it is knowing that someone really cares for you, and pretty Zsu deserves the gift of happiness in a true forever home with a kindhearted owner.

When you see those beautiful green eyes that shine out from a round face that takes the shape of a three-quarter moon, rimmed with shadowy grey, you have to look twice. No, you have to just keep on looking again and again. She is so striking with well defined patterns painted on her dense thick fur. And at the top of her nose is a little grey tip of a heart made complete by a triangle of pink at the bottom. Zsu has a totally unique face finished off with a little Cheshire grin.

The best home for Zsu will be one where she can enjoy lots of attention and interactive playtime as she needs to get her kitten side out there for you to see. Wand toys with felt strings, small cloth mice and rolling ping pong balls keep her intrigued and she enjoys all of them. Being left alone for long periods would not be a good fit as she needs a best friend and wants to feel close. Certainly, there is someone who will fall in love with this sweet beauty. A safe and cozy home, sunny window and an open and gracious heart are the gifts that Zsu would love to open this year. Maybe there is a perfect Santa who will arrive with great news for her soon.

Please call Judy at 781-534-4902 for more information about beautiful Zsu. She would love to be "Home for the Holidays" with a person or family who will pamper her and show her how special she is. You might want to visit Hull Seaside Animal Rescue soon to spend some time with her.

We are located at 50 L St. Open Hours are Monday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 and Saturdays from 2-3 p.m. You can see more of our wonderful adult cats and kittens who are waiting for their best match and home by visiting www.HSAR.org and clicking on Available Pets. On Petfinder.com you will see more photos and information. Just enter our zip code, 02045. Also, please visit our Facebook page for updates and information about our special cats and upcoming events.

There are a few 2-3 month old babies still available in the shelter, Johnny Cash, Ruby and Max so please visit and maybe you can provide the gift of a forever home for some cuddly, purry, babies who need homes where they can thrive and grow. Gentle and affectionate people who will share many hours of play and affection, mixed with lots of love, for these sweet kids is just what they need!

The holidays are a pretty hectic and busy time so if you are considering bringing a new baby or two into your home, this is a wonderful time to get them safely adjusted. Just a reminder, that curling ribbon, decorations and winter plants like Poinsettias are enticing to kittens and cats but can be very dangerous. We hope that everyone's pets will be lucky enough to enjoy a safe holiday in warm and caring homes.

Last week, we had a fun visit from the Hull Cub Scouts Troop, "The Bears" and wow, they came in with donations of food and litter that will help to keep our resident felines healthy and happy! Accompanied by their parents, they were able to learn a little about how the shelter operates and spend some time with the kittens and cats. Thank you to each and every one of you for showing how much is means to give during this Christmas season. Your generosity and concern for homeless animals is wonderful. If your group or organization is looking for a non-profit to help out this month, we would love to hear from you. Please call Casey at 781-925-3121or e-mail us at hsar@verizon.net.

Soft and cozy bedding and throws are always needed to help keep all of our cats comfortable through the winter. Seeing them curled up in bright, fluffy and colorful little blankets makes it seem a little more like a real home so thank you for your continued donations. Shelter living is not the same as a real home, but we love to provide to all of our kittens and cats the feeling that they are loved and cared for.

Volunteering in a shelter can be rewarding in so many ways. There are good days and happy times as well as days when you wish you could just snap your fingers and magically produce forever homes for every animal here. If you are interested in joining this hard working group of animal lovers, please call Sue at 617-733-2986 for information about the tasks and responsibilities of Hull Seaside volunteers. We are also in need of foster homes for cats who may need special accommodations or just a break from shelter living. You may just meet a companion for life!

With holiday parties taking place in the coming weeks, please consider dropping off your empty bottles and cans at one of our locations along Nantasket Ave. at Nantasket Hardware, A St. Liquors and of course, at our shelter at 50 L St. The proceeds from all of the collected returnables are instrumental in helping to pay utility bills, rent and purchase supplies here at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue. Your generosity and support mean the world to the homeless felines who are just waiting for their chance to go to loving homes and families.

Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Strolling along

Nothing says "Christmas in Cohasset" quite like the annual Holiday Stroll with the Route 3A and the downtown village businesses, from 12 to 7 p.m. (noon to 4 p.m. on 3A and 4 to 7 p.m. in the Village) on Saturday, Dec. 14.

Darilynn's owner and stroll organizer, Darilyn Evans, said, "The businesses look forward to welcoming the community to celebrate the season. It's festive, and it's social, and it's fun."

Participating businesses, marked with balloons and starfish wreaths, are offering everything from sidewalk sales to arts and crafts, refreshments, holiday decorating and more. The downtown event kicks off with a carillon concert performed by Mary Kennedy, from 3:30 to 4 p.m.

Parade

The carillon will be followed by the Santa parade and hayride.

"This parade will be epic!" said Maria Monaco of Outside In, who is organizing it. "I am so pleased to have the Cohasset cheerleaders, hockey team, cub scouts girl scouts, town merchants, rusty skippers, St. Nick, the Grinch and more!"

Toys For Tots

The police department will be running a Toys For Tots "Fill the Tahoe" drive during the stroll. They will also be conducting Operation ID with the department's children identification system, a $4,000 system that was purchased by Pilgrim Bank. Police Sgt. Jeff Treanor explained that system features a computer programmed to scan fingerprints, take photographs, and print CDs that are provided to the parents in the event their children ever go missing.

The fire department will bring one of the engines downtown for Touch-a-Truck, and will also collect Toys For Tots.

Contests

A highlight of the stroll is the ice sculpture in front of Sullivan, Garritty and Donelly Insurance. "We do it every year, and it's a big hit," said Kerry O'Keefe. She is also organizing a children's gingerbread house-decorating contest.

Participants are asked to sign up ahead of time by emailing O'Keefe at kerry.okeefe@sgdins.com and dropping off their already decorated gingerbread houses at Caldwell Bank on the day of the stroll, between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. The houses will be on display throughout the stroll for people to vote on. Voting will be done for four age groups: 3 to 5, 6 to 9, 10 to 14, and 15 and up.

Shopping

As always, strollers can enjoy stopping in the various downtown shops and starting their holiday shopping. There are also plenty of fun things for kids, including balloon art at Pilgrim Bank, face-painting at Paperscapes, and decorate cookies at French Memories. There is also a wreath-decorating contest and auction to benefit the Food Pantry.

CHS Student Council presents 'Polar Express'

Has the hustle and bustle of the holiday season left you longing for a chance to relax or just cross things off your holiday to-do list? How about letting the Cohasset High School Student Council entertain your kids for an afternoon?

Whether you are looking for a couple of hours to get some shopping done without having the kids tag along, or you just need some time to take a much-deserved nap, look no further than the CHS Student Council's newest event, a screening of "The Polar Express."

Take the kids to the CHS auditorium on Saturday, Dec. 14 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. to take in this wondrous holiday movie, for a fraction of movie theater prices.

The student council members, along with their advisor Ms. McAlarney, are hosting this event, featuring the film screening and refreshments, for the Osgood and Deer Hill students. The cost for the movie is $5 and refreshments, including cookies, candy and juice, will be available for $1.00 each.

Proceeds from the event will help raise funds for Student Council activities. The Student Council supports new clubs and initiatives that promote school and community spirit.

struction on the patio of the Olde Salt House, next to the Atlantica restaurant on Border Street and culminating in the tree lighting with holiday music, hot chocolate and apple cider, and a visit from Santa and Mrs. Claus. Covell said that the original location was slated to be Government Island, after he received approval from the Board of Selectmen.

However, a number of issues necessitated a change in locale, including concerns that lobstermen would have limited access to the pier. Peter Roy, owner of the Atlantic and Olde Salt House, and manager Joe Campbell, both welcomed the tree on the patio.

"We didn't know this was going to happen," Covell said of the change. But it all worked out for the best. "It's the perfect location."

The tree is a sight to behold where it overlooks the harbor, attracting daily visitors snapping pictures.

Covell worked closely with several Cohasset lobstermen to make the lobster trap tree into a reality.

"Obviously, we could not have done this without the lobstermen," he said, adding that Rick Barrow, John Barrett, Adam Donovan, Bill Kelly and Jeffrey Stone provided the 400 traps, along with manpower to aid the two-day construction. "They, along with all of the people who helped with their time and donated to our first-year expenses, made this possible."

It cost around $1,000 to complete the tree, lights and all, said Covell, and it was all paid for by donations from townspeople. In fact, there's even money left over that Covell said is being gifted to the Cohasset Food Pantry.

Another major contributor to the tree is Cohasset High School senior Colin Whalen, who came up with its design.

The tree will remain standing until Saturday, Jan. 4. It will be lit every night from 4:30 p.m. until 1 a.m. When the tree is taken down, the lobsterman and others who donated traps and buoys can retrieve them.

"Hopefully they will bring them back next year," said Covell, who hopes to see the lobster trap tree become an annual Cohasset event. "We learned so much this year, and in another year this is going to be bigger and better."

Even Santa turned out for this first-ever event. Here Peter Crumley asks the jolly ole elf a few questions.

The tree is adorned with symbols of the sea including artistically designed buoys.

Britt Covell adds more buoys to the lobster pot tree before it was lit on Saturday, Dec. 7.

11-year-old Ainsley O'Brien examines decorations on the lobster pot tree before the lighting ceremony on Saturday.

The crowd that gathered for the tree lighting stayed warm with hot chocolate.

OUR VIEW

Don't let a scam ruin Christmas

The good news is that more and more residents are reporting scams and attempted scams to the police department.

The bad news is that more and more residents are reporting scams and attempted scams to the police department.

This means that people are more aware when a scam is being attempted and that there are more scams out there.

We have reported many times about the infamous "grandparents scam" where the caller pretends to be a grandchild in need of immediate monetary assistance to get out of jail. In these scams, the scammers call around until they find an older person who might be susceptible to being fooled because they sincerely want to help a grandchild in trouble.

There now appear to be dozens or maybe even hundreds of telephone scams out there ranging from people pretending to be from the IRS to pretending to be customer service representatives asking about your credit card.

We find that you can turn off a potential scammer really fast by telling him or her that you do absolutely no business over the phone and that they need to send you documentation in the mail. We would not provide our address – but have not had to, as the scammer (if it truly is one) then hangs up when asked for documentation and moves on to search for another potential victim.

Police will tell you never to provide your Social Security number, credit card or bank information over the phone. Never wire money or send a check or money order if someone tells you are a big winner but need to send a check first for a certain amount to offset some charges.

If you think you have been scammed or there has been an attempt – try to get the caller ID number if there is one. Report the incident to the police and provide as much detail as you can.

If you do not have caller ID, consider getting a phone that shows the caller's number. If it is a number you do not recognize or no number appears – then let the call go to voicemail. You can always call someone back who leaves a legitimate message.

We find it is best not to engage these callers. The longer they have you on the phone, the bigger the chance is they might talk you into something or begin to sound like their call is legitimate.

To coin a football phrase – the best defense is a good offense. So if you get a questionable phone call, trust your gut – if it doesn't sound right, it probably isn't. Be alert and hang-up on these would-be thieves.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Finalist in Carver, but not in Cohasset?

The following letter penned Dec. 6 was sent to the Board of Selectmen via email.

I felt truly deflated today reading the Mariner (Friday, Dec 6).

Today's Mariner does little to instill confidence in me regarding the process of depending upon the Collins Center to select our town manager. As reported today, some of you want to exercise due diligence and dig deeper into the process, criteria, and findings that guided the Center in its selection of candidates. I love that. But, as reported today, Mrs. Gjesteby says it's not necessary to dig deeper and that she has full "confidence in the Collins Center."

Yet, the Mariner reports that the Center selected Mr. Milanoski as a finalist for Carver using the exact criteria employed for the Cohasset search.

This makes little sense to me. And it's very depressing.

Furthermore, the "closure" and the "healing" that we all hope is accomplished by turning the page and writing a new chapter for the next town manager seems a bit less possible when we seem to be completely in the dark as to how the same Center arrived at this seemingly contradictory conclusion.

There's a paucity of information for the average citizen, save Peter DeCaprio.

I still don't get it; unless, of course, I do.

Gimme Shelter writer is a gem!

As the year draws to a close, all of us at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, cats and kittens especially, would like to thank our feature writer, Paula Fatersik. Each week Paula volunteers hours in the shelter getting to know each cat on an individual level by providing much-needed attention, affection and of course playtime. After getting to know each one, she then writes a detailed and loving story about the feature cat. Paula has used her words and photographs to reach out and help hundreds of animals find their forever home. If you read Paula regularly, then you know she is a gift to our animals, our shelter and our community.

Thank you Paula.

Remarks were way off the mark

The remarks of Lenora Jenkins regarding Article 5 at the Special Town Meeting (in last week's paper) were a bit extreme! Do you think it fair to allow statements discrediting and disrespectful of Ronnie McMorris to be allowed? Ronnie is a former Selectwoman, has been a resident of Cohasset for 27 years, and mother of four children who have graduated from the Cohasset schools. Certainly she is qualified to speak her mind about articles in the warrant.

I believe the Mariner should be more careful editing what it publishes.

COMMENTARY

'Tolstoy' lesson much appreciated

DAN WALSH

In her 2013 work, "Trust is a Choice, A Prolegomena of Anthropology of Trust(s)," Stephanie Krawinkler posits that a "willingness to be vulnerable and confident in one's expectations" not only defines trust, but is foundational to trust relationships. And the corollary, that "a propensity to believe that fellow citizens will not act against our interests in social and economic transactions," in other words, to trust one-another, has been identified as one of the keys to the effective functioning of democratic polities; see Sturgis, Read, Hate, Zhu, Trull, Wright, and Martin's collaborative work, "A Genetic Basis for Social Trust?"

As analysis of the poll-results suggests, there is no single, simple explanation; theories range across the nature, nurture, and socio-economic fabric of our existence.

"When trust is low, the way we react and behave with each other becomes less civil, noted April K. Clark, a Purdue University political scientist and public opinion researcher, on her reflection of An AP-GfK poll conducted this past October. This recent survey found that "Americans are suspicious of each other in their everyday encounters. Less than one-third expressed a lot of trust in clerks who swipe their credit cards, drivers on the road, or people they meet when traveling." As analysis of the poll-results suggests, there is no single, simple explanation; theories range across the nature, nurture, and socio-economic fabric of our existence.

Over the past two years, local political events, as reported or observed in the ebb and flow of the Mariner's above and below the fold news reporting, op-editorials, opinion pieces, commentaries, and letters to the editor have occasionally, but hopefully without intent, upped the level of distrust and incivility. That being said, one recent and much-appreciated point of view was that offered in Kevin McCarthy's "Channeling Tolstoy in Cohasset."

My thanks to Mr. McCarthy, not only for the Russian history lesson, but more so for his agile and civilized approach to reinforcing the trust; recognizing the benefits of living and interacting within our town: its employees, volunteers, concerned and active citizenry, residents, and neighbors. I join with Kevin in expressing confidence that Cohasset polity will remain the beneficiary of its good people!

COLLEGE CONNECTION

Juniors: Looking ahead

The most daunting task by far is the making the college list, which is why so many students put it off as long as possible. My advice is to embrace it.

STEPHANIE SEARS

For anyone who has read this column over the past 10 weeks, it charts out a map for the college admissions process. What differs from student to student is the timeline. I've worked through the college search-application-test strategy-extracurricular planning-essay writing progression with students in anywhere from two to eighteen months. Certainly the more time that is allotted to planning, the more relaxed and comprehensive the schedule. This translates into a more calm experience for both students and parents.

Ideally for juniors, if they haven't started already, this means beginning next month. One of the first things to do at this point is develop a testing plan. PSAT scores were released recently, which is an early indication of how a student might perform on standardized tests in the future. With solid preparation, scores can easily improve by one hundred points or more in each section. Consider your study strategy. Do you study better one-on-one with a tutor, moving at your own pace, or benefit from group interaction? Studying on your own is also an option as long as you have willpower to take the initiative in setting aside time. There are also online courses which also require a certain amount of self-starting but can be effective for the right person.

While the SAT is by far the most popular assessment on the East Coast, the ACT is also accepted as equal at the majority of colleges. Some students score better on the ACT which is structured differently than the SAT. It is not offered as regularly or widespread so planning ahead is necessary. While students should take at least one of these tests once, there is also a growing trend to make tests an optional part of the application. In these situations, the other parts of the student's application need to be especially strong in order to be competitive.

Another testing consideration includes focusing on your strengths in preparing to take a Subject Test in the late spring. If you are already doing well in English or a science, taking the test while it is still fresh in your mind is beneficial. Subject tests are not mandatory at many colleges, but it is one more way to highlight your gifts.

Planning this far ahead allows juniors to research possible career options, which can affect how extracurricular time is spent. Now is a great time to look into internships, volunteering, and jobs if you haven't already. Career options will also shape what senior courses will be important to take.

The most daunting task by far is the making the college list, which is why so many students put it off as long as possible. My advice is to embrace it. At this point you are not deciding where you will attend, just looking at all the possibilities. Visiting a college in session will help give you a feel for the place much more than an empty summer trek. It's not uncommon to start with a list of more than twenty colleges and then whittle it down to a solid six to eight by the fall. Having ample time to do that is ideal.

As we are in the middle of the holidays, I am reminded of the line from a beloved Christmas song, "All is calm, all is bright." As you plan out your college map, may this also be your mantra. It's an exciting time to dream!

'I do it for the kids'

I'm the guy who decides each year that it's a smart idea to go outside with cords and lights and plastic molded displays and painted wooden displays, and whatever else I can think of.

JOHN MCSHEFFREY

Sometimes I agree with those who know me too well, and I think that I am indeed a bit daft. The Saturday of Thanksgiving weekend was one of those times. It was 27 degrees out, and I was doing what any person with half a brain was not; I was hammering metal stakes into my front yard to put up our Christmas decorations.

If you read my article about the well-deserved, but yet unachieved tax credit for Fairoaks residents, then you know that Halloween isn't my favorite holiday. Well, do a quick 180 and you've got me at Christmas time; I'm the Clark Griswold of Fairoaks. I'm the guy who, for whatever reason, decides each year that it's a smart idea to go outside with cords and lights and plastic molded displays and painted wooden displays, and whatever else I can think of (still working on a snow/music thingy, but I digress) to spike our electric bill for the month of December.

I'm not quite sure why I started putting up an excessive amount of lights, (please note, when I say excessive, it's a relative term. If we lived in Braintree, our yard would be the equivalent of a few candles in the windows) but I think it has something to do with growing up just off of Main Street in Hingham and feeling the need to rebel against white lights and wreaths. Whatever the reason, each season I find myself trying to figure out what cords go with what lights, which isn't easy given that I am the most technically incompetent adult in all of Cohasset.

So why do I do it? I do it for the same reason we all do certain things; I do it for the kids. I do it for the Honda Odyssey driving slowly by the house. I do it for the kids up the street who look out the window each night and see the colors. I do it for the little boy who hugged our silly blow molded Santa Snoopy like it was a long lost friend. I do it for the same reason why some parents coach and other parents volunteer at the school or the Girl Scouts; I do it for the kids.

When it comes to decorating, I've made peace with the fact I'll never be in the same league as the folks over on Judges Hill Drive in Norwell. I'll continue to envy the house near the corner of Beechwood and King streets, but I also know that the hours spent up on a ladder with cold toes bring smiles to a few kids' faces, and isn't that's what it's all about?

To me at least, Christmas and the holidays are about the magic of innocence. While I try to stay away from the malls this time of year (who am I kidding, I try to stay away from malls all times of the year) when I do venture into one, I inevitably end up stopping and watching with amazement, the children visiting Santa. The wonderment of a child and Santa may be one of the purest visions around – well except the time that my daughter screamed her way through a visit when she was very young, but we eventually got over that.

I faced up to it a long time ago. I'm a sap, and the month of December is the sappiest time of the year. I know that the years are passing quickly, and soon the kids won't care about the lights in the yard. I know that one day I'll decide that a simple wreath will suffice. But until that day, I'll continue to spend my Thanksgiving weekends driving to and from the local stores to get the right lights, and trying to figure out how the heck I pulled it off the season before.

To be honest with you, when I started writing this, I wasn't exactly sure what direction the article would be heading in. I thought about writing about remembering the families who will suffer through another Christmas without their beautiful young children, because last year a demented person had access to a gun. I thought about writing about the number of charities such as Christmas in the City (christmasinthecity.org) and Wellspring (wellspringhull.org) who could really use our support to help kids who will have far less on Christmas morning than the wonderful children in our cozy little hamlet-by-the-sea. I considered writing about remembering the mailman and the other folks who help make our lives better each day, but instead my mind got lost in a bunch of Christmas lights.

So there I was, last Saturday, exasperated as I hammered metal stakes into the ground to put up the Santa sleigh and reindeer display (no seriously, we have a Santa sleigh and reindeer display) and a family with two little children walked by. One of the kids was no more than 3 and when he saw Santa's sleigh, his entire face lit up and he walked over and hugged it. He hugged the wooden Santa sleigh. That is why I do it; for the kids.

Thank you to all of you who have been reading my articles, I have appreciated your kind comments. I wish you and your family a warm, safe and joyous holiday season. One last thing; take a moment and go out of your way to do something special for a stranger. I promise it'll make you both smile. See you in the New Year. Peace.

Celebrating Christmas in Australia

ELLE KENNEDY

Elle Kennedy, her sisters Anna and Celia, and their parents, Laura and Ben, are living in Sydney, Australia, for two years. This is Elle's first "Dispatch" from "Down Under." Readers can reach Elle by email at: ElleReportingFromOz@gmail.com

What about Christmas in Australia? Christmas happens during summer, so it's hot, not cold! While you walk through snow, we play at the beach.

G'day, Mates! I'm all the way down below the equator, in Sydney, Australia, also known as Down Under or Oz (short for Aussie and pronounced like Ozzie).

Would you like to know about the schools here in Down Under? They're a bit different than the ones in Cohasset. For example, we have to wear uniforms and hats. When we're outside playing we must wear hats since Australia has the highest rate of skin cancer in the world. (You can find more information on skincancer.gov.au)

In my school, girls wear blue and white-checked dresses and black shoes. Boys wear white-collar shirts, blue trousers and black shoes. Teachers don't wear uniforms.

In our school canteen we can buy food during snack time and lunch. There is no cafeteria, so we sit around the schoolyard or in a classroom during rainy days while we eat. My school is for grades K through 6. Actually, instead of "grade" they say "year." It's a small school, so there's only one classroom of year five students (my year) and another, which is a mix of year 5 and 6. The classrooms are a bit bigger than the ones in Osgood. In my room, two desks are attached to each other.

What about Christmas in Australia? Christmas happens during summer, so it's hot, not cold! While you walk through snow, we play at the beach. Instead of hot cocoa, we sip cold chocolate milk and dip Tim Tams, a yummy chocolate biscuit (cookie). The Aussies here will be swimming and cooking on the "barbie" (barbecue, not the doll Barbie)! There are Christmas plays and carol-singing, Santa and his reindeer, and stores decorated with colorful lights.

Jingle Bells is a favorite song here. The melody is the same, but the words are different: Dashing through the bush, in a rusty Holden ute (bush = woods; Holden = type of car like a Ford SUV and "ute" is short for "utility")

Kicking up the dust, Esky in the boot, (esky = cooler to carry drinks and food; boot = car trunk)

Kelpie by my side,
Singing Christmas songs
(kelpie = Australian dog used for herding sheep)

It's summer time and I am in My singlet, shorts and thongs (singlet = T-shirt; thongs = flipflops)

Oh! Jingle Bells, Jingle Bells, Jingle all the way
Christmas in Australia,
On a scorching summer's day;
Jingle Bells, Jingle Bells,
Christmas time is beaut
(beaut = short for beautiful)
Oh what fun it is to ride
In a rusty Holden ute!

If you have any questions about Australia that you would like answered from a 10-year-old (11 in March) perspective, just let me know. If I don't have the answer, I'm sure I can ask an Aussie or two!

Everyone needs a little reminder now and then.

That's the idea behind the e-newsletters we've been emailing to readers on a regular, weekly basis.

The weekly e-newsletter highlights the latest stories and photos posted on our websites and serves as a reminder to all the other content you can find on Wicked Local, including sports, a comprehensive local, online calendar, and links to our Facebook and Twitter pages.

Of course, we hope you're checking your Wicked Local website every day, several times a day. But we realize people get busy during the course of the week and may need a friendly nudge now and then to remind them what they might have missed.

The e-newsletters are sent out to coincide with the publication day of your local community newspaper, although stories, photos and other local, useful information are posted to the websites on a regular, daily basis.

While the e-newsletter primarily serves to promote what you can find on the website, you also will see what might be exclusive to that week's newspaper, as well as how to subscribe to the newspaper, and where you can pick up extra copies of the newspaper. After all, we're still in the business of selling newspapers.

In addition to the weekly reminder to check out what's new on the website, we can use the e-newsletter distribution list to send out news alerts, whether it's a breaking news story, some weather-related update regarding school being closed, or some other timely information worth communicating.

It's free and easy to sign up to receive the e-newsletter.

Go to your Wicked Local website and find the Hot Links line at the top of the Web page just under the main navigation area. Click on the link that reads something to the effect of, "Sign up for our e-newsletter" and you'll be asked to enter an e-mail address and your name. Once you click on "Subscribe to list", you'll be sent an e-mail verifying your interest in subscribing to the e-newsletter.

That's it. It's pretty simple to register and you'll start receiving weekly reminders of stories, photos and more you can find on your Wicked Local website.

READER REACTION:

I recently wrote a column titled, "Good news, bad news" that discussed how readers sometimes react to negative news in the local community newspapers. The column sparked some feedback, including the two comments below.

"I for one, appreciate that holding back on bad news is nothing more than censorship, or something that could be misconstrued as pandering to the powerful....Just wanted you to know that there are others who appreciate knowing what's important in this town – especially if it has to do with our taxes and/or safety."

Another reader wrote:

"Readers expect to see negative stories regarding people and situations. What some of us do object to is a biased view by the newspaper employees. We want an unbiased story with views from both sides and facts that have been proven so that we can make up our own minds regarding the subject matter."

Your feedback – good, bad or otherwise – is always welcome.

her mother, Maggie, 35 years ago. Warshaw said she would pick blueberries for her mother's bakery, Maggie's Corner, in order to earn things she wanted, such as shoes.

After moving away and eventually returning to the area, Warshaw ended up moving to Cohasset. She became a full partner in Maggie's business until her retirement. Warshaw then began working as the executive pastry chef for Boston's Sweet Cupcakes.

Five years ago, Warshaw bought the restaurant that was formerly Café Zuppa and started 5 South Main, going back into business with her mom, who at that point was supposed to have retired. They decided to turn 5 South Main into a bakery at night, and eventually launched Baked.

"She still works six days a week," Warshaw said of her 70-year-old mother. "She's quality control; she makes sure everything's perfect."

Maggie rounds out what Warshaw calls a "super great staff," including Baked general manager Ann Marie Robicheau.

"We're all a good team," said Robicheau. "We work really well together."

The Baked staff is hoping to carve out a certain niche in Cohasset with its cozy, sit, stay, drink coffee and eat cupcakes style.

"There's a community feel; we want to bring people in," said Barbara Baumgarten, who does PR for the café.

"It's a nice place to come over and chit chat," Warshaw added, noting that Baked is the ideal afternoon pick-me-up spot after lunch. "It's a nice option for somebody who doesn't want a full meal, just a treat. What's better than a cappuccino and cupcake after a sandwich?"

As for offerings, Baked features homemade goodies from cupcakes to whoopee pies, with seasonal flavors like gingerbread, red velvet and peppermint, chocolate barks and peanut brittle, old fashioned candies and more. There are also scone mixes and jams – including one with apricot, pineapple and cherries – that make for great holiday gifts.

Warshaw is a big tea lover and Baked offers several loose-leaf tea options, from green to chamomile to peach oolong. For coffee lovers, there's espresso from local roasters Fazenda Coffee.

Baked will have its official Cohasset grand opening during Saturday's Holiday Village Stroll. The café will be open from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m., serving up samples and sea salt caramel, peppermint, fireside and toasted marshmallow hot cocoa.

Winter business hours will be 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., with the café open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the warmer months.

For more on all things Baked, stop by the new location at 24 South Main Street in Cohasset, call 781-378-2730, and visit online at bakedthings.com or on Facebook.com/bakedthings.

LIBRARY NEWS

State eBook Pilot Project

Staff and trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are pleased to announce that Cohasset's library is one of 51 pilot libraries statewide participating in the Massachusetts eBook Pilot Project. The project, involving public, school, college and specialized libraries, was conceived by the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners' (MBLC) Statewide Resource Sharing Committee in response to the important need to provide e-content to MA library users.

The Mass. eBook Project is made possible through funding from the Mass Library System (MLS) and through federal funds provided by the Institute for Museum and Library Services (IMLS).

E-content provided by Baker & Taylor will make more than 3,000 eBooks available to pilot libraries via its Axis 360 digital media circulation platform. Baker & Taylor is the world's largest distributor of books, digital content and entertainment products.

BiblioLabs will make over 30,000 compelling eBooks and other materials available on an unlimited multi-user basis to pilot libraries via its BiblioBoard platform.

BiblioLabs was selected for this pilot due to its unique model that eliminates checkouts and waiting lists, and features a publishing platform that allows libraries with special collections to make those collections easily available to patrons. BiblioLabs content consists of hundreds of curated collections of books, images, documents, artifacts, ephemera and audio and video related to specific themes.

Please contact librarians in the reference department should you desire more information or any assistance in accessing the e-content.

Volume 38 - Report No. 49 December 6, 2013

Y = Yes; N = No, NV = No Vote (President rarely votes) * Not every item is voted on by both House and Senate

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week. The House and Senate are meeting only in brief, informal sessions until January and there will not be any additional roll calls until that time. This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call reports local senators' final roll call attendance records for the 2013 session.

The Senate held 232 roll call votes in 2013. Beacon Hill Roll Call tabulates the number of roll calls on which each senator was present and voting and then calculates that number as a percentage of the total roll call votes held. That percentage is the number referred to as the roll call attendance record.

Only 15 of the Senate's 40 members have 100 percent roll call attendance records.

The senator who missed the most roll calls is Sen. Harriette Chandler (D-Worcester), who missed 48 roll calls (79.3 percent attendance).

The second worst record belongs to Sen. Marc Pacheco (D-Taunton), who missed 24 roll calls (89.6 percent attendance).

Third worst belongs to Sen. Linda Dorcena Forry (D-Boston), who missed 23 roll calls (84.9 percent attendance). Her record is based on only 153 roll calls because she won a special election and did not enter the Senate until June.

Rounding out the top five worst are Sens. Cynthia Stone Creem (D-Newton) and Benjamin Downing (D-Pittsfield), who both missed 18 roll calls (92.2 percent attendance).

SENATORS' FINAL 2013 ROLL CALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS

The percentage listed next to the senator's name is the percentage of roll call votes for which the senator was present and voting. The number in parentheses represents the number of roll calls that the senator missed.

AUTOMATIC TAX CUT ON JANUARY 1 - The state's Department of Revenue confirmed that sufficient economic growth in 2013 under the terms of a 2002 law will result in a tax cut for millions of Bay State taxpayers beginning in 2014. The cut will come from a reduction in the income tax rate and long term capital gains tax from 5.25 to 5.2 percent effective January 1, 2014. This is only the second year that this automatic tax cut was triggered. The first time was in 2011 and resulted in a tax cut in 2012.

The tax cuts do not need the approval of the Legislature. They are part of a system devised by the Legislature when it approved a $1 billion-plus tax hike package in 2002. The package set the long term capital gains tax at 5.3 percent and froze the income tax rate at 5.3 percent instead of allowing it to drop to 5 percent in January 2003 -- a reduction that was approved by voters in 2000. The 2002 law also includes an automatic trigger that reduces both taxes by one-half of one percent each year that the state's economic growth is at least 2.5 percent until each tax is reduced to five percent. The 2013 growth is 3.99 percent. The Department of Revenue estimates that the tax cuts will reduce state revenue by $65 million in fiscal year 2014 and $132.5 million in fiscal year 2015.

2014 BALLOT QUESTIONS - Sponsors of several possible ballot questions in the November 2014 election say they have filed more than the required 69,911 signatures, certified by local election officials, with the secretary of state as part of the long process to get their proposed law on the ballot. If the signatures are certified by the secretary of state, the question would then be sent to the Legislature and if not approved by May 6, 2014, proponents must gather another 11,485 signatures by July 2, 2014, in order for the question to appear on the November ballot.

Questions include repealing the indexing of the gas tax to inflation, limiting the number of patients a nurse can care for at one time, expanding the state's existing beer and soda bottle deposit law to require a deposit on bottles of most other carbonated and non-carbonated beverages, making casino gambling illegal, hiking the minimum wage from $8 per hour to $10.50 per hour and requiring employers to give sick days to employees.

The voters in 2012 approved ballot questions that allow medical use of marijuana and require auto manufacturers to sell to non-dealer repair shops complete repair information and diagnostic tools. They rejected a proposal to allow terminally ill patients with fewer than six months to live to obtain medication they can self-administer to commit suicide.

REQUIRE TRAINING AND EDUCATION FOR LOCAL BOARDS (S 1092) - The Public Health Committee held a hearing on legislation that would require members of local boards of health, conservation commissions, planning boards, and zoning boards of appeal to take an annual free education and training course developed by the state.

BODY PIERCING AND TATTOOS (H 1889) - The Public Health Committee's hearing also included a proposal that would direct the Department of Public Health to establish rules and regulations for the licensing and regulation of body piercing and tattoos. Supporters say the measure will create a statewide law to ensure sanitary and safe body piercing and tattoo practices. They noted that currently individual cities and towns regulate the practice, creating a hodge podge of regulations that vary across the state.

ACCUSED KILLERS (S 1950) - The Senate approved a new version of a measure that would prohibit the next of kin charged with the murder of a spouse or other family member from claiming the body. The proposal also allows the accused murderer to appeal the denial to a Probate and Family Court and requires the court to act on the appeal within two days. The House has approved a different version of the bill. The Senate version now goes to the House for consideration

The legislation is championed by Ginny Marcheterre, whose 19-year-old daughter Heather was murdered in 2010. Funeral services for Heather were delayed for more than a month because Kyle Alleyne, her daughter's husband, the alleged killer, refused to release the rights to her body. A court eventually ruled that the mother and family had legal rights to Heather's body. In February, Alleyne was convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

COMMENTARY

Budget concerns related to Cohasset kindergarten

ADRIENNE MACCARTHY

At the Nov. 20, school committee meeting, the business manager presented an early presentation of the FY15 budget titled "Budget Concerns."

At the Special Town Meeting there was much discussion around Article 1.

Although I believe the Chairman Schubert of the School Committee was well intentioned with how the town manages the "surplus" funds from FY13 and the anticipated additional revenue projected for FY14, I am having a hard time understanding how Article 1 as it related to the new "unanticipated" $600K.

According to our town's new fiscal policy " new revenue will be split 61/39 percent between the school and town respectively." Why didn't we follow the Town's fiscal policy as stated?

It is worthy to note that the school's were ask to cut their requested FY14 operating budget last spring by the acting town manager in order to present a balanced budget at the Annual Town Meeting. In cooperation with this request, the School Committee cut approximately $250K in order to meet this budget request. So what did they do? They took approximately $160K from the Kindergarten salaries' line.

How is this possible? They will rely on the Kindergarten tuition revolving account to fund the positions. So what's wrong with that? State law requires every town to provide a minimum of half-day kindergarten; that requires, in our case, at least 2.5 teachers to be in our operating budget. Currently, the School FY14 operating budget funds a .5 teacher. So, instead of the budget funding 2.5 positions (the minimum if we only offered half-day K) with the tuition revolving account funding three additional positions for full day; the tuition account is funding the two teachers salaries which, at a minimum, should be in the bottomline of the normal operating budget since they are required by law.

At the Nov. 20, school committee meeting, the business manager presented an early presentation of the FY15 budget titled "Budget Concerns." In his presentation, he gave a projected outlook on the impacted of using tuition to fund kindergarten salaries instead of adequately funding it in the present operating budget. Traditionally, the tuition revolving account rolled any surplus (revolved) funds into the next year until tuition payments come in. I believe the school committee was presented with three options to remedy the anticipated depletion of the tuition account. Options included another increase (last increase $500 for FY13/14) of Kindergarten Tuition, currently at $3,000/student, by a potential $500 next year (FY14/15) and another $500 the next year equaling $4,000 per full-day kindergarten student by the FY15/16 school year. As a former school committee member, I'm not sure where the word public fits into this equation!

Where am I going with this? Right back to Article 1, had the Fiscal Policy of dividing any NEW revenue been adhered to, the School FY14 operating budget could have (should have) been adequately funded, at the very least, within the kindergarten salary line, using the 61/39 split.

Accordingly, the monies that were divided amongst the different stabilization accounts are NOT guaranteed for use by the school department. Basically, the school committee along with the superintendent and business manager must make a "case" for each item they need funding for and it is up to the different committees (i.e. Advisory, Capital budget) to support the items. Then if my memory serves me correctly, the items to be funded make it into an article, which is presented at the Annual Town Meeting. Since Town Meeting approval is needed before these monies can be transferred for spending.

I know I look forward to more discussion during the budget season. And, I urge the School Committee to adequately and equitably fund the fiscal FY15 school budget, more specifically, in the Kindergarten Salary line.

STATEHOUSE

Bradley provides legislation update

State Rep. Garrett J. Bradley, D-Hingham, said the House of Representatives passed several key pieces of legislation, as well as local bills affecting Hingham and Cohasset, in the week leading up to the end of formal sessions Nov. 20. The House and Senate will continue to conduct routine business during informal sessions, however no roll-call votes can take place until the formal session reconvenes in January.

• Autism Data System

Among the items approved was a bill authorizing the borrowing of money to pay for projects and services related to information technology. The legislation includes $12 million secured by Rep. Bradley for the executive office of health and human services to establish an integrated confidential data system among all state agencies that interact with individuals with autism to track diagnosis, treatment, services and outcomes of individuals with autism.

• Local Bills

Several local bills were approved by the Legislature and are now on the Governor's desk, including one, which changes the position of treasurer-collector in Hingham from elected to appointed, and another which amends the special act establishing the Cohasset board of sewer commissioners. Another bill for Hingham, which became law, authorized the town to change a 3 acre parcel of land for municipal use in exchange for adding 10 acres to Bare Cove Park. A home-rule petition amending the town manager act in Cohasset passed the House and is awaiting further action in the Senate.

• Right to Repair

On Wednesday, Nov. 20, the Legislature approved legislation (H.3757) aimed at reconciling two state laws governing access to auto repair diagnostic information. In July of 2012, the Legislature passed H.4362, An Act protecting motor vehicle owners and small businesses in repairing motor vehicles. The intent of this bill was to provide consumers and independent repair facilities with diagnostic and repair information and tools equivalent to the information provided to dealers and authorized repair facilities. H.4362 was the result of years of negotiations on "right to repair" and represented a compromise among the parties. However, the compromise bill passed too late, precluding the removal of the "Right to Repair" initiative from the November 2012 election ballot. The Massachusetts Right to Repair Act ballot initiative passed and was also enacted as law. The version passed by the voters was slightly different, for example, requiring automakers to share diagnostic information by car model year 2015 instead of 2018 as enacted by the Legislature.

The bill passed by the House and Senate would harmonize both laws so as to avoid confusion and was agreed to by all the parties.

• Early Voting and Online Registration

The House also passed legislation that establishes early voting for presidential elections and provides resources to local officials and residents to make the voting process more efficient.

Early voting for presidential elections will begin in 2016. It is expected to significantly decrease wait times on Election Day and allow more individuals to vote. The bill also creates a secure online portal through which individuals can register and view their registration status.

Early voting will take place ten business days prior to presidential elections in accordance with regular business hours of the municipal office. Following the 2016 election, a task force will issue a report including information on costs, administrative requirements, voter turnout and the lines at polling places.

The online portal allows new applicants to register and existing voters to change their address, look up their polling place and confirm they are registered. The system will streamline the voter registration process and is expected to cut costs.

The bill passed the House by a vote of 142-10.

State Rep. Garrett Bradley represents the Third Plymouth District that includes Hingham, Cohasset, Hull and one precinct in Scituate.

COLLEGE HOOP

Lehr doubles up

Cohasset's Tori Lehr, a senior at St Anselm College, notched her third straight double-double and sixth of the season with 10 points and 13 rebounds beating Stonehill 66-65 on their home court December 10.

The game had several lead changes and with just nine seconds left Stonehill inbounded the ball with a lob into the paint but, Lehr jumped up to tip the pass away and seal the victory for St. Anslem.

Prior to this game in division II, her five double-doubles this season lead the league and place her fifth in the country, while her 9.9 rebounds per game are fourth best in the conference and 41st in the nation and her .512 field goal percentage ranks eighth in the league and 96th nationally.

Fantastic resolve

Skippers never give up in epic battle

By Mark Ducharme

The old cliché' is that you have to bring your best in a state championship game and Littleton did.

The Tigers' Travis Bassett brought his personal best to Gillette Stadium for the Div. 6 state championship game and it was too much for Cohasset. Bassett rushed for 263 yards on 22 carries and caught a pass for 29 yards for 292 all-purpose yards and scored five touchdowns to lead Littleton to a 52-35 win over Cohasset.

The two teams combined for the largest point total in the history of the Super Bowl at any level.

Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw felt like his team had a tough time trying to slow down the entire Littleton offense that racked up

Hitting the mats

Grapplers start Saturday

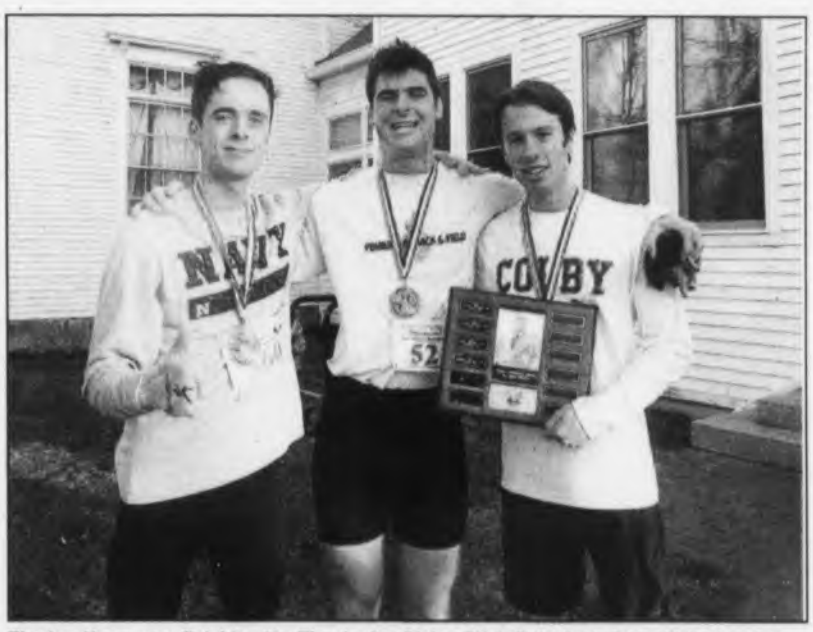
By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset wrestling team had a small team last year as far as numbers went, but on the mats, longtime coach Torin Sweeney worked his usual magic and his team finished the season 18-9.

This year, the numbers are up a bit, and so are hopes.

"We've got a good group of kids," Sweeney said. "We've got 23 or 24 on the roster. That's a decent number. I'd love more, but will be happy with what I have."

This year brings about big changes as the Skippers leave the MayShore League and join the new South Shore League with Norwell, Carver, Randolph and Rockland.



"We're now separated from the tech schools," Sweeney said. "That league just got too big. Some of those schools are much bigger than us. This (SSL) is a good balanced league."

Another positive is shorter travel times to away meets.

"We used to have some long trips," Sweeney said. "We had Bristol-Plymouth and Tri-County."

Thanks-for-giving 5K thankful for support

Thank you to all who participated in the Cohasset Thanks-for-giving 5K Road Race to support the Cohasset Recreation Department and the Clark Chatterton Memorial Fund.

This year's race had over 647 registered runners (346 males and 303 females) from age 4 to 81,.an increase from last year of 51 runners braving the chilly weather. We had 217 Kids under the age of 18 running as well, which made for a fun atmosphere.

Runners came from 13 states including Massachusetts, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, Maine, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Rhode Island, Utah, and Virginia. Massachusetts runners came from 31 towns including 403 runners from Cohasset.

Charlie Coffman from Cohasset won his fourth race in five years with his best time finishing in 16:12 to win the Clark Chatterton Award for Top Male Finisher. Holly Madden from Scituate placed first overall for the Women with a 19:42 run and awards her with the James Lagrotteria Award for Top Female Finisher.

We would like to make a special Thank you to our Volunteers and staff for taking the time away from their families to help out on Thanksgiving morning - without you this event would not happen!

LETTER

Coach Afanasiw says thanks

Esteemed Members of the Cohasset Community,

On behalf of the entire Cohasset Football Program I would like to take a quick second to thank all of you who supported the team in countless ways this season. Even though our ultimate goal was not reached so many of you were instrumental in helping us not only win another South Shore League Championship and the school's first ever Eastern Mass Championship but also, helping us get to the school's first ever (but hopefully not last) Super Bowl.

The 67 young men that took the field on Saturday at Gillette Stadium, have a tremendous amount to be proud of and over the course of the season made some unbelievable memories for themselves, their friends, classmates and families. Without the support shown by the entire community none of this would have been possible.

The Cheerleaders & Pep Band, the school administration, the parents, the police and fire departments, too many local businesses to count, the staff of the Mariner for their coverage, the Gridiron Club, the students, faculty, parents and alumni that came out in droves to support us, all deserve a special thanks and a tip of the cap for a job well done this year. It truly was a record breaking season for Cohasset Football, and in great part because of your efforts we all will look back on this year's Cohasset edition of 'Friday Night Lights' with special fondness.

I would be remiss if I did not mention the handful of Skipper fans that went above and beyond in their support this season: Mr. Dan Leahy (our official team photographer), Mrs. Ellen Maher (wears more hats for the program than space allows), Steve Budrick (the best athletic trainer in the world), and of the course the coaching staff and players whose efforts, passion and dedication truly make my job the best in the world. Thank you for everything you did this season making it a magical year!

Happy Holidays!

Sincerely,
Pete Afanasiw

Kelly honored by NESCAC

Former Skipper star is also Maine Player of the Week

Bates senior captain Meredith Kelly was named NESCAC Women's Basketball Player of the Week, announced Monday by the New England Small College Athletic Conference, following her explosive week averaging 31.8 points per game. And on Tuesday, Kelly added Maine Player of the Week honors to her haul.

Kelly (Cohasset, Mass.) scored 30 or more points in all three of the Bobcats' wins in a 3-1 week, averaging 31.8 points in 32.5 minutes per game while shooting .565 from the field and .786 from the free-throw line. Kelly also posted 8.5 rebounds, 3.8 steals and 2.0 assists per game on the week. Kelly scored 12 of her 30 points in overtime as Bates won 80-75 at Colby on Wednesday, adding in 11 rebounds and six steals. She wrapped up the week with a Bates-record 42 points in a 104-83 win over UMaine-Augusta, also setting team records for field goals (18) and points in a half (25). Bates' previous single-game scoring record was 37.

This is Kelly's first time winning NESCAC Player of the Week, and the second time this season the 5-foot-8 guard has been named Maine Player of the Week by the Maine Women's Basketball Coaches Association — she previously received that honor on Nov. 19.

Kelly leads the NESCAC in scoring at a hefty 24.8 points per game, a whopping 7.4 points more per game than the next player on the list. Kelly is also first in the conference in steals per game (3.4), eighth in field goal percentage (.516) and 17th in rebounds per game (6.6).

FOOTBALL

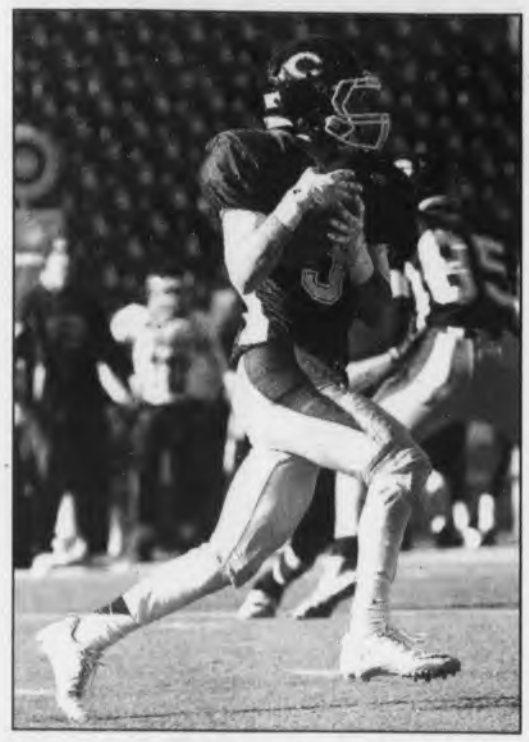
505 total yards.

"They were very well schooled," said Afanasiw. "They were very athletic. You score 35 points and you figure in a Super Bowl you are in a good situation, but when you can't stop the other team... I have to give them a whole lot of credit."

Rather than whine about playing poorly or giving the game away, the Skippers spoke honestly and credited Littleton.



"Littleton was just a good team," said Cohasset senior fullback Ryan Gillis who rushed for 31 yards on four carries. "They had schemes against our defense that we could not predict. It was a tough day for us. They were well prepared for our defense. They had No. 5 (Bassett) and No. 9 (quarterback Alexander McLaughlin) and they played great. They both played unbelievable games."

Bassett, who ran for four scores and also caught a touchdown pass lifted his season total to 34.

McLaughlin threw two touchdowns passes and ran for another as Littleton jumped to a 22-0 lead that had Cohasset playing comeback all morning. For Littleton, the early lead was huge, because the Skippers weren't going away.

The Skippers kept battling back and fought their way to within 10 at halftime, 30-20 on Rocco Laugelle's incredible 75-yard pass interception return with nine seconds left in the first half. Laugelle also had a good day offensively, catching six passes for 59 yards.

Afanasiw was impressed with his team and the season that they had.

"It is immeasurable," Afanasiw said. "The amount of pride I have for this team. This team has character and other quality that I can't enumerate right now. This is a wonderful group of young men. I am so proud of them."

The Skippers coach liked what he saw from some his other skilled position players beside Laugelle.

Senior quarterback Chris Haggerty did his best to scramble from the Littleton pressure and throw for 207 yards with a 14-for-26 passing day. Haggerty scored three touchdowns on 16 carries for 78 yards.

His first touchdown was impressive, as on an option, he cut back inside and ran nearly untouched for a 44-yard score. Haggerty also added a pair of 1-yard quarterback sneaks for scores.

Junior tailback Cole Kissick had 85 yards on 21 carries and kept drives alive with his ability to run between the tackles.

"I have a feeling it will take a little bit of time to get over this loss," said Afanasiw. "We have our banquet next Sunday. We will have time to reflect and look back on a great season. I don't think that we lost the game, I just feel that Littleton just made more plays than we did."

WRESTLING

For the Skippers, there is a nice mix of experience and youth.

"We have five solid seniors," Sweeney said. "And great senior leadership."

The seniors are captain Harry Helbock, John Nolan, captain Joe Sestito, Chandler Skolnick and Steven Maher.

Sestito however, will not wrestle.

"We lost him to a nagging shoulder injury," Sweeney said of Sestito, who finished fourth at last year's South Sectionals in his weight group. "Still, he's going to help work with the kids, help coach and hope to heal up. He's really helping out. He's a great motivator."

Helbock was also a fourth-place finisher at sectionals last year, while Maher was second in his weight class at sectionals last year.

Matt Froio is a junior with good experience. He's a captain and a MayShore League all-star. Froio finished third at sectionals last year.

"He's worked really hard this year," Sweeney said of Froio. "He won the Bay State Games this summer."

Hayes Keniley and Kyle McNight are the team's other juniors.

There are nine sophomores on the team, including Sean Mavilia.

"Sean was eighth in the state at 126 last year," Sweeney said. "He's wrestled on the bigger stage. He'll be a good sophomore for us."

Mavilia was also a league all-star.

Freshman Drew Skolnick wrestled as an eighth grader last year, and finished fourth at sectionals.

Overall, Sweeney feels his team might be a bit ahead of the curve when it comes to the league.

"The league is very balanced," he said. "Most of the teams are in rebuilding modes. I think we're a step ahead in rebuilding. We have some experience. We're young, but experienced. Not quite rebuilding. We'll be competitive."

Sweeney said the team's goals are to win the South Shore League, do well at Sectionals and take a strong run in States.

"Doing well in the sectionals should set us up for a strong run in the states," he said. "Top 10 in Division 3 is always the standard and I don't see any reason we can't be top five this season."

Cohasset opens Saturday at the Bristol Aggie Team Tournament and has a big meet at BC High on Wednesday.

"We won the Bristol-Aggie Tournament a couple of years ago," Sweeney said. "Last year we were third. BC High is a big one. It will give us some tough competition off the bat. It will be a good test for us."

HAPPENING SATURDAY

Caroling at Village Stroll

For our 11th year in a row, First Parish on the Common is sponsoring an old and well-loved Cohasset tradition. Caroling at the Village Stroll, on Saturday, Dec. 14.

Exceptional singing voices are not required; participants will be backed by the "world-renowned" First Parish Choir, which will lead us in a medley of familiar and simple carols.

Everyone is welcome. This is a community event for young and old, especially families with school-age children. Bring some friends. Exceptional singing voices are not required; participants will be backed by the "world-renowned" First Parish Choir, which will lead us in a medley of familiar and simple carols.

An early dinner of pizza will be served in the Parish House starting at 4:30 p.m.; participants will then walk downtown to Darilynn's store on Main Street around 5:15 p.m. to enjoy hot cocoa, hot cider and cookies. Cookie donations will be much appreciated. We'll do singing for about 30 minutes from 5:30 to 6 p.m. after which you'll be free to sample the wares of our Village stores, and take a ride on the hay wagon.

Join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word. The more the merrier. For further information contact Sandy Bailey at 781-383-1100 or Woody Chittick at 383-3215.

MARK YOUR CALENDAR

Social Security workshop Jan. 7

Are you nearing retirement age? Preparing to retire can be a daunting task if you don't know where to turn. Mark your calendars now for Tuesday, Jan. 7, at 4:30 p.m. for a presentation by Kirsten Alberino, public affairs specialist from the Social Security Administration.

Topics will include how earnings and pensions affect benefits, how to estimate retirement benefits and the Social Security application process. This program will be held at Cohasset Elder Affairs, 3 North Main St. Light refreshments will be served. Reservations are required. Call Cohasset Elder Affairs at 781-383-9112 to save your seat.

Circus in Residence

Program culminates with performance

Last week the Circus in Residence Program returned to the Deer Hill School. Funded by grants from Cohasset PSO, Cohasset Education Foundation and South Shore Playhouse Associates, the week-long program consisted of professional circus performers from Circus Kids Productions teaching students how to perform acts such as acrobatics, juggling, plate spinning, stilts and other classic circus stunts. All 440 students in the third- to fifth-grades participated in this program as part of their regular physical education classes. The program cumulated with a performance on Friday night by the fifth grade students who received extra training during the week.

Parents, community members and school faculty all came out to support the students as they amazed the crowd with their newly acquired circus art skills.

"This is the second year Deer Hill students participated in this outstanding program, and it is my hope that it will become a beloved tradition that will strengthen friendships among students as they support one another in risk taking and overcoming challenges for years to come," said Principal Jennifer deChiara.

ANGELS AND WONDERS

Holiday concert to benefit Wellspring Multi-Service Center

The Unicorn Singers and Broad Cove Chorale will present their 10th annual Christmas concert supporting the programs and services at Wellspring Multi-Service Center. All are invited to join the groups along with narrator Michael Theobald as they explore the mysteries and miracles of the Christmas season.

Under the direction of Margo Euler, the choruses will offer music for both mixed chorus and women's voices, along with the special addition of a small bell ensemble. Hear the words of poets, humorists and philosophers on the heavenly wonders such as angels and stars, as well as the more earth-bound mystery of Santa's annual visit. As always, the audience will be invited to join in singing familiar carols throughout the concert.

Concert times: Saturday, Dec. 14, 8 p.m., at First Parish Church on Cohasset Common; and Sunday, Dec. 15, at 4 p.m., at House of Prayer Lutheran Church, 916 Main St., Hingham.

Regular ticket price: $15; Sponsor tickets: $25 each and mean extra support for Wellspring. For tickets: send check payable to Wellspring, c/o Kathy Reardon, 9 Steamboat Lane, Hingham 02043, or call 781-749-0162. Tickets are also at Noble's Camera Shop, Hingham.

Concert times and locations for the Unicorn Singers and Broad Cove Chorale holiday concert are: Saturday, Dec. 14, 8 p.m., at First Parish Church on Cohasset Common; and Sunday, Dec. 15, at 4 p.m., at House of Prayer Lutheran Church, 916 Main St., Hingham. COURTESY PHOTO

New time for First Parish Christmas Eve Service

The traditional candlelight service held on December 24 at First Parish each year will begin at 5 p.m., according to Rev. Jill Cowie, First Parish Minister. This earlier schedule will better accommodate dinner plans and children's bedtimes.

People can still expect the same beautiful music and message. First Parish welcomes all to this and every service.

HAPPENING SUNDAY

Berry performs CD release concert

Noted fortepianist and harpsichordist Sylvia Berry has just released her debut CD – Haydn: The London Sonatas – on the Acis label, and she will perform her first official CD release concert at First Parish's Trueblood Hall at 3 p.m., 23 North Main St., on Sunday, Dec. 15. She has been the organist at First Parish Cohasset since 2010.

Berry will play a grand piano from 1806 with members of Boston's famed period instrument orchestra The Handel and Haydn Society, and with critically acclaimed mezzo-soprano Thea Lobo.

In conjunction with this event, Berry is also hosting a winter clothing drive for Second Chances that provides free clothing for people in need in the Boston area. Second Chances also accepts accessories, linens, and baby clothes.

Admission: $15 general/$12 students and seniors/FREE for children 12 and under.

For more information, visit sylviaberry.org or secondchances.org.

Sara Marmo

Sara Marmo

COHASSET – Sara Marmo of Cohasset, formerly of New York, passed away peacefully Dec. 4, 2013, at the age of 93.

Sara was the beloved wife of the late Joseph P. Marmo; and mother of Don Marmo and his wife Angela of Montville, N.J., Michael J. Marmo (deceased) and his wife Morita of Cincinnati, Ohio, Roseanne Marmo McMorris and her husband David of Cohasset. She was a grandmother to Michael, David and Steven Marmo, Peter and Susan Marmo, and Karen McMorris Switkowski, Leah McMorris Carlsen, Sarah and Rachel McMorris. She was a great-grandmother to Hannah, Michael (Mischa), Elana, and Luciana Marmo.

Sara is also survived by several nieces and nephews who were very dear to her.

Residents of the community could find Sara cooking at the senior center, volunteering at South Shore Hospital, or working in her garden.

She never ceased to amaze her family and friends with her sharp wit, keen mind, and ability to tell it like it is.

Donations in her memory can be made to Project Bread, 145 Border St., East Boston, MA 02128.

Joan E. Meallo

Joan E. Meallo

SCITUATE – Joan Elizabeth (Emanuello) Meallo, age 54, of Scituate, formerly of Cohasset, passed away Nov. 30, 2013, with family at her side.

A tennis member of Hatherly Country Club and Scituate Racquet Club, Joanie loved and made many dear friends.

She was the "Number One Fan" of the Notre Dame Academy Golf Team and enjoyed her position as a Marketing Specialist for the Shoe Market in Hingham.

To meet Joanie was to be blessed by her gentleness, warmth and grace. She loved her family with a heart of gold, and spread that love with her kind words, a loving card, or a knitted sweater.

She embraced her life and her friends with an open heart and a smile.

Joan was the beloved daughter of Marjorie (Miller) Emanuello and the late Paul Emanuello. Joan was the loving wife of Gregory Meallo and the cherished mother of Lindsey Meallo. She was the beloved sister of Lynda Southerland of Quincy, Judy Jeal and husband Robert of Coventry, CT, Paula Dion of Pembroke, Paul Emanuello and wife Lily of Cohasset. Joan was also the daughter-in-law of Albert and Paula Meallo of Cohasset, and leaves behind ten nieces and nephews along with four great-nieces and nephews whom she adored.

Joanie's family would like to thank the medical professionals whose role as doctors went far beyond medical treatment as they became friends who loved and guided her in her battle against colon cancer- Dr. Roger Pompeo, Dr. Tom Kenney, Dr. Chris Kenney, Dr. Michael Curry, Dr. Bob Driscoll, Dr. Jim Everett, and Dr. Anne Roberge. Through their outstanding care and support, her family was blessed with more time to spend with Joanie for which they are so grateful.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated Friday, Dec. 6, 2013, at 10 a.m. in St. Anthony Church, 10 Summer St., Cohasset, followed by reception at the parish hall. Interment private and visiting hours omitted.

In lieu of flowers, donations to honor Joan may be made to the Meallo Family Education Fund, c/o Rockland Trust Bank, Attn: C. Duggan, 773 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Claire G. O'Brien

Claire G. O'Brien

COHASSET – Claire G. (Crowley) O'Brien, 93, of Cohasset died peacefully at home Nov. 27, 2013. Claire "Jenny" was the devoted wife of the late John F. "Jack" O'Brien.

Jenny and Jack began a friendship as children in Dorchester which ripened into abiding love. Claire was the daughter of the late James A. and Agnes G. (Dunn) Crowley. Loving mother of Claire G. O'Brien "Rissa", Cohasset; Elizabeth B. O'Brien, Cumming, GA; Capt. John F. O'Brien Jr. USN (retired) (Elizabeth Anne), Norfolk, VA; former Cdr. Neal J. O'Brien USN (Susan H.) Milton, GA. Adoring grandmother to Matthew J. Gaziano (Adrienne) Arlington, VA; Em Gaziano, Reston, VA; Mairin S. O'Brien, Norfolk, VA; John F. O'Brien III and Conor W. O'Brien, Milton, GA.

Claire cherished her siblings Col. James A. Crowley Jr. USA (retired) (deceased), his wife Betty, Wolfeboro, NH; Ruth G. Goggin, Braintree, MA; Robert V. Crowley, his wife Jane, Mashpee, MA. "Aunt Claire" loved and was beloved by her nieces, nephews and their children.

Claire had an extraordinary effect on everyone she met. A woman of striking appearance, known for her elegant manner, she possessed a classic sense of style with a dash of the eclectic.

She could hold court at the kitchen counter of her beloved home or in the dining room of a Disney cruise ship. She loved traveling to see her grandchildren.

An accomplished hostess, she excelled at interior design, flower arranging and needlepoint.

A child of the Great Depression, she overcame the disappointment of not being able to afford college and turned her intellectual gifts and passion for reading into a lifelong journey.

Claire worked for the Federal Reserve Bank; during World War II she worked at the U.S. Army Base, Boston, as a civilian employee in the highly classified arena of troop movements.

Her community service included membership in the Social Service League of Cohasset. She received a commendation in 1999 for thirty plus years of volunteer service in the Cohasset Consignment Shop. She volunteered at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library and for Hospitality Committee at Saint Anthony Parish.

An excellent cook, Claire participated in the creation of the classic cookbook "Cohasset Entertains" as a contributor and recipe tester.

A treasured friend, she shared her wisdom with gracious generosity and a dose of New England practicality and wry humor - a great lady and true individual.

Special thanks to Dr. Harry Shapiro, Massachusetts General Hospital, for the superb care he afforded Claire. Doctor and patient, their relationship transcended mundane professionalism. Respect and friendship were framed by rapier wits and genuine affection. Her implicit trust in Dr. Shapiro's wisdom instilled in her a peaceful confidence- the hallmark of their long association.

It is with gratitude her family hails "Team Claire" – the extraordinary women who cared for and loved Claire. Renee, Pat, Tiffany and Trisha gave Claire care, company, love and laughter. Her family remains in their debt and acknowledge their unique contributions to Claire's well-being and happiness.

Visiting hours were held Friday, Dec. 6, 3-7 p.m., McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer Street (across from St. Anthony Church), Cohasset. A Mass of Christian burial and celebration of life were held at St. Anthony Church, Cohasset, Saturday, Dec. 7, at 9 a.m. Burial immediately following, St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Remembrances may be made in Claire's memory to Sprout Creek Farm, 34 Lauer Road, Poughkeepsie, N.Y. 12603; in care of Sister Margo Morris. www.sproutcreekfarm.org.

WINTRY CRASH SCENE

sible that someone crawled under the door, opened the garage door and stole the furniture. The matter is under investigation.

Old bird

The animal control officer responded to a call about a "sick" turkey on Lamberts Lane near the Golf Club at around 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 3). As it turned out, the turkey was an elderly bird but was doing just fine, the animal control officer reported.

Argument

Police responded to an Avalon unit on Tuesday (Dec. 3) around 5:45 p.m. after a 15-year-old girl called concerned that the verbal argument that her mother and her 17-year-old sister were having might escalate. Officers saw no signs of a physical altercation and peace was restored.

9-1-1 mistakes

It is police department policy to follow up in person on all abandoned, accidental or hang-up 9-1-1 calls as a precaution in case the incident is of a serious nature.

The weekly log usually includes accidental calls. Over the past week, a Sohier Street woman looking for the police business line called 9-1-1 and hung up. In another incident, a 4-year-old was playing with the phone and dialed 9-1-1. Police responded to both homes and confirmed the calls were accidental.

Mailboxes

Two incidents of apparent mailbox vandalism were reported on Forest Avenue on Sunday (Dec. 8) involving the mailboxes being ripped out of the ground or damaged.

'Fill the Tahoe' during Village stroll

As part of the Cohasset Police Department's Toys for Tots collection the Cohasset Police Tahoe SUV will be parked on S. Main Street during Saturday's Village Stroll where strollgoers can drop off an unwrapped toy. Police hope that folks will "Fill the Tahoe" with toys.

Each year, the Cohasset Police Department joins with the Marine Corps for the annual Toys for Tots campaign. New toys and games can be dropped off at the Cohasset Police Headquarters, on Elm Street, 24 hours a day, and seven days a week though Dec. 24. Toys and games should not be wrapped. For more information, call the station at 781-383-1212.

The mission of the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Program is to collect new, unwrapped toys and distribute those toys as Christmas gifts to needy children.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF DEC. 22, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The arts are a strong part of the Arian aspect, with music becoming more dominant. An important decision looms as a longtime relationship takes an unexpected turn.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Surrounding yourself with beautiful things helps restore the Taurean soul. Enjoy an art exhibit, for example. Or redecorate your personal space with something truly splendid.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Some colleagues might try to talk you out of what they insist is a risk, but which you consider an opportunity. As usual, follow your own good sense when making your decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A workplace change you might have worried about soon proves to be highly favorable for the clever Crab who is ready to take advantage of new opportunities opening up.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Congratulations. Your Leonine pride is polished to a dazzling new brilliance thanks to your success in winning support for your new project from even the most doubtful of detractors.

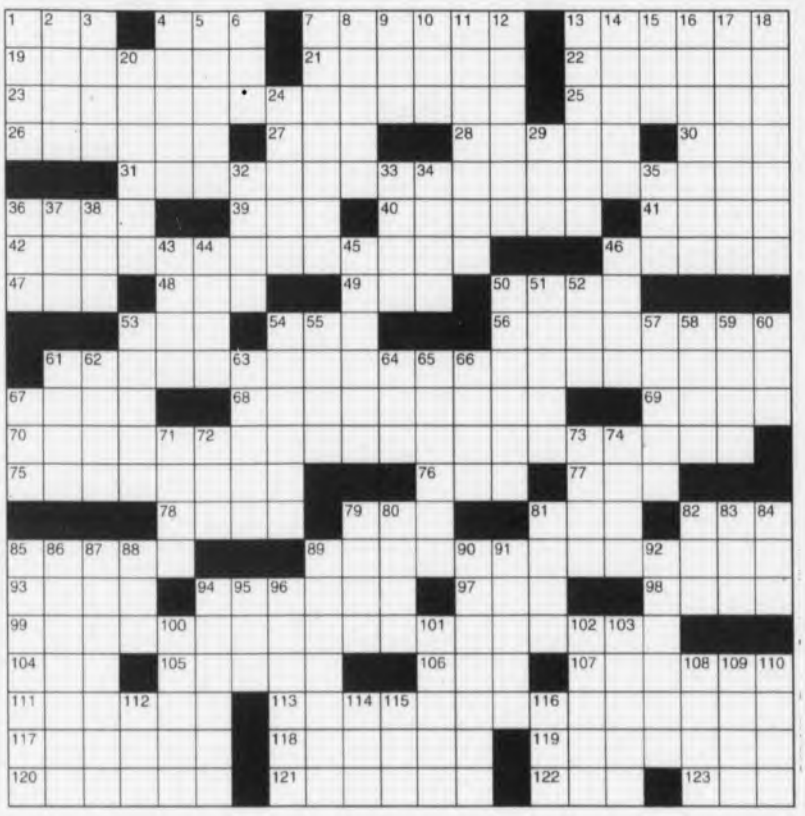
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An unsettling rumor about a colleague's apparently regrettable behavior is soon proved groundless, allowing you to enjoy the upcoming end-of-year festivities in a happy mood.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your success in helping to create a harmonious environment out of a chaotic situation earns you the admiration of someone who could become an important new presence in your life.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your Scorpion's sense of loyalty could find you leading a passionate defense of a loved one you feel is being unfairly treated. The week's end brings long-awaited family news.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your keen instincts are once more on high alert as you find yourself being pressured to make a quick decision about a certain matter. More facts come to light by week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) An unexpected workplace development could disrupt some family plans. A full explanation, however, averts domestic discord. A financial matter continues to need attention.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Spend time away from distractions to reassess some recent moves that might not have worked out as you had hoped. What you learn could be invaluable for future decision-making.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A recent act of kindness is a reminder of how important your friends are to you. You might want to show your appreciation by hosting a special pre-New Year's party just for them.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles?

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

TOWN MANAGER SEARCH

Senior named new TM

Milanoski moves on to Carver

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

On a snowy Tuesday night, the Board of Selectmen voted unanimously to appoint Chris Senior, deputy town supervisor of North Hempstead, N.Y., as Cohasset's next permanent town manager.

Selectmen chair Fred Koed called Senior during a break in the board meeting, and Senior accepted the position Tuesday night, pending contract negotiations. Koed said in a phone call Wednesday that he and vice chair Diane Kennedy will work with Senior to negotiate his contract and decide on a start date.

The selectmen chair added that he's glad all five members of his board managed to reach a consensus.

"I think it was a good thing for the town that everybody came to the same conclusion," said Koed.

Cohasset's Acting Town Manager, Michael Milanoski, learned Tuesday night that the Carver selectmen voted unanimously to hire him as Town Administrator, pending negotiations.

Senior has worked in his current position since 2004; prior to that, he worked as deputy county attorney in Mineola, N.Y. He holds bachelor's degrees in journalism and economics from Boston University and a J.D. from Hofstra University.

Cohasset's town manager search was launched in July, with the selectmen hiring the UMass Collins Center to advertise the position and cull the candidates to a list of finalists. The town of Carver also hired the Collins Center, and while the job description for Cohasset's town manager position and Carver's town administrator were identical, Milanoski was not a finalist in Cohasset.

Milanoski said that while he is disappointed that he did not make the cut in

Osgood students are chess friends

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Have you ever been beaten in chess – by a kindergartener?

Osgood School Principal Robert LeCount admits it – some of Cohasset's littlest students have schooled him at his own game.

"Many of them already knew how to play," LeCount said of Osgood's chess club, comprised of 24 kindergarteners, first and second graders. He then asked the group of students, "How many of you have beaten me in chess?"

Several hands went up.

JJ Campbell, 7, said that, "yeah," he already knew how to play before joining the club. "I have a chessboard at the house. I just learned it on my own for the first day of chess [at school]."

LeCount said that when he wrote about starting a chess club in his school newsletter, he was not anticipating the response that he received. "I had over 30 responses," he shared, explaining that he had to limit the group to 24 students in order to best supervise the group.

The kids' excitement over peering at a chessboard – or playing with the oversized board on the floor – is palpable. Even if they are playing it the "old-fashioned" way, although many of the kids said that they play chess on their parents' phones or iPads.

Eight-year-old William Griffin said that he likes the social aspect of playing in chess club.

"It's really fun; you get to

PICTURE THIS

Mrs. Claus

Name: Mrs. Claus.

Occupation: Santa Claus' wife; baker; seamstress; director of elf development.

Best day of your life: When Rudolph was able to guide Santa's sleigh...or was it my wedding day?? Can I say both?

Best (or worst) vacation: Best vacation was when Disney closed so that Santa, the elves and I could go for the day!!!! We flew the sleigh with all 8 reindeer plus Rudolph too and landed on top of Epcot.....we were told to move the sleigh to Cinderella's castle.

Favorite season: Winter.

Favorite holiday: Christmas...of course.

Favorite food: Sushi....can't get it much in the North Pole so if anyone wants to leave me a piece with Santa on Christmas Eve I would love it!! However, chocolate chip cookies are a close second...I wouldn't mind a note with one of those left for me next to Santa's cookies either.

Best book: "The Night Before Christmas" and "The Autobiography of Santa Claus" by Jeff Guinn - It explains everything!!

Best movie (or actor): This year it is "Frozen."

Best TV show: "Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer."

Best music, group, or artist: The Elf Symphony or Bing Crosby.

Pet peeve: When the elves don't work hard or when people get moved to the naughty list for being mean to others.

The Mariner caught up with Mrs. Claus as she was arriving at the harbor for the annual Jingle Bell Walk sponsored by the South Shore Community Center. Mrs. Claus is really busy this time of year but if you should see her around town or with her husband, Santa, be sure to tell her that you spotted her in Picture This! STAFF PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN Fun fact and most embarrassing moment: Fun fact about me is that once I married Santa I got to live forever. Most embarrassing moment was when I was newly married to Santa he was teaching me to fly the sleigh and I ran into the Head Elf, Otis. He was ok thank God!!

Goal: To ensure Santa stays healthy & jolly to get toys to ALL the good boys & girls on Christmas Eve —every year. Also to encourage everyone to make sure no one is lonely during this magical time of the year

Person you'd most like to meet: Martha Stewart...she makes it all look so easy!! and she doesn't even have elves!!...well not real ones at least..

Biggest worry: That Santa will miss someone on Christmas Eve...though it has never happened or that someone will be sad and/or lonely over the holidays.

Best part of Cohasset: All the children, Willow Salon, Spa & Shoppe (where I try to go whenever I am in town for a quick facial/pedi and updo) and being able to land the sleigh on Sandy Beach...my driving hasn't gotten much better since all those years ago.

Rockland woman's car hit by Greenbush train

On Tuesday, Dec. 17, at about 6:30 p.m., Cohasset Police Officers and Transit Police Officers were dispatched to a report of a vehicle vs. commuter train crash, at the North Main Street grade crossing in Cohasset.

On arrival officers found a 2001 Hyundai Accent sedan with damage to the driver's side of the vehicle. The driver of the Hyundai was identified as a 41-year-old woman from Rockland. She told officers that she did not react quickly enough when the crossing gates came down. She panicked and got stuck inside the grade crossing, and was not able to move her vehicle out of the way of an outbound commuter train that was entering the crossing, due to snow and ice covered roads.

The train hit the back passenger side of the Hyundai and spun it around 180 degrees. The vehicle came to rest in the southbound lane of North Main Street.

The train hit the back passenger side of the Hyundai and spun it around 180 degrees. The vehicle came to rest in the southbound lane of North Main Street. The driver of the Hyundai was uninjured in the crash, and no injuries were reported by the 100 passengers on the train.

The MBTA stopped service on the Greenbush Line for approximately one hour while crews worked to free the vehicle.

Police said the Hyundai had been traveling north from Cohasset toward Hingham when the accident occurred. The train's engineer saw the car in the crossing and applied the emergency brakes that slowed the train. The train was not damaged and was able to continue on its way once the scene was cleared and documented by police and transit officials.

Cohasset Acting Chief of Police William Quigley praised the response from the Transit Police and his officers. He stated that it was truly a miracle that the driver of the Hyundai was not seriously injured. The crash remains under investigation by the Cohasset police and the Transit police departments.

Lawnmower incident clarified

An item in last week's Police Beat news column about a lawnmower needs to be clarified. The news brief concerned a 67-year-old Hingham man who went to the police for help in picking up his John Deere riding lawnmower that he had left at a mechanic's house in Cohasset.

The mechanic, who does small engine repair, had only had the lawnmower for a couple of weeks, not for six months as reported. The Cohasset mechanic had let the Hingham man know that the repairs would run close to $500.

The mechanic said he had been working on the engine but the owner of the lawnmower wanted it back in the hope that the man he had purchased the lawnmower from would cover the repairs under the warranty. The mechanic said the man did not call him in advance on Monday (Dec. 2) to let him know he was coming to pick the lawnmower up. If he had done so, the mechanic would have been happy to transport the lawnmower back to his Hingham home.

Local airport ride slips off Jerusalem Road into gully

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

A local resident called a livery service out of Marshfield for a ride to the airport in the early hours of Sunday morning (Dec. 16) during the snowstorm. However, the 2007 Chevrolet Tahoe, operated by a 67-year-old Scituate man, who works for the livery service, and the passenger did not get very far.

Police said after picking up the passenger to go to Logan Airport in ice and snow conditions, the Tahoe skidded off the road and down a gully around 4:15 a.m. at Jerusalem Road about 100 yards from N. Main Street.

Police said the vehicle went way down the embankment and landed on its side. The driver and passenger were able to exit the vehicle and were standing outside. The Tahoe was totaled in the crash. The vehicle could not be towed for three hours due to the wintry conditions. Express Towing had to bring a heavy-duty wrecker with a crane to remove the vehicle. There was no citation issued to the operator, as the accident was weather-related, police said.

2-car MVA

Police responded to a two-car accident on Border Street near Otis Avenue at around 11:40 a.m. on Monday (Dec. 9). Police said a 2005 Volkswagen Passat, operated by a 19-year-old Hanover man, was about to make a left-hand turn into a driveway when the VW was struck by a 2007 Chevrolet Tahoe that tried to pass the VW on the left. Both vehicles were headed toward Scituate, police said. The operator of the Tahoe, a 46-year-old Scituate man, was cited for passing in a no-passing zone. There were no injuries; both vehicles had to be towed.

Checked out

Two-unrelated reports of suspicious-acting men at two different plazas turned out to be unfounded, police said. At 2 a.m. and 2:28 a.m. respectively on Wednesday (Dec. 11) police checked out the two men.

A caller reported seeing a man with a shopping cart going between the buildings at Tedeschi Plaza. The man, whom police are familiar with, was looking for returnables in the trash bins.

An officer checked on a 23-year-old in front of the UPS store at Shaw's Plaza. As it turned out, the young man works for the property management company at the plaza and was putting ice melt by the businesses, police said.

2-car MVA

There was a rear-end, two-car accident on King Street (Route 3A) near Dunkin Donuts at 7:18 a.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 11). Police said a 2004 Jeep Grand Cherokee that was headed south and was being operated by a 55-year-old Braintree man, was slowing to make a left into Dunkin Donuts when the Jeep was hit from behind by a 2013 Toyota Prius. Both vehicles were towed; there were no reported injuries. The 24-year-old Norwood man operating the Toyota was cited for following too closely on a state highway, police said.

Hit & run

Police were unable to locate the vehicle that was seen striking a 2013 Subaru sedan that was parked in front of Dooley's on Depot Court at 12 p.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 11).

There was moderate damage to the driver's side rear of the Subaru that was registered to a 24-year-old Dorchester woman, police said. A witness said the other car backed into the Subaru and took off but could not provide a good description of the other vehicle.

Dispute

A local business and a contractor are going to settle a dispute civilly through their attorneys, police said. The business said that the contractor had damaged some kitchen equipment and the business did not want to pay him due to the damage. Police were called last Wednesday (Dec. 11) when the contractor refused to leave the premises.

2-car MVA

Police said a 1999 Volvo S70 wagon was backing out of an angled spot on South Main Street in the village on Friday (Dec. 13) around 1:11 p.m. when it was hit by a 2010 Lexus that was headed north on S. Main Street. The Volvo was being operated by a 51-year-old Scituate woman and the Lexus was being operated by a 78-year-old Cohasset woman. There were no injuries and no citations. The Volvo had to be towed, police said.

SENIOR

Cohasset, he looks forward to a new chapter in Carver.

"Although I am disappointed to leave a well-run town government with a productive team of employees that is financially stable, I am excited about the opportunity to work with the people and employees of Carver to accomplish their goals and objectives," Milanoski said in a statement Wednesday.

Cohasset's newly named town manager bested four other finalists for the position. All five were interviewed by the Selectmen with the top three brought back for a second round of interviews. The top three, including Senior, Steven Hartford of Westerly, R.I., and Grady Miller of Narragansett, R.I., also had the chance to meet with town employees, officials, and members of the public during open houses at the fire station.

The five selectmen voted for their top two picks by paper ballot on Tuesday. Four of them chose Senior and Miller as their top two while one wanted Senior and Hartford.

Selectman Karen Quigley said that she felt that all three were qualified and she would have a tough time "paring it down to two."

"Any one of them could serve as town manager," said Quigley. "The question is which one has the temperament and personality to succeed in Cohasset."

Chris Senior, deputy town supervisor of North Hempstead, N.Y., was unanimously chosen as Cohasset's new Town Manager. COURTESY PHOTO

What seemed to give Senior the edge was his ability to navigate contentious political climates.

Both Quigley and Kennedy said they believe Senior is someone who's not afraid to say "no" to elected officials. Quigley also felt that Senior's personality is a good fit for Cohasset.

"He's not only a professional but a good human being," she said.

Selectman Steve Gaumer said that he was impressed by Senior's 10 years' experience as a municipal manager, and that the folks he spoke with in North Hempstead indicated that Senior "isn't afraid to roll up his sleeves."

While the other candidates, in Gaumer's view, were "equally capable of handling the role," Senior's ability to "work up and down the ladder" with various departments and committee members won him over.

Koed said that he also spoke to several of Senior's references and was pleased to learn of his "capability to handle complex politics... I feel good about that."

Selectman Martha Gjesteby said that she could tell from reading Senior's resume that he's "very bright" and that he's "very versed at writing." She also liked that he seemed "very at ease talking to us" in both of his interviews and appreciated that he sent thank you notes to the board.

"I think it was a good thing for the town that everybody came to the same conclusion."

Selectmen Chairman Fred Koed

Gjesteby also appreciated that Senior asked the board lots of questions and took notes. "He's very savvy. I think he likes a challenge and a debate, using his legal skills to hear both sides. I like that kind of thing."

Koed noted that when the board solicited feedback from town employees and committee members who met the town manager candidates, Senior received "more positive comments than anybody."

Senior said in a phone call Wednesday that he was happy to accept the job.

"I'm very excited; I think Cohasset's a very special place. I've met a lot of really great people, citizens and staff alike, and I'm very much looking forward to meeting and working with everyone."

Transition

While negotiations are conducted, Selectman Steve Gaumer also urged his fellow selectmen to consider ironing out a transition plan. Senior has indicated that he is available to start the job in mid-January.

Gaumer said he thought that Milanoski should be part of the transition, should he be available to provide guidance to the new town manager. Quigley said that the new person coming in should get to start with a clean slate, free of any potential political biases. Quigley demurred when Gaumer asked if she meant to say that Milanoski would introduce his own biases.

Koed said that he thought this matter should be left up to Senior.

Milanoski has said that as a resident and taxpayer, he wants the new town manager to succeed and is willing to do whatever he can to help ease the transition.

He said on Wednesday, "This morning I reached out and spoke for a while to Mr. Senior and offered him my assistance in making a smooth transition into Massachusetts's governmental structure with new laws and regulations given my almost 20 years of public sector experience. We will have to wait to see how that transition goes forward."

Milanoski's contract with the town ends Dec. 31, and the next scheduled selectmen meeting is on Tuesday, Jan. 7. "We are not sure who will have the legal authority to run the town on January 1, 2014 or sign payroll," said Milanoski.

Town Meeting to be April 28

The Board of Selectmen spent around an hour discussing when to hold the annual spring Town Meeting during their Tuesday, Dec. 17 meeting.

The selectmen considered various dates and debating whether to hold the annual meeting, which allows Cohasset residents to vote directly on the town budget and other matters, on a Saturday or Monday, but ultimately voted unanimously on Monday, April 28, 2014.

The Town Election will be held on Saturday, May 10.

Committee tackles health care cost concerns

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Davis explained that premiums are rising 5 percent per year, versus the town budget's rise of 2 to 3 percent per year.

Post-employment health care costs could strangle Cohasset – if the town does not stay on top of it.

That's the message from the town's OPEB (other post-employment benefits) Committee, which was formed to come up with potential solutions to deal with the town's outstanding OPEB liability of over $30 million, a number that is expected to increase over the years.

Municipalities around the state – and the nation – are on the hook for funding OPEB. OPEB is the set of benefits offered to a retiree other than their pension, consisting mainly of health insurance. It includes medical, dental, Medicare Part B premiums, and prescription medications.

The OPEB liability is what the town owes for its share of retirees' health insurance costs, plus their dependents, from the time they retire up until they die.

With a committee designated to studying OPEB, along with a trust fund to start paying down the liability, Cohasset is already making significant strides in this area.

OPEB committee member Timothy Davis explained during a presentation the Board of Selectmen on Monday why it's crucial to strive to get out from under this liability now.

"The problems we're facing, if left unattended to," could lead to "what happened to Detroit," said Davis. According to published reports, Detroit filed for bankruptcy because the city failed to fund its $6.8 billion OPEB liability.

Rising insurance premiums are part of the problem, said Davis, "increasing faster than inflation and the town budget. The gap is ever-widening."

Davis explained that premiums are rising 5 percent per year, versus the town budget's rise of 2 to 3 percent per year. If this trend continues and OPEB is ignored, the town's liability will more than double its budget by 2042. Currently, OPEB costs represent 3.2 percent of Cohasset's approximately $37 million annual budget.

The staggering liability, if left unfunded, "reduces the amount available to fund town operations, including the schools," said Davis, adding that it also negatively impacts the town's financial stability and bond rating.

Last year, Cohasset started making strides to fund the town's liability. The May 2012 Annual Town Meeting set up a trust fund with $320,000 earmarked to start chipping away at the OPEB debt, allocating $164,000 at the time.

The November 2013 Special Town Meeting also added monies to the OPEB fund, which Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski has called an "irrevocable" fund, so that the monies can only be used for OPEB.

The town could choose a "pay as you go" option to fund OPEB, paying retirees' premiums. This year, that would cost $1.2 million (3.2 percent of the budget), said Davis.

If the town wants to pay for OPEB outright, it could be done to the tune of $21 million, which would cut the overall cost by 7.5 percent.

The OPEB committee plans to hold public hearings over the winter, leading up to the spring Annual Town Meeting, scheduled for Monday, April 28. The selectmen also suggested that the committee reach out to the school Superintendent, Barbara Cataldo, and School Committee chairman Paul Schubert for their input.

In order to have an article with recommendations ready for Annual Town Meeting, "We need to hit the ground running in January," said OPEB committee member John Chapman, and bring in a representative from the schools up to speed. "I agree that it's important to have them engaged."

UPDATE

Governance committee allowed to finish its job

Will sunset after April Town Meeting

The group's original charge involved reviewing town committees and commissions and their term limits, but over time evolved into revising Cohasset's Town Manager Act (TMA).

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset's Governance Committee is still in business.

The Board of Selectmen voted unanimously Tuesday night to extend the committee until the conclusion of the spring Annual Town Meeting. The board also voted for Monday, April 28, 2014 as the Town Meeting date.

The committee was due to sunset on Dec. 31, having been formed by the selectmen in late 2011 as an outgrowth of the town manager search committee. The group's original charge involved reviewing town committees and commissions and their term limits, but over time evolved into revising Cohasset's Town Manager Act (TMA), which is currently making its way through the state senate.

The April 2013 Town Meeting approved the committee's recommended changes to the TMA, which clarifies the roles of the selectmen and town manager, and also removed a bar from letting town board members apply for the position, among other changes.

Governance chair Kevin McCarthy wrote letters to the selectmen asking for the committee to be extended since they are now working on trying to get the retooled TMA to comply with existing town bylaws.

When the issue was raised during the Monday, Dec. 16 selectmen meeting, selectmen chair Fred Koed said that if the committee were to be extended, he would like to revise its scope. Selectmen vice-chair Diane Kennedy was asked to draft a revised charter for the committee, charging them with completing the bylaw revisions.

Selectman Karen Quigley thought it was time for the board to sunset, however, stating that Town Counsel could complete the bylaw/TMA alignment. "We have resources available to us," Quigley said. "I think it's time to hand [the bylaws] off to town counsel to review... Town counsel does this all the time."

Selectman Martha Gjesteby said that she wanted to see the committee's early-morning meeting time change. The group meets every other Thursday morning at 7:30, which Gjesteby said she feels "is a terrible time to have a committee meeting."

It's difficult for members of the general public to attend at that time, she added. "A lot of people complain to me."

Both McCarthy and Governance member Sam Wakeman agreed to schedule some evening meetings, noting that the committee has held evening public hearings in the past.

Kennedy said she thought the committee should be extended. "They're committed to aligning the bylaws to the town manager act, they just haven't finished their work."

Wakeman explained, "We have broken out and mapped where the changes have to be made... we plan to have several open meetings to discuss changes."

Under the committee's new charter, Governance has until Monday, Feb. 3 to submit draft recommendations to the bylaws to Town Counsel to review prior to the April Town Meeting.

The charge further states that the committee must complete the work "with sufficient time to receive input from relevant committees, the public at large, and the board of selectmen."

Sarah Evans named All-American at Colby

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Merry Christmas!

Merry Christmas Cohasset to all who celebrate this wonderful day! I wish for each of you a safe, happy and healthy day filled with laughter, family and of course, some presents and surprises too.

Colby College

This is a great way to start the column this week. Colby College sophomore goaltender and Cohasset resident, Sarah Evans (who led NCAA Division III in save percentage), was named to the National Field Hockey Coaches Association All-American First Team on Monday. Sarah is Colby's first-ever first team All-American and the third player in program history to earn national honors. Colby's Wendy Bonner '05 became the school's first-ever player to earn All-American honors three times in 2002, 2003 and 2004 as a forward. Wendy made the third team in 2002 and 2003 before earning second team honors in 2004. Katie Taylor '98 was Colby's first All-American in 1996 as a defender.

Sarah had already earned NFHCA New England West First Team honors and was on the first team for the New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC). Sarah was first in the country in save percentage (.860). She also was first in the NESCAC in fewest goals allowed (15), ranked third in goals against average (1.12), and was fifth in total saves (92). Sarah was the lone goalie in the conference in the top five in save percentage, goals against average, and saves per game.

Sarah helped Colby finish fifth in a conference which had four teams in the top five in the country at one point. The Mules finished with a 9-6 record. Congratulations Sarah, your parents, family and Cohasset are so proud!

LIFE AT CHS

Spinnaker holiday edition published

MATTHEW MACCORMACK

The colorful publication gives a glimpse into everything going on at CHS, and is typically divided into four sections; News, Features, Editorials, and Sports.

And we made it!

The Holidays (in my humble opinion) truly are the best time of the year, which did make it a little tough to focus on school. I still can't decide which was more difficult; getting through this week, or starting up one's car during these icy mornings. Either way, the student body's last school week of 2013 turned out to be quite a special one.

On Wednesday, CHS students interested in journalism and communications were given a fantastic opportunity to explore the field of broadcasting. We were graced with the presence of CHS alum Liam Martin, who, in addition to being the son of 143tv Program Director Don Roine, is a reporter for WCBV. Martin gave a short presentation, and then left time for students to answer individual questions; he truly was a class act. The after-school presentation saw a good crowd of students ranging from 143tv volunteers to school newspaper writers who were eager to learn from a pro such as Liam Martin.

And speaking of the school newspaper, the Holiday Issue of The Spinnaker debuted on Friday. The colorful publication gives a glimpse into everything going on at CHS, and is typically divided into four sections; News, Features, Editorials, and Sports. The Spinnaker Staff, which is comprised of 30 or so seniors, got in bright and early on Friday morning to distribute the paper, which students pored over for the early part of the day.

However, Friday was about more than the paper. Students in all grades dressed up in festive garb, highlighted by the Seniors' "Ugly Sweater Day" theme. There were Santa hats and shades of red and green aplenty at CHS, as students geared up for an extra long, and undeniably restorative Holiday Break.

I have enjoyed writing for you all in 2013, and I look forward to keeping you updated as we prepare to turn the calendar. From myself and all of CHS, I would like to extend to you a Merry Christmas, Happy Hanukah, Happy Kwanzaa, and Happy Festivus. No matter what you are celebrating, we wish you happy times with your loved ones, and good luck in 2014.

And as always, keep it classy Cohasset!

PAUL PRATT LIBRARY

Sheila Evans' vision is making a difference

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner

When the new library opened in 2003, Mrs. Evans realized that in light of continuing financial pressures on Cohasset's operating budget, the library would need substantial help to continue to meet the town's needs.

This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library's new home on Ripley Road. Dedicated and open to the public on July 13, 1903, the library had come a long way from its origins as the Social Library in 1792, whose use then was limited to only a handful of affluent Cohasset businessmen and their heirs. One hundred years later, having outgrown its space on South Main Street, the Paul Pratt Memorial Library moved to its current spot in the old Joseph Osgood School, where its rooms today pulse with energy. The library circulates over 15,000 books each month and provides enrichment, technology and educational programs for all ages.

Harriet Pratt gave the original building on South Main Street; Samuel Snow gave the land. Throughout the years, contributions from both generous donors and hardworking volunteers created a treasured cultural asset for the town. And then in 1966, 39-year-old Sheila Evans was elected to the library board of trustees, where for the next 44 years, she would serve in myriad leadership positions that set a course for the future of Cohasset's library.

In his will, Paul Pratt requested that following the death of his two daughters, the remainder of his estate would be used to build a new library (1903). COURTESY PHOTO

In 1975, Mrs. Evans engineered the gifting of the former library building to the town and led an effort to expand the space by 40 percent. However, by the 1990s it was clear that the town had outgrown even the building's expanded space. From1999 to 2003, as a member of the library building committee, Mrs. Evans worked on every aspect of reconstruction and design of the Joseph Osgood School to make the trustees' vision of the new Paul Pratt Memorial Library a reality. In addition, she raised $1.7 million from private donors to help finance the project.

When the new library opened in 2003, Mrs. Evans realized that in light of continuing financial pressures on Cohasset's operating budget, the library would need substantial help to continue to meet the town's needs. Relying on a time-honored tradition of combined public and private support of libraries, under Mrs. Evans' direction, the trustees established the Cohasset Library Trust to manage and grow the library's endowment, which supports the library's book budget with an annual payment of 4 percent of the endowment's average quarter-end value over the prior three years. Under the guidance of the Trust's Investment Advisory Committee, in 2013 the endowment's investments generated a payment of $48,574.48 to the library's book fund. In 2014, the CLT's payment to the library is projected to be $50,069.34.

Sheila Evans served on the Board of Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library for 45 years. Since Mrs. Evans' death on Dec. 13, 2012, the Library Trust has received $25,000 to honor her memory, as well as other individual gifts. COURTESY PHOTO

From the outset, Mrs. Evans' wish was to increase the endowment, partly by periodic fundraising activities and also by making Cohasset residents aware that the Cohasset Library Trust exists as a steward of the library's future and encouraging new gifts to honor or memorialize loved ones. The Endowment Wall in the library entryway off the parking lot lists all gifts to the library's endowment of $5,000 or more since 1901. Since Mrs. Evans' death on Dec. 13, 2012, the Library Trust has received $25,000 to honor her memory, as well as other individual gifts. Her energy, dedication, expertise, and exceptionally high standards of excellence continue to make their mark on all the library's achievements.

Aubuchon is center of attention after freak accident

It is not every day that a motorist backs into a storefront. For Cohasset's Aubuchon hardware store on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A), the excitement started around 3:45 p.m. on Sunday (Dec. 15), when a 2012 Honda CRV careened backwards through the store coming to a rest in front of the cash registers.

What followed on Monday (Dec. 16) were news crews from local TV channels 4, 5, 7 and Fox News. The store's surveillance video literally went viral with local folks seeing it on national news reports.

Luckily the story had a happy ending in that no one was hurt. The store reopened Sunday afternoon once the glass and debris were cleared away. The building inspector said there was no structural damage.

"We are all thankful that this crash did not end up as a holiday tragedy."
Acting Police Chief William Quigley

The driver of the Honda, Carol A. McGurl, 51, of 22 Berkshire Road, Scituate, — who is about 5 feet tall — had a homemade extender taped to the gas pedal of her car to help her reach the gas pedal. She is being summonsed to court on the charge of negligent operation, police said.

"It's highly unusual for a person employ a homemade device such as this to facilitate them reaching the control pedals of a vehicle," said Acting Police Chief William Quigley. "We are all thankful that this crash did not end up as a holiday tragedy."

Cohasset police officers were dispatched to 828 Chief Justice Highway on Sunday afternoon after getting a report that a vehicle that had crashed through the front window of Aubuchon.

On arrival police were able to determine that there were no injuries. Officers spoke to McGurl who said that she was at Aubuchon Hardware to purchase a large bag of ice melt for her home. She knew that the ice melt was heavy, so she attempted to back her vehicle up to the front door of the store, police said. While in the process of backing up, she mistakenly hit the accelerator instead of the brakes, and smashed through the front of the building, causing her vehicle to careen through the store and into the isles where artificial Christmas trees were on sale.

Several store employees had to jump out of the way to keep from being struck by the vehicle. Employees of the store boarded up the front of the business and the building inspector has declared that there was no structural damage to the premises, police said.

Joe Duarte, one of the Aubuchon managers, was not on duty at the time, but explained that Aubuchon sent a crew down Monday morning to help get the aisle back up. About 10 artificial Christmas trees were damaged in the accident.

While grateful that no one was hurt – Duarte noted that the employees have kept their sense of humor. They have posted a "no parking" sign in the aisle where the remaining Christmas trees are located.

OUR VIEW

Do you believe in miracles?

While the old superstition says bad things come in threes – the opposite was the case over the past week in Cohasset.

We can all be eternally grateful that two accidents over the past week did not result in anyone being hurt. Properly damage was also minimal.

In the first instance on Sunday afternoon, a Scituate woman in a Honda had backed up to Aubuchon front window near the main entrance to pick up some ice melt. When she put her car into reverse she hit the gas pedal instead of the brake and careened backwards through the store sending artificial Christmas trees flying but any people there were able to get out of harm's way. The driver, who was not hurt, is being cited for negligent operation because she taped extenders to the pedals in her car.

Tuesday evening in the midst of a snowstorm, a Rockland woman in a Hyundai got stuck inside the N. Main Street grade crossing near the Greenbush station and was unable to get out of the way of an approaching train. The engineer saw the car and applied the emergency brakes – so the train was going slowly when the collision occurred. Again, no one was hurt. Passengers were inconvenienced in that they had to wait on the train about an hour until the accident scene cleared.

Then later Tuesday evening, the Board of Selectmen was unanimous in selecting our new Town Manager! On a board with deep division over so many issues over time – it was refreshing and yes, miraculous that they can agree on such an important decision. Although not without some debate, they also agreed to extend the life of the Governance Committee allowing it to continue its work aligning the bylaws with the revised Town Manager Act. Tuesday's meeting was not exactly "Kumbaya" – but after healthy debate during their meetings, could we see more agreement and less division among selectmen in 2014?

On that note, here at the Mariner we wish all of you a very Merry Christmas! Please remember that due to the Christmas holiday when our offices will be closed, our deadline next week is noon Tuesday for all copy and photographs. Earlier is even better. Items can be emailed to editor Mary Ford at mford@wickedlocal.com. Questions? Please call, 781-741-2933. Next week's paper will arrive as usual on Friday (Dec. 27).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

My Christmas gift to my parents

Editor's note: Sinead Sheehy wanted to share this with our readers.

Dear Mom and Dad,

I know that this year you told me you had everything you needed so I thought that the best Christmas present to give you both is a gift for others because you both love helping other people. There are many people in this world who are struggling to buy their own food and water and some of these people go to the Cohasset Food Pantry to get their food, so my Christmas present to you this year was to do a food drive to help the Food Pantry.

Over Thanksgiving break Tyler and Andrew McSheffrey and I decided to organize a neighborhood food drive for the Cohasset Food Pantry. We thought that instead of just asking people to give food, we could give each of our neighbors a gift to be nice and to encourage them to want to help. So we made Rainbow Loom bracelets and ornaments and put them in gift bags with candy canes and Hershey Kisses. We went around the whole neighborhood a week before the food drive and left everyone a note letting them know that we would be coming around in a week and that we had a gift for them to wish them a Merry Christmas.

On December 14th, Tyler, Andrew and I went around to all 51 houses in our neighborhood to pick up food pantry donations and drop off our little gifts, in the freezing cold weather while it was snowing. We got really cold but so many houses had food waiting for us we didn't care. We gathered so much food that we almost ran out of room in the two cars! We then went to the food pantry to drop off all the food, I can't believe how many people need help. Mr. McSheffrey said he has been involved with many food drives and he said this was the most successful one he has been involved in!

I am sharing my gift to you with the Mariner so that maybe other kids will want to do the same thing someday. Thank you for teaching me to want to help others, the food drive was a lot of work but it felt really great. Merry Christmas, I love you.

Love,
Sinead

Santa is what you wish him to be

Like the winter snow, there is another controversy swirling about: this ridiculous and inane debate about the color of Santa Claus' skin. There are some who say he is white, and some who say he must be black, but why should anybody care. Doesn't the world have enough problems without having to contemplate the origins of Santa and his elves during the Christmas season? And what about the children who believe in Santa; is it right to take a magic time in their lives and reduce it to a discussion on political correctness?

Santa Claus should be, and is, whatever we wish him to be. He transcends color, politics and current events because he is the embodiment of goodness and innocence that can reside in all of us, but especially in the hearts of the young. For a child, this is a very short and magical time in their lives that is all too brief and is gone before we know it. They do not care about Santa's color and nor should they. To them, he is just Santa Claus. He is the guy who lives up in the North Pole with Mrs. Claus and the elves making all of those toys to deliver on Christmas Day if they are good. I know that the movies, holiday specials, cards, and gifts have historically portrayed Santa as white and there is room for more diversity. I would gladly take my daughter to any Christmas film that portrays Santa as anything other than white if it is suitable for children.

With all of the suffering in the world today, isn't it Ok to preserve one little piece of goodness if only for a very short time of year?

COMMENTARY

Goodbye, good riddance to Governance Committee

AGNES MCCANN

Editor's note: Agnes McCann's commentary arrived before the selectmen's vote Tuesday vote to extend the Governance Committee.

It was not until a few months later, in January of 2012, that the "governance" Chair, for reasons known only to few, directed the committee to start looking at the Town Manager Act instead.

The premise of this article is that the "governance committee" was charged with revising Cohasset's Town Manager Act. Shame on the Mariner for basing its reporting on such a factual inaccuracy! All of us who signed a petition and were in the room when Ted Carr famously proposed the forming of a "governance committee" know two things:

1) Said committee it was a stupid idea, and completely irrelevant to the Conservation Committee controversy/travesty that was at issue and the subject of the Citizens' petition that provoked it; and

2) Said committee (if it was indeed ever legally appointed, which remains in doubt) was charged solely with reviewing Town boards and committees and how they were structured and functioned, for the purpose of avoiding a repeat of the ConCom appointments debacle.

It was not until a few months later, in January of 2012, that the "governance" Chair, for reasons known only to few, directed the committee to start looking at the Town Manager Act instead. See for yourself – it's in the minutes! (Not that all minutes are current or readily available to the public, but that meeting is.) Within two months, that same person was no longer Chair, but Volunteer Town Manager, despite his legal lack of standing to hold that job under the terms of the existing Town Manager Act. He continues, under a lucrative contract, in the position of "Acting Town Manager" today.

Nevertheless, ever since January 2012, the "governance committee" has carried on with the task of changing the Town Manager Act, as instructed by its first and former Chair, rather than generally reviewing how government in Cohasset works under existing law, as it was charged to do. Although it surveyed all town boards and committees early on as to how they function (before the new marching orders were handed down) no discussion, action or comment on that survey has ever been made; yet bylaw review that would seem to follow, not lead, such analysis, is supposedly underway.

In other words, despite not doing what it was supposed to do, and then doing something else at someone else's political direction instead, and then already having been extended for an additional one-year term to accomplish that, and still not having done what it was originally supposed to do, the committee wants more time.

The "governance committee" does not need more time, it needs to go away.

CPC seeks recreation, open space liaison

The Community Preservation Committee is missing a member – a liaison from the Recreation and Open Space side of things.

CPC chairman Russ Bonetti reported to the Board of Selectmen's meeting this week that the committee has an opening. State statute requires the CPC to have a recreation/open space liaison, said Bonetti. The chair added that having an additional member would make it much easier for the eight-member board to reach a quorum.

Selectman Karen Quigley, who is the selectmen liaison to Recreation and Open Space, said she would follow up with the committee about assigning a liaison to CPC.

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

MADD names Hedlund 'Legislator of the Year'

Mothers Against Drunk Driving (M.A.D.D.) has named Senator Robert L. Hedlund their 2013 "Legislator of the Year" in Massachusetts for his legislative contributions to the fight against drunk driving. David Deiuliis, with M.A.D.D.'s Massachusetts State Office, presented Senator Hedlund with the award at the State House. In their announcement, M.A.D.D. National President Jan Withers thanked Hedlund for authoring legislation improving drunk driving laws in Massachusetts, including Hedlund's pending legislation requiring ignition interlocks for all convicted drunk drivers.

Hedlund has been an active and effective anti-drunken driving legislator over the past decade. In 2005, he was the lead Senate sponsor of "Melanie's Law," the landmark legislation that was the first major reform of our state's drunk driving laws in decades. Under Melanie's Law, repeat drunk drivers who are still eligible to drive have to have an ignition interlock device installed in any vehicle they drive. Melanie's Law also doubled sentences for motor vehicle manslaughter, created a mandatory minimum sentence of one year in jail for anyone convicted of driving drunk with a suspended license, increased license suspension for refusal of the Breathalyzer, created a new child endangerment by OUI offense, and increased penalties for knowingly allowing someone under a license suspension for drunk driving to use an automobile.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, drunk driving deaths in Massachusetts have fallen over 20 percent since the passage of Melanie's Law.

Last year, Hedlund helped pass an amendment in the Senate to strengthen Melanie's Law by closing a loophole that allows repeat drunk drivers who admit to sufficient facts for a finding of guilty avoid license revocation because their admission was not considered a conviction. The amendment for license revocation included repeat drunk drivers assigned to an alcohol or controlled substance education, treatment, or rehabilitation program. While the wording included in the final conference committee budget wasn't as strong as the Hedlund amendment, it was another step in helping to prevent recidivism.

This year, Hedlund has filed legislation aimed at closing loopholes within Melanie's Law that drunk drivers have used to avoid responsibility and punishment. If enacted, the bill, which is entitled "An Act relative to enhancing Melanie's Law," would; 1) make it more difficult for repeat drunk drivers to escape the harsher penalties contained in Melanie's Law; 2) remove the ability for drivers acquitted of drunken driving who refused a breathalyzer test from applying to get their license back immediately instead of serving the mandated 180-day suspension; 3) ensure that the sentences of repeat offenders are served consecutively, not concurrently, and; 4) would give judges the ability to sentence habitual drunken drivers to up to 20 years in jail.

"Drunk driving is one of the biggest threats to public safety and we must remain vigilant to continue the progress we have made in our fight to prevent it," said Hedlund. "I am honored to receive this award and I am committed to continuing to make our drunk driving laws stronger and more effective."

GROWING ON THE FARM

What does a farmer give?

There is a lot to be said for waiting, at this time of year, as many children who celebrate Christmas need to wait at least 12 days before opening presents.

JON BELBER

With all the commercials for a new iPad, an updated smart phone or an extended play list for an iPod, it is no wonder that commercials for a bunch of kale or a basket of winter squash have yet to be televised.

What does a farmer want for Christmas or, more to the point, what does the farmer give for a holiday present? Food, and especially organically grown produce, is a staple for survival. Without food, water or shelter, all living things struggle.

And so I am tempted to burden my friends and family with stored root crops, such as carrots or braided garlic, because this nourishment sustains us. The results of these long hours, days, weeks and months are as equally exciting as the fancy, mechanical gift items I listed above.

A phone now brings instant communication for families and folks who need to share news of worry, mundane idle facts and great joy. A play list can immediately call up a classic Dylan song or a Bach contata, provided it was downloaded in advance and, not to mention, legally.

So what is appealing about preparing soil in April, adding compost, sowing a carrot seed in May, cultivating the row in June, thinning the carrots in July and harvesting the slender and chubby orange roots some 80 days since they were sown? What is instant about that process? And how about planting garlic in November (or amidst the cold soil in South River School's December garden bed) only to harvest it a lengthy nine months later?

I suppose there is a great deal of cultivating and growing of an iPod touch, from metal chip to tiny screws to polished cover, before one can pick it up for many dollars and dial a friend. There is a lot to be said for waiting, at this time of year, as many children who celebrate Christmas need to wait at least 12 days before opening presents. Many have to wait longer, as the holiday season and growing anticipation begins in late November.

Waiting is a daily chore for the farmer. A farm teacher may have to wait years before knowing whether or not his or her education takes hold or makes an impact. When kids or adults come to the farm for a hands-on field trip, will that experience turning the compost pile have meaning or perhaps help on the next state standard test about soil content?

To help deal with the waiting, at the farm there is always a new and current crop to be harvested, shared and enjoyed. Even now, when the ice and snow are covering the fields and the farm stand is closed until April, there are products to sustain us.

A new seed catalog offers hope for spring and the possibility of grouping sugar snap peas with radish in one well-turned bed.

A farm conference brings together hard-working farmers to share ideas of new crops and healthy strategies for invasive pests and plants.

And yes, there are carrots that are sweet if picked after the frost and garlic hanging in the pantry can liven up a tomato sauce made in the dog days of August and put up in the cellar or stored in the freezer.

I will munch and chew the carrot and think of a song to download from the depths of my mind to hum to myself. I may not even need to call someone to instantly share this joy.

Merry, sustained holidays to all and to all a good crop of gifts.

How many times have you been behind someone at a red light looking down at his or her phone and not paying attention to the changing green light?

GREGORY MATHIS

The scene on a recent T ride from Braintree to the TD Garden spoke volumes about how our society operates these days.

It operates on all types of mobile devices.

A scan of the rail car revealed people texting and talking on their smartphones, scrolling on their iPad, tablet or Kindle, and listening to music on a multitude of devices.

In such a setting, with so many people bunched together, it seemed as if most of the passengers were plugged into their own little world.

And it's not only on the T.

Drivers can't seem to be away from – or off – their phones for any extended period of time while in their car. How many times have you been behind someone at a red light looking down at his or her phone and not paying attention to the changing green light? And worse, how many people still continue to text while driving, or are fiddling with their phone and causing havoc on the roadways?

People just can't seem to be able to put down their mobile devices.

Social media has made it important for people to let their friends and followers know what restaurant they're at, with whom, and what they're eating (and what everyone else is eating). Those same friends and followers need to know how the concert is going, or who is winning the sporting event you're at. The "social" aspect seems a bit ironic, since the person on their smartphone or tablet is reaching out to friends in the cyber world, ignoring those right next to them who are actually sharing the same experience.

But none of that is likely to change. In fact it will become more prevalent.

Christmas is less than a week away and more people will be receiving smartphones, tablets, iPads, iPods, or convertible 2-in-1 laptop/tablets as gifts, or upgrading their current model with the new wave of devices flooding the market. It's hard to keep up with the technology, as it always seems the next big thing is here before you even open the box for your new equipment.

While we love our devices, it is forcing traditional media outlets such as television, radio and newspapers to adjust. The impacts of the Internet and the devices people use to connect have been well documented as it relates to the print side of the media industry. But make no mistake; other areas are feeling the pressure to evolve as well.

Who listens to traditional radio any more, with satellite radio and Pandora making for better personal listening options? How many people watch television on their iPad or tablet, or are watching programs On Demand, or recording programs and fast-forwarding through commercials? Never mind records, who purchases CDs anymore? When was the last time you went to the local library to take out a book?

Today's mobile devices – and the wave of technology that's still in our future – bring all of that and more to our fingertips. And with that, it's no surprise people on the T, in their car, or dining at restaurants and attending sporting events, are just fine being left to their own device.

Cohasset fares well in wintry weather

Two storms came and went

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

If weather forecasts for next week are correct, the DPW should have some reprieve from dealing with more snowfall while they wait for their truck to be fixed.

When the weather outside is frightful, the town's DPW is all over it.

Cohasset's Dept. of Public Works employees were ready to roll when a snowstorm dumped around four inches between commuting time and midnight on Tuesday. DPW employees have been working around the clock to keep the streets plowed, salted and sanded.

"They got to work yesterday morning and haven't gone home yet," DPW Superintendent Carl Sestito said on Wednesday morning.

DPW administrative assistant – and aptly named – Mary Snow said they were still going strong. "The guys are here all night again. They're pretty tired but we got a lot of snow last night."

Tuesday's snowstorm was the second of the season; the first started on Saturday, Dec. 14 and continued into Sunday morning, Dec. 15. Saturday's storm started as flurries, then turned from moderate to heavy snow that accumulated around 5.5 inches, according to Mariner weather observer Bob Skilling.

Rising temperatures overnight brought rain early Sunday morning, leading to a flash freeze that sent the thermometer spiraling from the 30s to the 20s.

"We got a couple of ice complaints," Snow said of Sunday's rain. "That was such a quick re-freeze that we couldn't keep up with that; it just froze so quickly."

The total water content of the snow and rain was 1.38 inches, according to Skilling. If there had been no chance from snow to rain, the total snowfall accumulation would have been about 14 inches.

DPW trucks were all over town as snowflakes continued to fall late Tuesday night. Staying on top of the storm made for a much easier morning commute on Wednesday morning.

"The public roads are all just wet," said Snow. "Some of the private ways still have a little slush."

If you're wondering why there wasn't more salt on the ground in certain areas, it's because the DPW ran out.

"We've been out of salt and are mostly putting sand on the road right now," Snow explained. "We're having trouble getting salt, as every other town is anyway."

"Hopefully we're getting a load of salt today and two loads tomorrow," said Sestito. "We've been waiting for salt since Monday. Right now we're cutting the sand with it."

Overall, Cohasset fared well during one of the first snowstorms of the season.

"The schools opened fine, and the parking lots are clear," Snow said, adding that the Recycling Transfer Station was also opened according to schedule.

There was one hiccup during the night — one of the DPW's four dump trucks broke down and had to be towed. Sestito said that it's currently in the garage and that he hopes to have it back in working order next week.

"I need it right away," he said.

"It's going to be out of commission for a little while," Snow said of the truck. "When you only have four trucks, that's huge."

Sestito said that there is no vehicle replacement plan as of yet, as he does not yet know his capital plan for the next fiscal year; the damage is fixable, however.

If weather forecasts for next week are correct, the DPW should have some reprieve from dealing with more snowfall while they wait for their truck to be fixed. According to Skilling, temperatures are expected to climb to the 40s on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and into the 50s on Monday.

Skilling noted that all of this cold and snow has hit the area before the official start of astronomical winter at 12:11 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 21.

Y = Yes; N = No, NV = No Vote (President rarely votes) * Not every item is voted on by both House and Senate

Volume 38 - Report No. 50 December 13, 2013

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate during the week of December 9-13. The House and Senate are meeting only in brief, informal sessions until January and there will not be any additional roll calls until that time. This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call reports local representatives' final roll call attendance records for the 2013 session.

The House has held 279 roll call votes. Beacon Hill Roll Call tabulates the number of roll calls for which each representative was present and voting and then calculates that number as a percentage of the total roll call votes held. That percentage is the roll call attendance record.

Several quorum roll calls, used to gather a majority of members onto the House floor to conduct business, are also included in the 279 roll calls. On quorum roll calls, members simply vote "present" in order to indicate their presence in the chamber. When a representative does not indicate his or her presence on a quorum roll call, we count that as a roll call absence just like any other roll call absence.

Only 36 percent or 55 of the 158 House members have perfect 100 percent roll call attendance records.

Some representatives may have poor attendance records because of a variety of reasons including health problems or military service. Beacon Hill Roll Call does not ask each individual representative why he or she missed roll call votes.

The worst roll call attendance record belongs to Rep. Benjamin Swan (D-Springfield), who missed 41 roll calls (85.3 percent roll call attendance record).

Rounding out the top five worst are Reps. Aaron Michlewitz (D-Boston) and Rep. Bradford Hill (R-Ipswich) who both missed 36 roll calls (87 percent attendance) and Reps. Joseph Wagner (D-Chicopee) and William Pignatelli (D-Lenox) who both missed 31 roll calls (88.8 percent attendance.)

REPRESENTATIVES' FINAL 2013 ROLL CALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS

The percentage listed next to the representative's name is the percentage of roll call votes for which the representative was present and voting. The number in parentheses represents the number of roll calls that the representative missed.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

LOWER TUITION FOR ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS (H 1078) - The Higher Education Committee heard testimony on a bill allowing some illegal immigrants to pay the in-state tuition rates and fees at Massachusetts universities. To qualify, the student must have attended a high school in Massachusetts for at least three years and have graduated or received the equivalent of a diploma. The measure also requires these students to provide the university with an affidavit stating that he or she has filed or will in the future file an application to become a citizen or permanent resident.

Supporters said that many of these students were babies when they were brought here by their parents and had no choice about entering the country illegally. They argued that many are unable to afford the five-times-higher tuition for out-of-state students and end up skipping college and working in low-pay, low-skilled jobs.

No opponents testified against the bill. In the past, opponents have said the state should not offer financial rewards to anyone who has broken the law and is in this country illegally. They've noted that it is in appropriate to offer low tuition rates to these students while legal citizens from outside Massachusetts, including war veterans, are required to pay higher rates if they attend a Massachusetts state school.

PAY GAS TAX BASED ON MILES TRAVELED (H 3142) - The Transportation Committee held a hearing on a bill that would establish a pilot program taxing drivers for each mile they drive. The pilot program would include 1,000 drivers who will have on-board mileage-counting equipment added to their vehicles. The bill is unclear on whether the mileage tax would replace the current gas tax or be in addition to it.

Supporters said the tax is necessary to raise revenue to fund the state's crucial transportation programs. They argued it would help determine whether this tax can be imposed while still protecting the privacy of drivers.

Opponents said this is nothing more than another unnecessary tax and noted the state recently raised the gas tax by 3 cents per gallon. They argued the bill would also invade people's privacy and provide the government with a record of each driver's travels.

INMATES PAY COSTS (S 1178) - The Public Safety and Homeland Security Committee held a hearing on legislation that would require prison inmates who are not indigent, pregnant, terminally ill or confined in a hospital to pay the state $2 per day to defray the cost of incarceration.

Amendment supporters say it is time these criminals share a small portion of the financial burden of incarcerating them.

Amendment opponents say the proposal is misguided and mean-spirited and argued the revenues will amount to less than the cost of administering the program.

OTHER PUBLIC SAFETY BILLS - Other measures on the committee's agenda include requiring that all school buses seating more than 16 and manufactured after January 1, 2013 be equipped with seat belts (H 2122); prohibiting the use of restraints on pregnant inmates while they are being driven to doctors' offices and the courts (S 1125); banning inmates from using cell phones or other handheld electronic transmission devices and adding a minimum one-year additional prison sentence on violators (H 2169); and requiring all drivers of recreational vehicles (RVs) to take a new state-run educational safety program for the operation of RVs.

REGISTRY OF VOLUNTEERS FOR EMERGENCIES (H 1970) - The Public Health Committee held a hearing on a measure requiring the Department of Public Health to establish a registry of volunteer personnel who are available to provide medical and other services during an emergency or disaster.

ASSISTED SUICIDE (H 1998) - The Public Health Committee's agenda also included a proposal allowing physician-assisted suicide for the terminally ill. Voters defeated a similar measure on the 2012 ballot by a slim 51 percent to 49 percent margin.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION? Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

Town Manager budget done early

Milanoski issues third and final budget as TM

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset is getting a new town manager in January, and the departing town manager wanted to leave a parting gift "tied up with a bow" – the next fiscal year budget.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski presented his Fiscal Year 2015 budget to the Board of Selectmen during their Tuesday, Dec. 17 meeting.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby commented that it was early in the cycle for the board to be reviewing the budget, and that this is usually done in January. She added that the new town manager should put the budget together.

The selectmen voted unanimously later that night to hire Chris Senior of North Hempstead, N.Y. as Cohasset's permanent town manager, pending contract negotiations. Senior has indicated he could start working in mid-January. Milanoski's employment contract with the town expires on Dec. 31.

Milanoski has served in the acting capacity since March 2012 following former town manager Michael Coughlin's removal. Milanoski is moving on to manager another town, as the Carver selectmen also voted Tuesday to hire him, pending negotiations.

Milanoski said that the next town manager is free to alter the budget he's prepared. "I've put together a balanced budget that's been [reviewed] by all the departments. If [the new town manager] should choose to modify it, that's their decision."

However, Milanoski added, "having gone through the process of putting together the budget two years ago, I know how difficult it is and I have Massachusetts experience."

Milanoski explained that Mass. municipal finance and procurement laws are unique, noting that none of the top three candidates for Cohasset's town manager position had worked in the state.

There are a few new town positions programmed into Milanoski's proposed budget, including:

A human resources manager, reassigning a current employee "without adding new headcount," said Milanoski;

An assistant to the Chief Technology Officer, who works on the technology infrastructure for the town and schools;

A full-time equivalent police officer to assist with the department's overtime issue due to lack of personnel.

Milanoski noted that there are a lot of other details in the budget and it would require a one to two-hour presentation to go through it all. Now that it's done, he said, "You can review it, share it with the new town manager, and the town can continue to keep moving forward."

PUSHING THE EDGE

'Tis the season for the family dinner

GLENN MANGURIAN

Here's my suggestion: At least once this holiday season celebrate the family dinner with no distractions from the TV, computer or smart phone

Imagine sitting down and connecting with your children in a cheerful and meaningful way. Sound completely unrealistic? It's not. It's called the family dinner.

Growing up in the '50s and '60s I remember our Sunday family dinner of rice pilaf, roast chicken and cranberry sauce. Even today, that combination of food reminds me of my childhood. We ate Sunday dinner in the dining room around 1 p.m. with no television or radio in sight. We lived in a two-family house with my grandmother and aunt who would often join us. Three generations at the dinner table.

Over dinner, my parents told stories about the "ins" and "outs" of their week. My father would lighten up the conversation with a few corny jokes. My sister and I would often argue over something irrelevant. But, we sat down as a family to a good, healthy meal. This ritual had less to do with the food that's on the plates and more to do with what's happening at the table. The food was not the centerpiece on the table – the connections were. You see we were a family not just a group of people living under the same roof.

The importance of dinnertime cannot be underestimated. I read somewhere that everything we worry about as parents – from drugs to alcohol, promiscuity, eating disorders, academic achievement and good healthy living can all be improved by the simple act of eating and talking together around the table.

Dinner can be a gift each day, rather than a chore to get through.

As simple as this sounds, it takes work. First, everyone has to be at the table at the same time and eating the same food. Second, the family has to have one conversation at a time. And third, the conversation must take place on a "level playing field" – mutual respect and shared interest.

"A big part of the challenge is teaching your kids how to have a real conversation, not a texting conversation," said Laurie David, author of the 2010 book, "The Family Dinner." Ms. David now posts regular topics of conversation on The Huffington Post, under the rubric "Table Talk." Each week she suggests a topic, suggests what to say to your children and even offers questions for discussion.

Here's my suggestion: At least once this holiday season celebrate the family dinner with no distractions from the TV, computer or smart phone. You might consider timing that dinner after watching "It's a Wonderful Life." Here is a starter question – if we could have the Bailey family for dinner, what would you like to ask them?

So, give it a try. I'm willing to bet it will be a memorable experience. And the best news – you can do it again tomorrow! Happy Holiday!

Bee School registration opens

The Plymouth County Beekeepers Association announces registration is open for the 2014 Bee School session.

Do you have a strong desire to learn the art of beekeeping? Have you always wanted to get involved and didn't know where to start? If you are serious and are willing to take on an exciting new challenge, PCBA can teach you what you need to know to become an active member and practitioner in the beekeeping community right here in Plymouth County.

Classes are held every other Thursday evening, from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Pembroke Community Center, 128 Center St., Pembroke, with an "Ask the Instructor" session beginning at 6:30 p.m. starting in January and going through April. In this 8-class series of lectures you will learn about the woodenware needed to set up a hive, where to purchase it and attend workshops on assembly; understand Integrated Pest Management to keep your hive healthy; and many of the potential uses for various bee products, including the most coveted item – honey.

Your $50 fee includes classes, text book, informative handouts, mentoring by an experienced beekeeper, in addition to a year's membership in the club for you and your family. For more information: plymouthcountybeekeepers.org.

BOYS BASKETBALL

Taking stock of situation

Hoop cautiously optimistic

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

In the five years since Bo Ruggiero took over the Cohasset boys basketball program, the Skippers have won 82 games, taken a trip to the State Finals, Sectional Finals, and have been South Shore League champions.

As he heads into year six, Ruggiero has a similar outlook towards his team that he has had in the past - cautiously optimistic.

He has good reason. While the Skippers lost their top two scorers, Shane Haggerty (20 ppg) and Christian Davis (10 ppg) to graduation, a number accounting for about 50 percent of the team's overall scoring.

Still, this year, Ruggiero feels his roster can make up the difference by sharing the scoring and upping the defense.

Both are well within reason.

"I look at this team like I'd look at a good Mutual Fund," Ruggiero said. "Past performance can't guarantee future success. Still, we have quality people, like having a quality stock. Some of the stocks we've invested in. The kids have been here, learned and paid their dues. It's time for them to contribute and be successful as in previous years."

This year's group is well versed in winning, with almost the entire team having played on either the boys soccer team that won the South Sectional Championship and went to the State Championship game, or the football team that played in the MIAA Div. 6 Super Bowl at Gillette Stadium.

Kierce rolls to another strong finish

Cohasset teen gains more experience

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Over the past five years, Cohasset's Chris Kierce has been busy on his weekends, driving F1 Kart races at F1 Outdoors in East Bridgewater and a few races at New Hampshire Motor Speedway.

After learning to drive at F1 Indoor in Braintree when he was nine, Kierce got the racing bug, and with help from his dad Paul (who also is the pit-crew), the now 14-year old bought an F1 Kart and races in the Outdoor CRG America League.

This year, the results were good, as Chris finished third overall in the 12-race season.

He followed that with a first-place finish in the Jr. Division in the F1 CRG Endurance Race at the end of the season, Nov. 10.

That race consists of 150 laps, a number that translates into 112 miles of non-stop racing in karts that can reach 70 mph.

"Chris was in it last year, and halfway through the gears stripped," Paul said. "He wanted to try it again this year and ended up finishing first for Juniors. It was an interesting race. It was raining and we spent 15 minutes in the pits (the track emphasizes safety over everything). While we were in there they allowed us to top off fuel tanks. We topped off and when he went back out. With 20 laps left, I thought he might run out, but I let him run. It started raining again and the race was cut short. Right before that, the kid in front of him spun out."

The race wasn't just kids though. Four classes of drivers were in the Endurance Race, including adults.

Chris was second overall, including adults.

Strong second

Cohasset second at Bristol Aggie

The Cohasset Mariner

The Cohasset wrestling team opened their season with a solid performance at the Bristol Aggie Tournament on Saturday, finishing second in a strong field.

For Cohasset, the strong showing was a big accomplishment considering the fact that several wrestlers hadn't had a lot of practice time.

"The team wrestled very well considering the quick turn-around for the football players," Cohasset coach Torin Sweeney said. "We had only one week of full team practice and wrestled extremely well for the short amount of practice time."

Fresh off the MIAA Division 6 Super Bowl game last Saturday, football players, Cole Sullivan, Sean Mavilia, Nick Hall, Hayes Keniley, Nolan, Froio and Steven Maher and had pins on the day.

In the tournament, the Skippers notched a 54-24 win over Watertown, and added a 40-27 victory over Hanover in the semifinals. In the final, Cohasset lost 52-21 to a very strong and experienced Wakefield team.

Drew Skolnick, Harry Helbock, Mavilia, Keniley, John Nolan, Froio, Maher and Kelsey Naissant were all winners against Watertown.

Winners against Hanover were Helbock, Sullivan, Mavilia, Hall, Keniley, Nolan,

Outstanding weekend

Skippers win first three games

The Cohasset Mariner

With four key players on this year's championship football team and another group on the fall soccer team, Cohasset hockey coach, Bob Walsh knew he didn't have much time to get ready for the season to start.

He also knew he had a pretty good squad.

If the first weekend is any indicator, he's absolutely right, as the Skippers rolled over Silver Lake 8-0 in the Saturday night 8 p.m. opener at Connell Rink in Weymouth and a 6-3 win over Hanover in a matinee at the Bog in Kingston to start the season 2-0-0.

"We started training camp late, only giving us a week to get the boys in "hockey shape" and ready to face Silver Lake on Saturday but then also play a game versus Hanover, (less than 24 hours later)," Walsh said. "All during the off season, I had been receiving

Aggressive effort

Girls battle East Bridgewater

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset girls basketball game fought right down the the final buzzer, but couldn't overcome a 9-2 third quarter run by East Bridgewater in a 45-31 loss in the team's home opener.

"The kids played aggressively," veteran coach John LeVangie said. "I was pleased with that."

Cohasset has a similar look to last year's playoff team, with just one player lost to graduation.

"We're still young," LeVangie said. "We have no seniors. We played four sophomores and a junior. We'll be OK. They work hard in practice. We'll get there."

Cohasset is led by junior captains Isabel McCarthy, Megan Fitzgerald and Alexa Bleicken.

messages from my veteran players telling me how they couldn't wait for hockey to start and how much they were looking forward to it. I reminded them how much they were looking forward to this as we drilled them to death on the ice at Bavis Arena. Their hard work and enthusiasm and our planning paid off."

The Skippers opened a cold, snowy Saturday night at the Connell Rink in Weymouth to the sound of Cohasset High School sophomore Mary Lengyel singing a beautiful rendition of the National Anthem.

In an 8-0 rout, it took the Skippers Captain Colin Whelan about five minutes to score the first of three goals, earning him a hat trick for the night.

"Wales played a great game," said coach Walsh. "He was a force on the ice that just wasn't going to be denied."

Whelan's hat trick was Cohasset's first of the season He was assisted on his three goals by the Powers brothers, Tommy and Jeffrey.

Tommy Powers followed up with a rocket shot for a goal, assisted by his brother.

Senior captain, Terence Doonan had two goals on the night, and rookie freshman Brad Winn scored his first two varsity goals.

The ever-pesky Chris Cohen working the corners hard as always, found Doonan the puck, as did soft-handed freshman, Cole Joslin.

On Winn's goal, Curtis Golden fed him the puck as did Freshman Jimmy Farren and Michael Cohen, brother of senior Chris Cohen.

On the defensive side, the Lund brothers, Chris and Michael, helped close the door on the Silver Lake attack. Derek Benson and Mickey Barry (Division 6 Football Player of the Year) were rock solid from start to finish. Matthew Legge and Michael Cohen clearly showed they play the game far beyond their sophomore and freshman years and will be a force to be reckoned with for years to come.

Senior Brandon Winn had a big night in net, earning the shutout while facing 18 shots.

"Winnie was so in the zone, it was great to watch and a really solid win for the team," Walsh said.

Fast forward 13 and a half hours to Sunday and the Skippers were at The Bog, in Kingston against a Hanover team that had beat Sacred Heart 6-0 Saturday afternoon.

"Most of these kids haven't played back to back games this close since they were mites at about nine-years old," Walsh said. "My thoughts after the game ending on Saturday at 10 p.m. was to get my guys home safely and to get some rest and good food before playing Sunday. After the win, some of the guys just couldn't sleep when they got home."

It also took a little extra time to get home due to snow that moved in late in the afternoon.

Sunday it was Terence Doonan that started the team off, scoring the first of a hat trick just five minutes into the game.

Hanover came out flying.

Cohasset, playing on its heels, fell into a short-handed situation.

Doonan and Cohen put on an offensive show while playing shorthanded.

The intensity continued into the second period, with the Skippers getting the upper hand.

Whelan scored during the first shift, assisted by the Powers brothers to put Cohasset ahead. Jeffrey Powers followed it up with a one timer on a sweet pass from Whelan.

The second period ended with Cohasset up 3-1.

Hanover crept back into it with another goal before Doonan sniped a shot over the goalies left shoulder, thanks to Joslin tying up Hanover's center iceman freeing up the puck for Doonan.

Doonan followed it up with an empty net goal for his hat trick assisted by Cohen to put Cohasset ahead 5-2 and negate Hanover's extra-man up front.

Hanover didn't give up and scored with goalie Noah Clapp on the bench to close the lead to 5-3.

Whelan closed out the scoring with another empty-netter as Cohasset skated to a 6-3 victory.

It was an exciting, fast-paced game from start to finish. The defense warded off numerous scoring chances by the speedy Hanover squad. Liam McHugh turned aside 23 of 26 shots, including a few in the final minutes when Hanover pressed with the man advantage and earned the hard-fought victory.

Whelan finished the day with two goals.

Although no freshmen scored Sunday, junior Jeff Powers scored his first goal of the season. Walsh, who led his team into the MIAA Tournament last year, losing in the first round to highly seeded Blue Hills in an overtime thriller, feels this is the season to put things together.

"This year I probably have the best "full" team I've had in my eight seasons," he said. "There are a lot of guys to watch for. I have two great goalies with senior Brandon Winn and sophomore Liam McHugh. I have a solid defensive core group with seven veterans and a strong freshman in Mike Cohen. Finally, I have eight solid veteran forwards with four explosive freshmen forwards.

"Talentwise, there aren't a lot of holes but we all know that a team has to be more; and everyone has to bring their best game every night. We have a very challenging schedule to play this year and it will take a lot of hard practices and some good nights to make this the success we want it to be."

Wednesday Cohasset traveled to Hyannis to play Mashpee and improved to 3-0-0 with a 5-1 victory.

Cohasset will be playing Rockland in a big conference game on Saturday night at Connell Memorial Rink in Weymouth at 8 p.m.

BASKETBALL

Ruggiero feels the experience can transfer to the basketball court, although it may take a bit of extra time for football players who just started basketball practice this week.

"You can look at it with either a glass half full or a glass half empty," he said. "In the glass half full, we have seven of ten kids who have been on the team the last few years. Some have contributed to a 20-win season and there are four of them who were on our State Finals team that won 22 games in their freshman year. The kids are accustomed to winning.

Looking at the team, Cohasset has the parts to be successful – size, speed, smarts and desire.

Every member of the varsity is listed at six-foot or more, and five check in at 6'3".

With Ruggiero's Fastball style of play on both ends, he'll look to six-foot senior captain Rocco Laugelle to lead the team from the point.

Laugelle is one of the most dynamic athletes in the area and showed a new level of athletic maturity during the football season.

"Rocco has been on the varsity since his freshman year," Ruggiero said. "In his freshman year he was Robert Jones' caddie. He started in the two-guard as a junior and this year he'll be leading the team. He's a solid athlete, six-foot, 170 and very cerebral. He may be a very good basketball coach some day.

"He knows every drill. He leads the play. After football he took off the cleats and put on the basketball sneakers. Last year Rocco was second on the team in rebounds and steals and shot 63 percent from the free throw line. That needs to improve. He was also tied for first in fouls committed with Henry Brown. That's something we'll need to work on."

Chris Haggerty (Shane's younger brother, and a senior captain) will also be a huge key to the team's success.

A 6'1" Haggerty has size, good speed and is also an outstanding leader who was also quarterback of the football team.

"Chris is a four-year varsity letterman," he said. "As a sophomore he paid his dues with the JV. In his junior year he was a sixth or seventh man off the bench. He averaged four points a game last year. This year, his and my expectation is that he can average 10-to12 points per game. He's matured. He's bigger and much stronger. Football has also helped him as a leader. Chris plays three sports. Basketball may be his favorite. He wants it."

Ruggiero says Haggerty's knack for scoring quickly has earned him the nickname 'Micro', because he heats up so quickly with his shooting.

A third senior captain is Joe Buckley, a 6'2" soccer star who was instrumental in getting the Skippers to the State Finals in soccer.

"Last year we didn't need Joe to score," Ruggiero said. "But he's an outstanding jump shooter. He's in great athletic shape and can be a 28-30 minute guy. He has great conditioning and desire. Defensively he is very solid. I would not want to be the offensive player he defends. Joe is physical and he'll wear him down. He directs the press and plays opponent's big man, whoever that may be."

The Skippers' fourth senior captain is Henry Brown, a 6'3" senior.

"We call him Downtown Henry Brown," Ruggiero said. "He can shoot the jumper. He's also gotten stronger as a senior.

He's physical and can be a scorer. The big thing we need from Henry is to keep him from reaching and called for fouls.

Cohasset's fifth starter is junior Pat Federle.

Federle was the goalie for the soccer team and checks in at 6'3" with long arms.

He averaged four points last year, but Ruggiero feels he's capable of more.

"Pat can average 10-to-12 ppg," he said. "He's a very good three-point shooter and he's long and lean. His soccer success should translate into his being less tense and more intense in basketball. He needs to use his long arms to rebound. Pat can dunk easily. Now we need him to rebound."

Jack Donohue, a 6'3" 190-pound sophomore will be one of the first players off the bench.

"He's a big kid who is very athletic," Ruggiero said. "He's a solid athlete. He'll be one of the first subs in the three spot, and he might play some wing and back up Henry. He's a quality player in the system. He likes to run and gets up and down the floor."

Junior Harrison Martin, the younger brother of former star center Dan Martin, who played college ball at RPI, is 6'1" and will also come off the bench. Last year he saw playing time with the JV, while getting work in with the varsity.

Teddy Craven, yet another soccer star, is a six-foot junior.

"Teddy was on the varsity as a freshman," Ruggiero said. "Again, he's like a good stock. He's a bright young guy that we've invested in. He'll be a backup to Rocco. I'm comfortable with him. He's a nice athlete."

At 6'3", junior Jack Chamberlain also brings size to the squad.

"Jack has been on the varsity since his freshman year," Ruggiero said. "He plays soccer, baseball and basketball. He's growing into his size, and is starting to get it (on the basketball court). He'll be more than adequate in the rotation. If I'm that offensive guy playing him and Jack (Buckley) I'm going to be sore and tired at the end of the night."

Alex Norton is a 6'2" sophomore who will split time with the varsity and JV," Ruggiero said. "He brings exactly what Coach Ruggiero loves to see. He very competitive in practice. He's a guy who can battle in practice and get others to work. No job is safe. If somebody outplays and outworks someone in practice, they're going to take the job and be the one to play."

Junior Jack Hoffman has an interesting nickname – Travis.

"When they did the Super Bowl on TV, the announcers didn't have his name on the roster (he wore 17, which was not listed), so they called him Travis. We have three Jack's on the team. There's Jack D (Donohue), Jack Chambers (Chamberlain) and Jack Travis.

Hoffman is expected to be another player who will see most playing time with the JV, but can work his way into varsity games.

Finally, Cole Morrison rounds out the varsity squad.

Cohasset opens tonight at Abington and is home Monday night, hosting Carver. The Skippers will also play Sunday, Dec. 29 hosting Avon in a makeup game from the opener that was pushed back due to football.

Ruggiero expects a tough, hard fought season.

"Eight of our 10 opponents were in the tournament last year," he said. "We will be competitive, but the league is very tough. Abington, Norwell and Rockland are all going to be very good, and Monomoy will also be a good team. To compete, our pressure defense will have to create turnovers and points off the turnovers. We have to rebound and score easy baskets. I know that we will work hard, play smart and give total effort every night."

Matt Froio, and Maher, while Helbock, Sullivan, Keniley and Maher scored wins in the final against Wakefield.

Triple winners, Helbock, Keniley and Maher each won three matches, and there was no shortage of pins for the Skippers.

Double pinners were Sullivan, Mavilia, Nolan, Helbock, Froio and Maher.

The Skippers have competed in the tournament three times now, finishing first in 2011, third in 2012 and second this year. The team has an overall record of 9-2 over the three years.

Cohasset faced B.C. High last night, dropping a pretty close 42-31 decision, and will head to the Middleboro tournament on Saturday.

was one of the most exciting races I've had all season," Chris said. "I didn't have any first place finishes during the season. This was exciting."

A year ago, Chris finished second in the overall season standings, which are earned in similar fashion to NASCAR, where each race gains points for finishes, with the top two or three spots weighted with more points.

In the most current season, Chris didn't have any first-place finishes, but was in the top-three seven times, and in the top-five 10 times.

"I'm happy with the way things worked out," Chris said. "It was a lot of fun. I was fortunate to race every week in the summer. I like the outdoors. It's smoother."

As for the drop in standings, Chris said the competition improved.

"Other guys got better," he said. "There were a couple of new people, but the kids who have been there got better. I did too."

Next year, Chris hopes to stick with the karting and hopes to travel to a few more tracks around the state. He's also thinking of trying out new vehicles.

"I can race Legends cars," he said, comparing them to small stock cars. "Or Skip Barton. Those are open wheel cars."

When he's racing, Chris has become more adept at the technical part of racing.

"I can tune my own kart," he said. "Make sure it's running good."

On that same technical side, Paul has also learned quite a bit.

"He's been using the same kart he's had," Paul said. "Chris got it up to 74 mph this year. He was fighting for position all year. It was exciting. There were some changes. This year they allowed any type of tire. When we started the season, we were using mandated tires from last year. The new MG tires can be two or three seconds faster. We ended up switching."

That got to be en expensive endeavor.

"The tires were $200 a set," Paul said. "But they're only good for one day of racing. We're going through tires every race now. Last year they lasted a few weeks."

ID Program helps protect children

By Linda Fechter
Special to the Mariner

A year ago the Cohasset Police Department went to Pilgrim Bank to ask for help in purchasing a state-of-the-art Children's Identification System, the EZ Child ID Program. Sgt. Jeff Treanor felt the community would greatly benefit if provided with a service that would photograph and fingerprint a child and capture that information for parents to store away if their child ever went missing.

"It's not a scenario that any parent wants to think about," says Sgt. Treanor, who credits Acting Chief Bill Quigley for endorsing the purchase of the state of the art equipment. "But having a record of your child's basic information is something everyone should have in case the unthinkable happens."

When Sgt. Treanor and Acting Chief Quigley went to Frank Campbell, President and CEO of Pilgrim, to ask for funding they were pleased to find that the Bank's Board voted unanimously to donate the entire $4,000 price of the state-of-the-art technology. The system has already been used at several community events, including the Recreation Department's Health Fair and at last year's Holiday Stroll.

The ID process is simple and only takes a few minutes per child. It involves filling out an information sheet and taking the child's fingerprint and photo.

"We don't retain any of the information," says Sgt. Treanor. "We simply capture all the information on a card which then goes to the individual, or parent/guardian for safekeeping."

The system has benefits for the older generation too. Participants fill out information sheets about medical problems, history, and personal information that accompany their fingerprints and photos. Having this information at the ready is invaluable in the event of an emergency.

"Pilgrim Bank is extremely proud to have funded this ID system," says Campbell. "It's an opportunity for us to contribute to the community and provide this resource to law enforcement, especially when it helps to protect our children, but also hope that these ID cards never have to be put to use."

Member's of Cohasset Police Department were in Pilgrim Bank's Cohasset Village location on Saturday as part of the Village Stroll. Sgt. Treanor provided child identification CD-Roms to at least 40 children.

Sgt. Jeffrey Treanor has to measure each child as part of the ID process.

see a lot of your friends and classmates and you get to play with all different people."

Lylah Jackson, 7, also enjoys the environment. "It's fun. I know a lot of kids here and I like playing chess."

And while William learned to play at home with his older brother Henry, 10, he said that chess club has helped him up his game.

"You get better at chess every week," he said.

It's all about getting better, said LeCount, as the children sharpen various skills just by playing the strategic game.

"It teaches them analytical skills," the principal said. "They look at the board and analyze what's happening. They have to look ahead a little bit and anticipate what their opponent might do – it's cause and effect."

Sarah McSweeney, whose six-year-old son Kyle is in the club, said that she is grateful LeCount is teaching students "the fundamentals of chess."

"He's fantastic – a gem of the Osgood," she said of the principal, adding that since coming to chess club, Kyle has been teaching her.

"I won against her," Kyle said of his mom.

It seems moms and dads are among the kids' favorite opponents.

"I beat my dad over 16 times," said Farrah Jackson, 5. "I'm gonna beat him 17 times. He only beat me two times."

Sibling rivalries are also prevalent. "I like playing against people, especially my sister," Reevie Day, 6, declared.

There are three Bushley brothers in the chess club: Charlie, 8, Sam, 6, and Adam, 6. They all learned to play at home together, said Sam.

While plenty of chess club members learned the rules of the game at home or at school, some students picked the game up elsewhere.

Sam Keene, 8, said he learned to play at the town's Community Center. Six-year-old Rex Schiffman first learned at a yacht club on the Cape. Jay Burnieika, 7, said he learned to play when he was kindergarten-age and while his family was vacationing on Nantucket.

Oliver Axon, 6, said that he learned to play in Stowe. "It's in this country, I think."

And while most of the chess club members admit that "winning" is the best part – and, of course, shouting, "Checkmate!" – they have fun no matter the outcome.

Paul Dugan, 7, who said his father and grandfather taught him how to play, explained, "It's just fun to win or lose – you don't know."

GIMME SHELTER

Two sweet siblings with love to share

PAULA J. FATERSIK

Two young brothers, Patrick and Shamus, are looking for a forever home for their first Christmas. COURTESY PHOTO

As we watch them, interact with, play with and love them, their fabulous and very individual personalities are coming right out and honestly, they are so innocent and pure.

They are brothers, buddies and bonded little boys. Four months ago, this duo went to a loving forever home, but sometimes, things fall apart. What would have been a happy and fun filled holiday has become a confusing and somewhat sad time. But isn't this the season of wishes coming true and new beginnings? Yes it is, for sure, and Patrick and Shamus are hoping that their dreams of joining a new family will become a reality. And really, who deserves it more than these 7-month-old angels. Maybe Santa is hearing them now.

Not long ago, when they were adopted at three months old, these Irish kids had no way of knowing that, due to unforeseen circumstances, they would be changing their living situation so soon. As we watch them, interact with, play with and love them, their fabulous and very individual personalities are coming right out and honestly, they are so innocent and pure.

Patrick, who is alabaster white, with a pale brush of tiger beige on top of his head, and a cute pink nose, is a distinguished looking, laid back and gentle kitten. His eyes are a deep golden shade and he is comfortable lounging on the cat tree, or enjoying attention and affection even though we are all new to him right now. Playing with laces and wand strings or following new toys as they roll around the room is entertaining for Patrick and he pounces gently on the moving targets. His calm nature is fabulous.

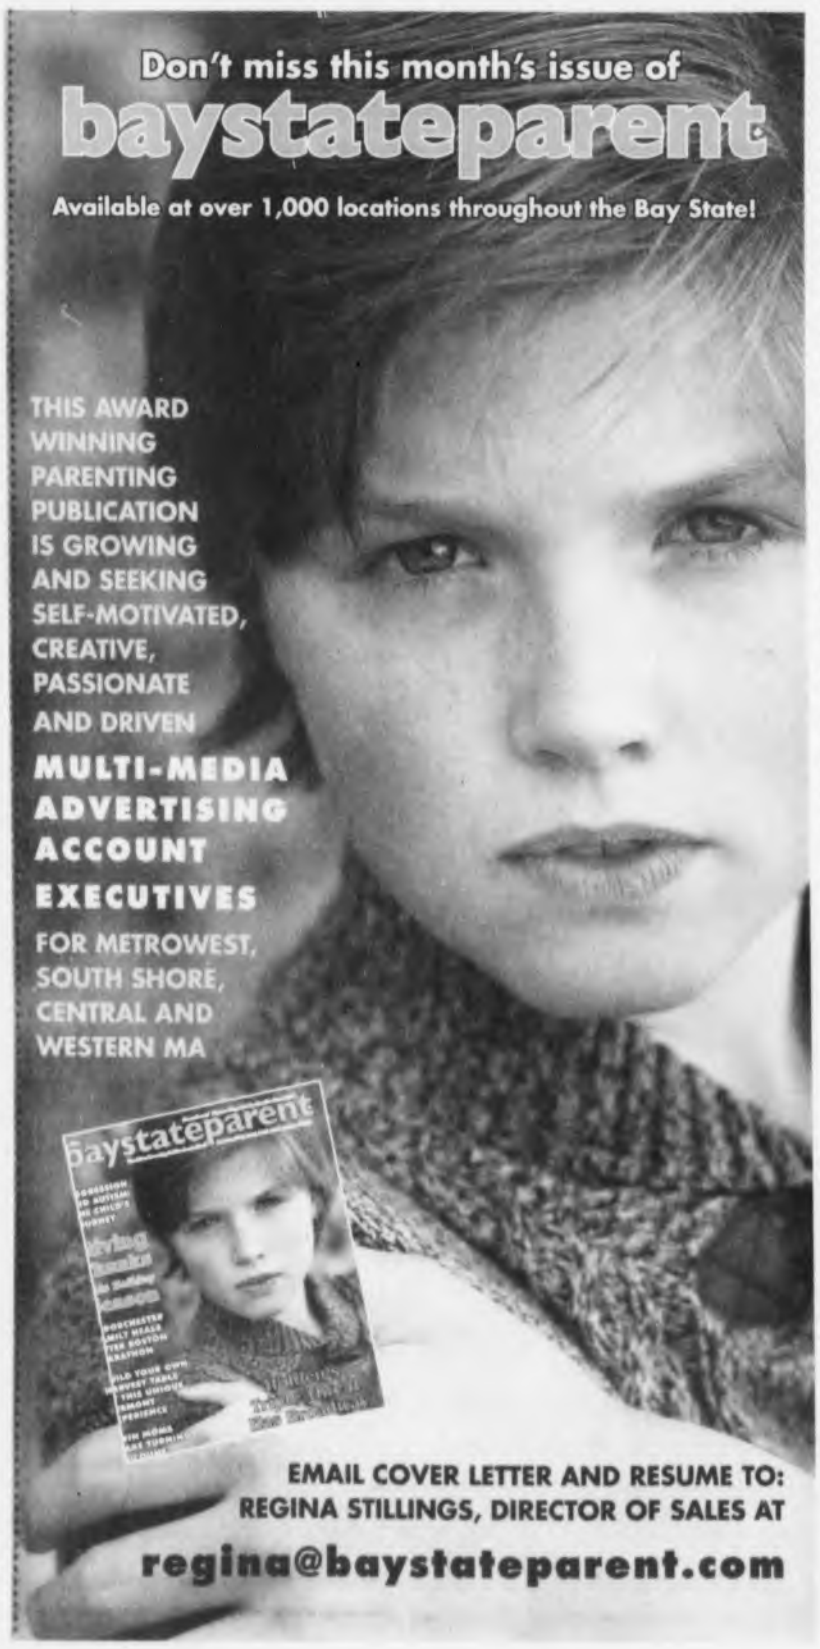
Shamus, the handsome, white mittened tiger with Tom Brady eyes, is quite adventuresome and eager to be in the mix of play with all of the toys available. Shamus is athletic, loves climbing and with his curious nature is busy checking everything out. As soon as we enter the room, he is alert and hopeful that attention is coming his way. Sweet and loving, he enjoys being held and, oh yes, his purr is deep and filled with appreciation. It is endearing to watch him sit near or climb over Patrick while wrapping his tail around him, a sign of love and connection for cats. He's such a loving soul.

Imagining these brothers being adopted, loved and enjoying a wonderful life with a special person or family is our special wish. When they were written up this past summer, included was the phrase, "just when you think they can't get any cuter, they do". Well, looking at these precious boys now, this is still so true. Patrick and Shamus are beautiful, well behaved little guys who have terrific personalities. After leaving the comfort of a home and coming into the shelter, they are a little confused and certainly wondering what happened. But when the best match for them comes through the door, makes a connection and falls for them, they will know the joy of being settled, content and loved forever.

Please call Judy at 781-534-4902 for more information about these delightful Irish boys! They would love to be safe and sound with a person or family who will give them a chance to settle in and bring years of love, affection and playful antics to a forever home. Please visit Hull Seaside Animal Rescue soon to spend some time with them.

We are located at 50 L St. Open Hours are Monday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 and Saturdays from 2-3 p.m. You can see more of our wonderful adult cats and kittens who are waiting for their best match and home by visiting www.HSAR.org and clicking on Available Pets. On Petfinder.com you will see more photos and information. Just enter our zip code, 02045. Also, please visit our Facebook page for updates and information about our special cats and upcoming events.

Our little Johnny Cash went to a forever home last week and will be having play dates with two of our other baby girls, Epsilon and Gamma, who fell for him here in the kitten room. When relatives adopt together, as happened with these three kittens, it makes for a very happy ending. This one is a story that has filled our hearts knowing that they will be loved and close. Ruby and Max are still available so please visit and perhaps you can provide the gift of a forever home to two cuddly, purry, babies who will be ready soon for loving homes where they can thrive and grow. Gentle and patient adopters who will share many hours of play and affection, mixed with lots of love for these two youngsters, would be a perfect gift.



We care so much about all of the adopted pets out there so please remember that holiday decorations, plants and curling ribbon, are enticing to kittens and cats but can be very dangerous. We hope that everyone's four pawed family members will enjoy a safe holiday in warm and caring homes. Any tree left completely intact over the next few weeks, in a house with kittens and cats, is a great accomplishment. Actually, it provides just as much wonderment and curiosity for them as the brightly wrapped presents underneath do for young children, so "peeking and exploring" are to be expected.

Our volunteers are our lifeline and their dedication to all of the animals here is shown every day of every week throughout the year. For all that they do, we are truly appreciative and grateful. It isn't always easy getting to a shift, but when need arises, so many in the group just step in and make it all work. With winter's storms and difficult conditions we are so lucky to have so many wonderful people with big hearts sharing a part of their week with the kittens and cats who temporarily call HSAR their home. If you are interested in joining this hard working group of animal lovers, please call Sue at 617-733-2986 for information about the tasks and responsibilities of Hull Seaside volunteers.

Thank you to everyone who had stopped by to drop off empty bottles and cans from holiday parties. We have donation bins at two locations along Nantasket Ave. in front of Nantasket Hardware, at A St. Liquors and of course, at our shelter at 50 L St. The proceeds from all of the collected returnables are instrumental in helping to pay utility bills, rent and purchase supplies here at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue. Your generosity and support mean the world to us and to the homeless and rescued kittens and cats who are just waiting for their chance to go to loving homes and families.

Wishing everyone a very happy and safe Christmas and New Year, we are so grateful for all of the support shown to the shelter this year. Donations, calendar purchases and continuing adoptions show everyone here at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue that the spirit of sharing, caring and giving is surrounding us and very much alive. Thank you all.

FOOD

WISE TO THE WORD

WAXY POTATO: Waxy white and red potatoes have less starch and more moisture than russets and other high-starch potatoes. This low-moisture content makes them ideal for boiling, mashing, roasting or frying. New potatoes have a waxy texture and thin skins, meaning they keep their shape in potato salads and can be pan-roasted. — Cookthink

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

WIKIMEDIA COMMONS

Don't peel it

When you remove the peel or skin from fruits and vegetables, you lose a lot of nutrition — it's a concentrated source of fiber, vitamins, minerals and potentially beneficial phytochemicals.

Here are some facts you might not know about peels, from the University of California, Berkeley Wellness Letter:

1. Vegetable peels or skins are particularly good sources of insoluble fiber, which helps prevent constipation. Some peels, notably apple, are rich in pectin, a soluble fiber that helps lower blood cholesterol and control blood sugar.

2. Apple peels may help prevent cancer. Lab research has found that whole apples have a much greater effect on cancer cells than peeled ones, probably because of the antioxidants in the skin.

3. Potato skins have far more fiber, iron, potassium and B vitamins than the flesh. Potato skins are also rich in antioxidants.

4. You don't need to wash fruits and vegetables in soap — plain water is fine. It will remove nearly all dirt, as well as bacteria and some pesticide residues, if any are present, on the surface. Scrub firmer produce like potatoes with a vegetable brush. The wax on fruits and veggies is harmless.

EASY RECIPE

Onion Crumb Brussels Sprouts Casserole

Serves 12.

• 1/2 cup Country Crock Spread, divided
• 2 cups chopped onions
• 3/4 cup panko bread crumbs
• 8 cups cooked Brussels sprouts (or thawed frozen), halved
• 1 cup fat-free half and half

Preheat oven to 375 F. Melt 4 tablespoons Country Crock Spread over medium-high heat in large nonstick skillet and cook onion, stirring occasionally, until golden brown, about 8 minutes. Add crumbs; cook, stirring until lightly toasted, about 2 minutes; remove to bowl.

Melt remaining spread in same skillet. Add Brussels sprouts; toss. Stir in half and half and 1/2 the crumb mixture. Pour into shallow 2-quart baking dish. Sprinkle with remaining crumb mixture.

Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until bubbly around edges.

Festive renewal

Repurpose holiday ingredients for new treat traditions

By Lisa Messinger
Creators Syndicate

Holidays are often stuffed with our favorite foods of all time. However, when you rely on old standbys just because they are familiar, it lessens the potential pizzazz.

The ideas that follow — they each take just seconds to read and are almost that quick to prepare — prove that virtually any winter holiday staple (like potatoes, stuffing or pumpkin) can be twisted and turned into a new holiday masterpiece on demand. Better yet, rather than starting from scratch, they can improve the meal for just pennies per serving.

Food preparation — even for holiday guests — can be easy, nutritious, inexpensive, fun and fast, as the following split-second sensations prove. The dishes are delicious evidence that everyone — including you and your kid helpers — has time for tasty home cooking and more importantly, the family time in the kitchen that goes along with it!

Another benefit: You effortlessly become a better cook, even when preparing holiday specialties, since there are no right or wrong amounts. These are virtually-can't-go-wrong combinations, so whatever you choose to use can't help but draw "wows" at the table.

Stuffing

Stuffed muffins: Stuffing doesn't always need to be stuffed into something. It can make quite a statement on its own. Fill either regular-sized or mini-muffin trays with cooked stuffing and bake or form it into loaves. Or stuff the stuffing, by placing a surprise, like a prune or a green olive, in the middle of a stuffing muffin.

Main course: Stuffing can function as a surprising course, rather than its usual side dish status. Substitute seasoned, dry stuffing mix for the bread, or along with it, in your favorite bread pudding recipe for a kick.

Ham or turkey

New glaze: Give your glaze a fresh outlook, and create an innovative meal theme at the same time. For Hawaiian flair, for instance, glaze with a syrup you've created as it reduces while you are stirring on the stovetop from coconut milk, pineapple juice, freshly ground black pepper and cayenne pepper. Turn it into a theme by adding chopped macadamia nuts and fresh pineapple chunks to your side dishes and a drizzle of bottled guava, papaya or mango nectar to your pumpkin or apple dessert pie before baking. Then, top it with sprinkles of sweetened coconut flakes just before serving.

Gravy upgrade: As good as they are, gravies and sauces are often bland. Why not perk them up a bit as they heat. Consider adding just a dash of strategic flavor, like cayenne and chopped jalapenos (experts recommend wearing latex gloves and not touching your eyes during or after handling peppers); finely diced garlic and pumpkin pie spice; or peach jam or all-fruit, no-sugar spread (also available in the jam aisles of most supermarkets) and curry powder.

Sweet potatoes

Baked buffet: Instead of a casserole, consider baking sweet potatoes to serve to guests individually, along with a buffet of toppings, such as honey, pure maple syrup, mini marshmallows, composed butters (like those to which you've added freshly chopped herbs or spices) or a mixture of diced dried fruit like cranberries, golden raisins, apricots and figs.

Standout substitute: Mix in or substitute sweet potatoes for pumpkin in a dessert pie or muffins. Sweeten a sweet potato puree (made from the flesh of peeled sweet potatoes) with honey or brown sugar, warm it and use as a dessert topping for vanilla ice cream that you then top with browned, melting mini marshmallows and toasted walnuts.

Pumpkin or apple

Cozy cocktail: Consider a toast with mini pumpkin or apple smoothies (or a combination of both) during appetizer time or to start off the meal. In a blender, to vanilla soymilk, add a dash of canned pumpkin pie filling or apple pie filling, banana, pumpkin seeds, candied pecans and ice. Blend until smooth.

Side surprise: Add minced, unpeeled pumpkin or apple to your stuffing or green bean casserole before cooking, as well as a sprinkling of pumpkin pie spice or cinnamon and crushed graham cracker crumbs. The same additions can be made to a mixed green or spinach salad if you cube and roast the pumpkin first. (Apples, of course, can be used raw.) You can serve it warm on top of the salad for a wilted effect, or let it cool first. Drizzle with roasted pumpkin seeds and poppy seed-based salad dressing, or raspberry vinaigrette.

Sweet holiday app will be a gourmet surprise

You've invited friends over for drinks before heading out together to a holiday concert, play or party. How can you make the time spent at your house be the highlight of the evening?

There's an app for that. As in appetizer.

You don't have to settle for a cheese ball and crackers, when just 15 minutes of prep time can yield a gourmet treat sure to garner ooohs and ahhhs.

This recipe from Smucker's combines many of our favorite holiday flavors. Salty prosciutto is sprinkled with finely chopped fresh sage, then wrapped around chicken tenders.

You can drizzle the bites with a bright red, orange-scented cranberry sauce, or serve the sauce on the side for dipping.

Prosciutto Chicken Tenders with Sweet Cranberry Sauce

Yields 48 appetizers.

• 12 very thin slices prosciutto
• 2 T finely chopped fresh sage leaves
• 12 fresh chicken tenders, patted dry
• 2 to 3 T olive oil
• 3 cups fresh or frozen cranberries
• 1/3 cup Smucker's Sweet Orange Marmalade
• 3 T firmly packed brown sugar, or to taste
• 1 t cider vinegar

Lay prosciutto slices flat on cutting board. Sprinkle with sage. Place chicken tender at one end of each slice and roll prosciutto around chicken. The chicken tenders can be wrapped ahead of time, then cooked just before guests arrive.

Heat oil in large skillet. Place chicken in skillet, seam-side down. Cook on medium heat about 9 to 10 minutes, turning frequently, until browned on all sides and internal temperature reaches 165 F. Cover and keep warm.

Combine cranberries and marmalade in medium microwave-safe bowl. Microwave on high 3 to 5 minutes or until cranberries are soft. Stir to break up cranberries, then stir in brown sugar and vinegar. Microwave 30 seconds to dissolve sugar.

Slice each chicken tender diagonally into four bite-size pieces. Insert toothpicks and arrange on serving platter. Pour half of warm Sweet Cranberry Sauce over chicken. Serve with remaining sauce.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF DEC. 30, 2013

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be busier than you had expected right now. But between the socializing rounds and the workplace tasks, there are opportunities for special moments with that certain someone.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your creative approach leads to a quicker-than-expected solution to a workplace problem. Now you can devote more time to that proposal you hope to introduce by midmonth.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Technological glitches create problems early on. But by midweek, all runs smoothly once again, and you're well and truly on your way to meeting all your deadlines.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your energy levels are high, and you feel you can handle everything that comes along. But try to take a break from your hectic pace for some quiet time with someone close to you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Before you pounce on that shiny new opportunity, take more time to check it out to see how much substance actually lies beneath all that glitter. A family member has important news.

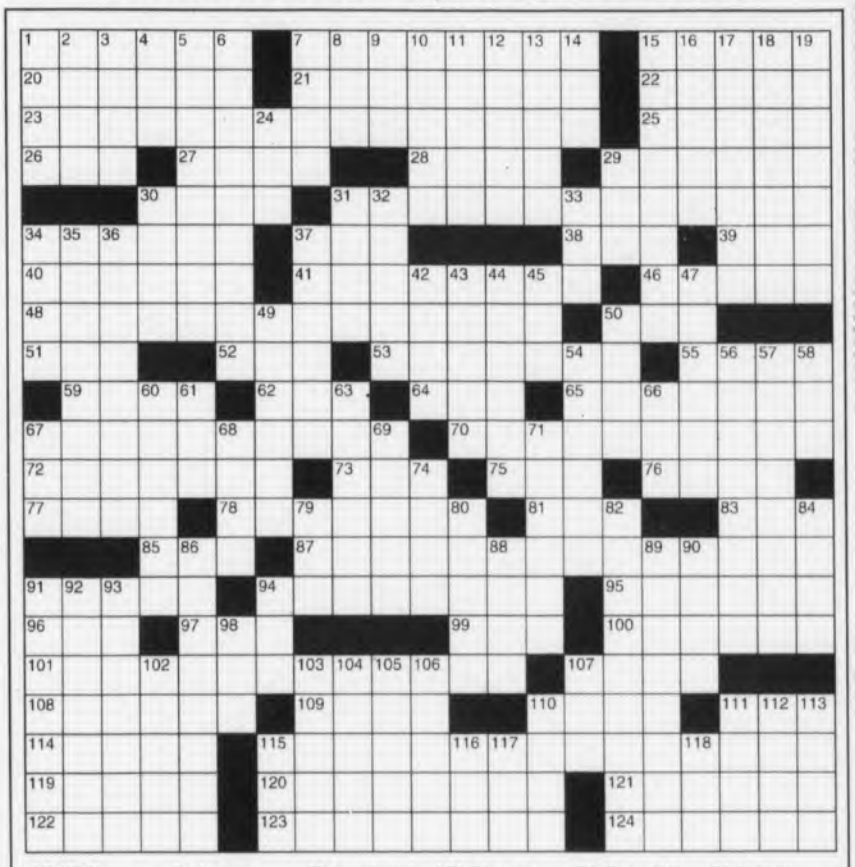
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A personal situation you thought was resolved resurfaces, thanks to a possibly well-intentioned move that went awry. Deal with it as soon as possible. Accept the help of a trusted friend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) That goal you set way back when is finally in sight. Maintain your focus on achieving it, and don't allow yourself to be distracted by unimportant demands for your attention.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A temperamental flare-up creates negative feelings that need to be dealt with immediately. But things once again go well after the apologies are made and hurt feelings are soothed.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An early impulsive act causes confusion. But all is smoothed over once explanations are made. Expect a friend or family member to ask for your kind and always wise advice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You might have to do some juggling of your priorities, as a personal matter appears to require more time and attention. Put your pride aside and accept help from those who offer it.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your creative aspect is strong. Not only does it help you accomplish your goals, but it also inspires others. This could lead to a potentially rewarding collaboration opportunity.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful about making major decisions when you're not really committed to them. And resist any pressure to do otherwise. Better to delay action until all doubts are resolved.

(c) 2013 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You set goals and are rarely distracted by any attempt to move you off the path you've chosen to reach them.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles?

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Milanoski moves on

Acting Town Manager takes a moment to reflect

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The Incredible Hulk stands guard in Michael Milanoski's office.

More accurately, it's a Hulk action figure. The bright green superhero was a gift from a town employee to encourage Milanoski to stay strong against town politics.

During his tenure as Acting Town Manager, Milanoski did just that, embodying Cohasset's strong Town Manager Act on a daily basis while ticking off several goals on robust to-do lists, from hiring new personnel to steering the town toward financial stability.

Milanoski has been Cohasset's Acting Town Manager for just shy of two years. His work for the town ends on Dec. 31, as he moves on to Carver, Mass., to take the helm as Town Administrator, making way for new Cohasset Town Manager Christopher Senior.

Even as Milanoski prepares to start a new chapter in Carver, he is still keeping a dog-eared Cohasset page open. Prior to exiting his current role, Milanoski prepared the Fiscal Year 2015 budget, which he said he wanted to present to the Board of Selectmen "tied with a ribbon around it" just in time for Christmas.

Milanoski also said that he is willing to do whatever he can to help the town transition to new management, offering to work directly with Senior, who plans to relocate to Cohasset from North Hempstead, N.Y. in mid-January.

"I've offered to provide some transitional support"

Glam on the go

Salon unveils new 'pamper glamper'

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Sometimes, you just need a little pick-me-up.

That's exactly what Michelle Cayer, owner of Cohasset's Willow Salon, Spa and Shoppe aims to provide for women in need with her "Pamper Glamper," a camper that is all decked out and ready for some serious, well, pampering.

Cayer, who is also a clinical esthetician and makeup artist, said that she's always been intrigued by the idea of "glamping," or "glamorous camping."

"It's popular on the West Coast," she explained. "It's nice camping, with down comforters."

The salon owner said that she wanted to get in on this, but with a special twist – offering pampering sessions and makeovers to women who are going through a tough time, whether financially, physically, emotionally or otherwise.

Although it's less about makeovers, said Cayer. "It's a pamper glamper pick-me-up."

After reading so much about glampers, Cayer said that a year ago, "I got obsessive about finding one." She finally obtained one from a woman in Nashua, N.H., and brought it to Cohasset with help from a friend, John McCarthy.

Michelle Cayer hopes to start taking the glamper all around the South Shore, to places like the Derby Street Shoppes in Hingham or private homes for "girls night out" type events.

Now, Cayer's vision is becoming a reality – one that she hopes is captured on TV.

"It's my big dream to do a reality show," she shared. "We'll pull people in [the glamper] unexpectedly."

Cayer hopes to start taking the glamper all around the South Shore, to places like the Derby Street Shoppes in Hingham or private homes for "girls night out" type events.

Even more so, Cayer hopes to provide free facials, manicures, makeup and hair styling for charity at places like Wellspring in Hull.

"We can also take the glamper to weddings, the beach, anywhere," said Cayer, her eyes glimmering. "Whether it's a campground, house or farm," the pamper glamper can get there.

"Hopefully by the spring we'll start doing some events."

Some of these events could be pamper glamper parties, like the one Willow Salon and Spa donated for auction at the recent Interfaith Social Services holiday charity gala. Others will be more private, for those who, perhaps, lost a loved one or learned that they have cancer.

It's an idea along the lines of a service the salon already offers: "serenity facials."

"If you know someone going through a tough time, we give gift certificates for a complimentary facial," Cayer explained.

Giving back is an important part of the holiday

Liquor license

Police seek hearing on alleged violations

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

According to a police report – things got out of hand last Saturday night into Sunday morning at the Red Lion Inn. As a result, Acting Police Chief William Quigley has asked selectmen to hold a hearing to address alleged liquor license violations.

A Cohasset uniformed police officer — who was working a private detail for a wedding reception at the Red Lion — reported hearing the sound of glass breaking coming from behind the bar around 12:45 a.m. Sunday. As he walked toward the bar to investigate he saw and heard patrons cheering "do it, do it!"

In a detailed report, Officer Harrison Schmidt reported that a highly intoxicated, 38-year-old Cohasset woman, who had been dancing behind the bar to the cheers of patrons, had rolled over the bar, breaking a glass in the process.

At one point during the investigation the officer was locked out of the bar. Schmidt reported that the manager — who told the officer he had been drinking and was not on duty — was not cooperative and had allegedly encouraged the woman to jump over the bar. When questioned at the scene, the manager told the officer he would be canceling all future police details at the Red Lion. Officer Jay St. Ives arrived to assist

The bar manager, who is the license holder, was not present.

Officer Schmidt reported that he was unable to find a sober bar manager working that night to refer the violation to.

Quigley has requested a hearing on three alleged violations:

• "No licensee for the sale of alcoholic beverages shall permit any disorder, disturbance or illegality of any kind to the place or in the licensed premises. The licensee shall be responsible therefore, whether present or not."

Kevin McCarthy

The Mariner caught up with Kevin McCarthy, who is chairman of the Governance Committee, at Town Hall earlier this week. If you see Kevin around town, be sure to tell him that you spotted him in Picture This! PHOTO/MARY FORD

Name: Kevin McCarthy.

Occupation: Attorney and chairman of the Cohasset Governance Committee.

Best day of your life: The day my wife and I were married.

Best vacation: Going to Paris with my twin daughters.

Favorite season: Autumn.

Favorite holiday: Christmas.

Favorite junk food (or meal): Baked Stuffed Lobster.

Best book (or magazine): "Tender is the Night" by F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Best movie: "Cincinnati Kid."

Best TV show: "The Daily Show."

Best music, group, or artist: Bob Dylan.

Pet peeve: The mouse that keeps eating my almonds!

Fun fact: I pitched a perfect game no-hitter when I was 12. Struck out 19 batters. My brother Terence was the catcher.

Goal: To give my family and friends all the love they deserve.

Person you'd most like to meet: Mohammad Ali.

Biggest worry: When I was young I worried about everything; in my 30s I worried only about the important things; now I don't worry about anything – it's all good.

Best part of Cohasset: American Legion Post # 118.

Numerous car crashes reported

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

A Cohasset officer was following up on a missing person report on Gannett Road in Scituate when his cruiser that had the blue lights on was hit by a brown Chevrolet Tahoe around 2:30 a.m. on Sunday (Dec. 22), The Tahoe took the mirror off the cruiser. COURTESY PHOTO

2-car MVA

There was a two-car accident on Route 3A by Stop & Shop on Monday (Dec. 16) around 11:24 a.m. Police said a 1997 Mercedes sedan, operated by a 74-year-old Hyannis man, that was headed south ran the red light at the plaza and struck a 2011 Volvo XC90 that was exiting the plaza on the green light to make a left turn to head south on 3A. The Volvo was operated by a 71-year-old Cohasset man. There were no injuries and no tows; the operator of the Mercedes was cited for a red-light violation, police said.

Car scraped

At 6:44 p.m. on Monday (Dec. 16), police investigated a report of a 2008 Volvo XC90 that had been sideswiped by a school bus earlier by the Osgood School. Police caught up with the bus, which was operated by a 52-year-old Hull woman who did not realize she had scraped the car. There was some paint transfer on bus from the Volvo, police said.

There were no citations. Police plan to work with the school department to deal with the tight parking situation along the driveway at the school.

Chicken loose

Police were unable to locate a chicken who had flown the coop and was reported missing at 7:11 p.m. on Monday (Dec. 16) from Cedar Lane. The caller told dispatch that the chicken may have made it all the way to S. Main St.

2-car MVA

Police said a 1996 Ford Thunderbird, operated by a 22-year-old Scituate man, rolled through the stop sign at the foot or Rocky Lane at around 8:55 a.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 17) and hit a 2003 Volkswagen Jetta that was operating south on S. Main. The Jetta was operated by a 27-year-old Cohasset man.

Neither vehicle was towed and there were no injuries. The operator of the Thunderbird was cited with a stop sign violation, police said.

2-car MVA

Police responded to a two-car accident on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) and Ridgetop Road at 2:48 p.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 17). Police said a 2005 Chevrolet Astrovan that was headed south and was operated by a 24-year-old Cohasset man had stopped in traffic when it was hit from behind by a 2013 Toyota Highlander. The Highlander was operated by a 16-year-old Scituate girl. No one was injured and neither vehicle had to be towed. The girl was cited for following too closely on a state highway, police said.

Disabled car

An off-duty Hingham police officer helped push a 2008 BMW sedan that was disabled near the train tracks on lower King Street to the back entrance of Robbins Garage around 7:45 p.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 18), police said.

Jewelry missing

Police are investigating the reported theft of about $23,500 in jewelry from an 81-year-old woman who lives on Forest Avenue. The last time she saw the jewelry was when she attended a wedding in September. She had windows replaced in her home since that time but was present when the work was being done. The woman reported the larceny on Thursday (Dec. 19).

2-car MVA

Police responded to a two-car accident in front of Stop and Shop at 6:23 p.m. on Thursday (Dec. 19). Police said the collision occurred when a 2007 Jeep SUV, operated by a 45-year-old Scituate man, was making a left out of Cohasset Plaza when the Jeep struck a 1999 Honda Accord that was coming straight across into the plaza on the green light from upper King Street. Further investigation revealed the operator of the Honda, an 18-year-old Hingham man, had a suspended license. Police said his license was suspended due to a junior operator violation.

There were no injuries; the Honda was towed. The operator of the Jeep was cited for failure to yield to oncoming traffic, police said.

Plates seized

A Cohasset officer seized the plates on a 2008 Nissan parked in a Ripley Road driveway last week because the registration had been revoked for insurance purposes, police said. State law allows police to go onto private property to seize plates. Police receive a weekly list from the Registry of Motor Vehicles of revoked registrations.

Dispute

Police spoke to the former boyfriend of a 17-year-old Cohasset girl who came to the station with her mother last Saturday (Dec. 21) to report the boy had been harassing her with texts and phone calls. Police talked to the boy who lives in Hanover and he agreed to stop contacting the girl.

OUI arrest

A Cohasset officer was following up on a missing person report on Gannett Road in Scituate when his cruiser that had the blue lights on was hit by a brown Chevrolet Tahoe around 2:30 a.m. on Sunday (Dec. 22), The Tahoe took the mirror off the cruiser, police said. Scituate police caught up with the 32-year-old Scituate woman driving the Tahoe and she was subsequently arrested for drunken driving. Charged with OUI (alcohol) and driving to endanger was Marybeth Bennett, 32, of 6 Ford Place, Scituate, police said.

In Massachusetts, the Move Over Law aims to make police, firefighters, paramedics, tow truck drivers, and all roadside emergency and maintenance professionals safer on the job. The Move Over Law requires drivers approaching a stationary emergency or maintenance vehicle with flashing lights to move to the next adjacent lane if it is safe to do so, and, barring that, to reduce their speed. Failure to comply could result in a fine of up to $100.

Every year, first responders across the country are injured or killed on the job while providing emergency help and, this summer six Massachusetts state troopers were injured in as many weeks. One trooper died from his injuries.

Summonsed

A 53-year-old Cohasset man has been ordered to stay away from a local establishment where he allegedly assaulted a 17-year-old girl who works there. Police said the man allegedly grabbed the girl by the arm and made comments about her bracelets, a piercing in her lip and tattoos she had. Police took the information from her and notified her mother. A criminal complaint is being sought for assault and battery against the 53-year-old man, police said.

Domestic

Cohasset police arrested a 56-year-old Scituate father for allegedly punching his son in the face on Sunday (Dec. 22) at around 10:30 p.m. Police found the 24-year-old son in Shaw's Plaza with his mother. He had a torn shirt and bruised right eye, police said. Apparently the father and son had gotten into an argument in their vehicle, they pulled into the plaza where the father allegedly pulled the son out and punched him in the face.

The man was arrested at his home in Scituate and was held over night until arraignment the following morning at Quincy District Court. He was charged with domestic assault and battery, police said.

Domestic

Police responded to a domestic incident involving a teenage son and his father on Monday (Dec. 16) around 11:15 a.m. The teen had been sleeping and apparently threw a temper tantrum when his father tried to wake him in time for him to get to a class at a local college.

The teen broke his own phone but there was no physical altercation. The parties were advised of their recourse, police said.

UPDATE

HR policies brushed up

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Many of the policies have not been addressed since the 1980s, leaving the town wide open to liability, officials said.

Cohasset is taking a crack at its HR policies, which are long overdue for an update.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski said during the Tuesday, Dec. 17 Board of Selectmen meeting that the town's labor counsel, Brian Magner, has been "able to identify items in the HR policies that are not up to date."

The town does not have a human resources department but has policies that, according to a recent presentation by Magner to the selectmen, are in dire need of update. Many of the policies have not been addressed since the 1980s, leaving the town wide open to liability, officials said.

Milanoski indicated that it's being worked on.

"We updated all the items that were easily done just to protect the town a little more," the acting town manager said. "There are still a couple typos town counsel may have made. They (items) have been officially adopted as part of our policy, although there's still more work that needs to be done."

Milanoski proposed that the town "go forward with an HR manager town-wide to carry on and complete that responsibility," adding that he has included this position in the Fiscal Year 2015 budget. It will involve a current town employee changing job titles but will not create a new headcount.

Selectman Karen Quigley wanted to know if the updated HR policies were the same as ones the selectmen previously approved during former town manager Bill Griffin's tenure. Milanoski clarified, "They have all been updated and reviewed by Town Counsel," providing each board member with a large binder. "It's the responsibility of the town manager to update" the polices, he added, explaining that the current updates constitute "about a third of what needs to be done."

Cohasset school personnel attend training

Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey sponsored a national training for Norfolk County's public school nurses, addressing how nurses can best integrate into a community's response to a school disaster, either natural or man-made, as part of his ongoing campaign to enhance school safety.

Two Cohasset Public School personnel were among the more than 80 nurses taking part in the recent day-long seminar: Judy Collins and Mary Mastromarino.

Morrissey used funds forfeited in successful drug prosecutions to pay for the National Association of School Nurses' Chris Tuck, a Kansas-based trainer and member of her state's Committee on Safe and Prepared Schools, to come to Massachusetts and conduct the seminar.

Morrissey said the training was a natural next step after providing I.M.P.A.C.T. assessments, from the MetroLEC regional law enforcement coalition, for one school in each Norfolk County community this spring. The Incident Management Protocols and Critical Tasks program is designed to help schools and police decrease or prevent injuries if a violent school event occurs. Bank of Canton president Stephen Costello donated the use of the seminar room at his corporate headquarters, as he has repeatedly done for law enforcement trainings.

School security matters

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

School security has been a subject at recent school committee meetings. Cataldo shared recently that grant monies have been received to install a new LobbyGuard sign-in kiosk.

Recently, school district administrators, employees and town officials participated in a special seminar on school safety.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski reported that he, several police officers including Acting Chief William Quigley, the school district Superintendent, Barbara Cataldo, and all of the teachers attended a seminar on school security "to figure out how we as a town can better protect our children." The program was presented by A.L.I.C.E., which educates on how to deal with violent intruder incidents.

Parents of schoolchildren were also invited to attend a presentation by A.L.I.C.E. on Wednesday evening, Dec. 11. "We wanted parents to know what was going on," said Cataldo, explaining that parents were alerted about the presentation via email.

Cohasset officials participated in a two-day training program with A.L.I.C.E. earlier this year.

Milanoski also stated that the town has "invested additional revenue funds into making the [school] buildings more secure. Some additional security measures are being done this week, including blast-proof doors."

School security has been a subject at recent school committee meetings. Cataldo shared recently that grant monies have been received to install a new LobbyGuard sign-in kiosk.

"They're [also] working on the doors," she said, adding that a state grant of $49,800 was received recently that will go toward security upgrades. "We used some of that money for training and are using some to re-fit some of the doors as soon as we can this year," said Cataldo.

Overall, the superintendent said that the schools are taking measures to keep students safe.

"We're trying to be very thorough in how we prepare people. We're doing the best we can to protect our students," said Cataldo. "Clearly they are our most precious commodity; there's no doubt."

CPC to meet on Thursday, Jan. 2

The Community Preservation Committee is planning to meet on Thursday, Jan. 2 to discuss potential town projects.

Chairman Russ Bonetti said that he hopes to hold it as a joint meeting between the CPC, Advisory and Capital Budget committees.

By early February, Bonetti hopes his board will have reviewed project requests and prepare to vote on them in time to present articles for the April 2014 Town Meeting.

RED LION

Officer Harrison Schmidt reported that a highly intoxicated, 38-year-old Cohasset woman, who had been dancing behind the bar to the cheers of patrons, had rolled over the bar, breaking a glass in the process.

• Permitting the sale of alcohol to intoxicated persons;

• Hindering a police investigation (by locking the door to the bar and refusing to cooperate with an investigator).

"Additionally, due to very serious concerns I have about the safety of this establishment, I request that the Board of Selectmen immediately, by written instrument, order the licensee, as a condition of his liquor license, to hire police details every Friday and Saturday evening for the next six months to maintain order and protect the public," Quigley stated in a memo to Selectmen.

Schmidt reported that the woman who had been dancing behind the bar was very unsteady on her feet, had alcohol on her breath, slurred speech and had vomit on her clothing. Schmidt observed the woman being helped by a friend who said they were going to walk home. He ended up transporting both Cohasset women home and turned the one, who had been dancing, over to the care and custody of her husband, police said. The bar patrons were not wedding guests and the incident was unrelated to the wedding that Schmidt had been working the detail for.

In an interview Monday, Quigley said it was his understanding that the owner of the Red Lion Inn is presently out of the country, and the holder of the liquor license was in the hospital the night of the incident.

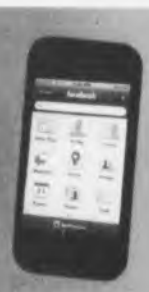
"It's appears to me that an employee of the establishment may have taken advantage of this situation and let alleged violations occur under his watch, which is totally unacceptable," he said.

"The owner of the Red Lion Inn has hired a very well respected local attorney and I foresee this business taking positive steps to put a competent and capable manager at the helm and in control of the liquor license."

Although the selectmen's agenda was set before they were notified Monday of the incident at the Red Lion that had occurred over the weekend, no mention was made during the agenda item "topics not reasonably anticipated by the chairman 48 hours in advance of the meeting."

When questioned immediately after adjournment, Chairman Fred Koed said the item would need to be put on a future agenda. Reached for clarification on Tuesday (Dec. 24) about the seriousness of the reported violation and when the board would address the matter, Koed stated in an email:

"Regarding compliance and license complaints that may come before the board: The board of selectmen take its role as the licensing authority very seriously. Every license holder is entitled to due process. When particular matters are brought to the board's attention, due to the Open Meeting Law, the board must review that matter in open public session to determine if a hearing is warranted. The determination to hold a hearing is a decision for the full board of selectmen after having reviewed in open session the investigatory materials.



"If the board decides to hold a hearing on a particular matter, since the board would then sit in judgment on that matter, the board members must remain impartial until after it has heard all the evidence both pro and con. Therefore it would be premature to have an opinion on any matter until the hearing has closed on that matter. I am sure the board will have questions when the time comes and the board will review all matters in due course. With the holiday season upon us and the new year one week away, the board if now focused on the transition to the new town manager and the new year. It is expected that the new town manager will be on board around mid January," he wrote.

The Board of Selectmen had planned to address a Sept. 28 alleged entertainment license violation by the Red Lion Inn concerning noise during their Jan. 7 meeting. It is unclear whether they will address the new allegations involving liquor at that meeting. The noise hearing had been postponed to allow the inn's counsel to review the investigatory report that exceeded 100 pages.

Neighbors who live next door to the inn filed the Sept. 28 noise complaint.

Good news from schools, colleges

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Pomfret School

In a "new and different way of learning," Grace Keenan of Cohasset recently was part of a student-faculty team that worked together on a project titled Influence of the Hispanic Community in the U.S.: Past, Present and Future at Pomfret School in Connecticut.

Grace was recently part of an all-school academic experiment called Project: Pomfret. From Dec. 3 through 18, the students and faculty at Pomfret were at school, but not, in the conventional sense, in school. In place of class time and homework, they were instead out tackling one of 29 projects – among them designing and building a real footbridge, conducting statistical and laboratory analyses on the economic and nutritional value of organic produce, and trying to make sense of the Middle East, the environment, hip-hop music, the practicality of dams; and actually producing and using bio-diesel fuel.

Grace was in the group of students and faculty who collaborated on Influence of the Hispanic Community in the U.S.: Past, Present and Future.

Saint Michael's

Saint Michael's College student Peter McKenna, son of James and Mary-Kate McKenna of Cohasset, is studying abroad in Paris for the spring 2014 semester. McKenna, a junior economics major graduated from Brooks School before coming to Saint Michael's.

Studying abroad

Michelle Berube of Cohasset is spending Union College's winter break studying in New Zealand, focusing on electric power development and environmental management.

Michelle is majoring in geology.

St. Sebastian's

William L. Burke III, headmaster of St. Sebastian's School in Needham, announced honor roll recipients for the first quarter of the 2013-2014 school year. James D. Dietrich of Cohasset, grade nine, son of Francis and Heidi Dietrich, earned honors. To earn honors, students must maintain a B- or above in all subjects.

Senior events

• Wednesday, Jan. 8, at 11 a.m. — Sheila Pransky from the Norfolk County District Attorney's office will discuss hoarding. This is helpful information, whether or not you have difficulty dealing with this issue. What you learn might benefit someone else.

• Wednesday, Jan. 15, 11 a.m. — Captain Brad White of N.E Burials at Sea, (NEBAS) will give a presentation on customized ash scattering memorials and full body burials at sea. The company serves all faiths with personalized and affordable service. Captain White has been seen in the Boston Globe and Channel Five's Chronicle.

Both presentations will be held at 3 North Main Street. A lunch prepared by one of our "celebrity chefs" will follow at noon.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.(Monday for next week only due to our early deadline!)

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

GIMME SHELTER

Willow will enchant you

Where to begin with Willow? Well, that she is a stunning feline with exotic features is a great start. This lovely two-year-old boasts the classic glowing green/gold eyes and dense soft fur of a Russian Blue, which is certainly a dominant mix in her bloodline. Just running your hand over her you feel that smooth silky texture, and she certainly takes care of it, as the sheen is beautiful. Imagine running your fingers through a pile of pussy willows in a basket and that is the sensation you can feel when petting her.

Sadly, someone must have become separated from or left Willow behind, but lucky for her, a good Samaritan found her and began feeding her. Once she was more comfortable, Willow was brought into the shelter and we have learned that she is a very sweet and mellow girl. There is one thing she surely misses though, and that is her home. There must have been a lot of attention and love provided once upon a time and now our goal to find just the right person or family to make her New Year the happiest of all.

Willow is not very happy being in a room with other cats so she was most likely the only pet in her past home and that would be a wonderful match for her now. She wants to come out and greet you but feels a little wary of other felines around her. Once she is able to have one-on-one time, she will rub up against your legs and be begging for petting and attention. When Willow knows she is safe, the comfort of a lap will no doubt be a comfy spot for her.

If she has room to move around freely, without distraction, Willow will enjoy interactive playtime with wand toys and nerf balls and fabric mice and ping pong balls. She is young and just needs the attention and entertainment that will make her one happy girl. Making transitions from a home, to the outside elements, then to a shelter does take a lot of adapting, but this beauty is doing so well and is sure to make one loving person or family feel wanted and loved. She will be a wonderful feline companion. Please call Judy at 781-534-4902 for more information on this gorgeous girl.

Just running your hand over her you feel that smooth silky texture, and she certainly takes care of it, as the sheen is beautiful.

As 2013 draws to a close, there have been so many people to acknowledge and thank: donators, civic groups, students, clubs, organizations, supporters, and volunteers. Each and every one of you are making the difference between life and death for so many innocent kittens and cats. Foster homes with loving folks who care for nursing mom cats and their litters, temporary foster homes for cats with special needs, and those with open hearts who take in needy forgotten pets who are suddenly homeless are the heart and soul of Hull Seaside Animal Rescue. We are never more grateful than when we see all of the hard work end in success...finding the best homes for our kittens and cats.

Veterinary services from Hingham Animal Clinic, Crazy Paws, Pet Pharm, The Animal Rescue League and VCA Weymouth are definitely on our thank you list for helping provide the medical care necessary to keep our feline community healthy and comfortable. Their help and extra time at all hours is amazing and we are so fortunate.

To our media partners, The Hingham Journal, Cohasset Mariner, The Hull Times and WATD 95.9 FM, everything you do has helped one more pair of kittens, or one more adult or senior cat find a home where they can feel special and enjoy the warmth of a family.

Petco at Hingham Shipyard, Whole Foods at Derby St., Fitts Mill and Pawsitively Pawsitive in Scituate, your continued donations of food for the shelter is such a generous gift and we are so appreciative.

And right now, there is a fuzzy, four-pawed kitty sitting on this desk who needs lots of time, attention and love from her foster parent, so we will just wish everyone who is involved with, has volunteered with and adopted from Hull Seaside Animal Rescue a healthy, prosperous and very Happy New Year!

Paula J Fatersik is a volunteer and feature writer for Hull Seaside Animal shelter and can be reached atpjfatersik@gmail.com.

GLAMPER

season and all year round, according to Cayer, who said that she loves Mrs. Claus. "I live a blessed life. So many people have been good to us in tough times."

The salon's customer relations manager Christine Ellis chimed in, "Michelle's been talking about the magic of Christmas; that's exactly what this is."

With that and mind, Cayer and staff set out to "christen the glamper" last Saturday, surprising a few women they knew who could use a pre-holiday pick-me-up. Cohasset restaurant Fresh Feast donated refreshments for the occasion.

"I'm very excited," said Allison Gallagher of Brighton as Cayer prepared to do her nails. "It's relaxing."

Caitlin Fitzgerald of Marshfield said that both she and Gallagher could use a little pampering, "after the week we've had.

"I'm excited to relax and not be stressed out," she continued. "Work's been intense recently. To have this done right before Christmas" was especially helpful, said Fitzgerald.

Cayer and her team selected both women for their complimentary pampering sessions less than 24 hours before conducting the mini-transformations.

"I think it's awesome," said Ellis of the way things came together at the last minute. "It's something you don't see every day."

"We try to help people," said hairstylist Erin White as she prepared to curl Fitzgerald's hair. "We've been working on this camper for a year."

Saturday was just the start of what could be a very special new embarking for Willow Salon and Spa, and its brand new pamper glamper.

Cayer hopes that a little pampering will go a long way. "I want people to come here and feel comfortable," she said of the salon. "Our motto is to feel good inside and out."

Some of these events could be pamper glamper parties, like the one Willow Salon and Spa donated for auction at the recent Interfaith Social Services holiday charity gala.

The Willow owner added, "If somebody knows of somebody who needs a pick me up, let us know." Email Cayer michelle@willowsalonspa.com or Ellis at c.bamsen@gmail.com.

HOLIDAY GETAWAY DESTINATION

OBX: A Family Paradise

By Matthew McCormack
Special to the Mariner

If a rod and reel are your must-haves, the Outer Banks provide a fisherman's haven. Take a trip down to the Nags Head fishing pier, where locals and tourists harmonize in the great equalizer of fishing.

The golden late-afternoon sun, ready to begin its remission and tuck itself beneath the horizon, glints off the surface of the azure water. Waves form their own impromptu percussion session, their wooshing heard from several blocks away. Sandpiper birds scurry across the surface of the warm sand, sure not to let the waves wet their thin feathers. A few hundred yards out in the ocean, the graphite tips of dolphin dorsal fins can be seen poking out of the water, and baitfish dance and leap from the water as manta rays, as big as a kitchen table, leap from the surface, and acrobatically backflip through the air.

Is this Heaven?

Well, sort of. Welcome to the Outer Banks, North Carolina.

OBX, as it is affectionately called by vacationers, is a set of thin barrier islands off the coast of the North Carolina's eastern shore. Although it is famously known as the site of Wilbur and Orville's first flying experience (you can visit the Wright Brothers' national memorial in Kitty Hawk), OBX is much more than a piece of aviation history. It is a popular destination for fishermen and families alike, and can provide something for just about anyone.

If a rod and reel are your must-haves, the Outer Banks provide a fisherman's haven. Take a trip down to the Nags Head fishing pier, where locals and tourists harmonize in the great equalizer of fishing. The splintery wooden pier stretches deep out from the shore, and offers access to the undersea bounty of croakers, flounder, spot, and even the occasionally puffer fish or stingray. Or, if you are a little more inclined, head to the Oregon Inlet in Manteo, where you are sure to find a fishing charter that fits you. Pony-tailed captains with calluses on their hands and decades of fishing expertise in their brains will help you every step of the way as you travel out to sea. A charter can also double as a boat ride, with sprays of seawater, a sweltering sun, and plenty of food and drink to enjoy with your family and those onboard. If you are interested in making a dinner out of your catch, joints such as the Lone Cedar Cafe in Nags Head tote a "you catch it, we cook it" mantra.

Those looking to get a look at the marine wildlife without having to tangle with a writhing bloodworm or piece of slimy squid as bait can still get their fix on the islands. Just head down to Roanoke Island to the North Carolina Aquarium, where you can see a sample of tropical wildlife. From menacing sharks that would benefit from a little dental work to the fan favorite and stupidly cute river otters, the NCA is certainly a place to check out.

If you are looking for a little more of an adrenaline rush, Outer Banks can hit the spot. Be it jet skiing in Kitty Hawk or parasailing over the sound in Manteo, there is no end to the watersports and thrill-seeking opportunities.

Furthermore, if you're willing to take a day-trip, Hatteras, on the south side of the islands, beckons. Hatteras is home to the legendary Cape Hatteras lighthouse, a towering, 187 foot spire that is cloaked in a black and white, candy cane-esque design. A small fee will yield the opportunity to climb the 257 red steps that lead to the top of the lighthouse. From there, a view of the entire Outer Banks is visible, and one can catch a glimpse of "The Shoals", a treacherous part of the shoreline where pirates of lore would wait for shipwrecks. After a sweaty, and oftentimes exhausting journey up and down the lighthouse, on the way home be sure to stop at Ugly Mugs Coffee in Avon. This hidden gem serves up the coolest and creamiest of smoothies, topped with fluffy whipped cream. Hand-carved mugs peer curiously at customers, their ridiculous, twisted faces the namesake of the tiny beverage shack.

And of course, one must not forget the main attraction of the islands; the beaches. From Kill Devil Hills to South Nags Head, there is nary a bad beach in the bunch. Interestingly enough, as the barrier islands are two sided, there are two choices for swimming venues; the calmer, slightly warmer "sound" located on the interior, and the conventional Atlantic beach on the eastern shores. Waves are large enough to surf and body surf upon, but could become dangerous for a small child.

As far as lodging, there are a number of options in OBX. Realtors such as Stan White can set you up with a rental house just a pebble's throw from the shore, or, if you're willing to spend a bit more, directly on the warm sands of the nearest beach. There are also several hotels and motels if a shorter stay is your cup of tea.

While all of these treasures exist in OBX, it would be inaccurate to call the place perfect. Riptides and strong currents can be dangerous to swimmers, as can the very rare shark attack. Once in a while, a wader will feel the slimy, leather wings of a stingray flap beneath their feet, or the pinchers of a crab. It would be a lie to say that the Outer Banks has a hopping nightlife; it is, after all, mostly a family destination. Traffic can become strenuous on weekends. Sometimes it does get unbearable hot. And finally, there is the occasional threat of a storm, as my family and I experienced when we left our vacation early as category four Hurricane Charley approached in 2004.

However, as a travel destination, The Outer Banks of North Carolina provide an eclectic, family-friendly spot that isn't as honky-tonk or overly developed as, say, Virginia Beach. If you are looking for a relaxing, beach vacation, and don't mind staying in at night, Outer Banks is the place for you.

OUR VIEW

Out of hand

The success of the Red Lion Inn is important to the vitality of the village. It is also an historic location and part of the fabric of Cohasset.

We recall when the old "Inn" — which had a lot of character – looked like the front of a movie set. While it had historical charm, the old place had been neglected with its future in doubt.

Gerd Ordelheide, a local businessman and resident, bought the old Inn, expanded and transformed it into a popular restaurant, bar and wedding-events venue. However, no matter how popular the Inn is or how important the vitality of the business is to the town — the Inn has to follow the rules like any other licensed establishment.

Last weekend, things got out of hand with the bar crowd at the Red Lion Inn that resulted in an intoxicated patron rolling over the bar to the cheers of the crowd, breaking a glass in the process. At one point a uniformed officer, who heard the glass break and was investigating, was locked out of the bar; the officer also could not find a sober manager on duty to report the liquor license violations to.

While we fully expect the Board of Selectmen will hold a hearing on the police complaint – we were surprised at the silence of the Board during last Monday's meeting.

The police report was provided to the board in advance of the meeting but under Open Meeting Law rules it could not be placed on the agenda because of a 48-hour notice requirement.

However, that should not have stopped the matter from being raised during the agenda item "topics not reasonably anticipated by the chairman 48 hours in advance of the meeting."

Monday's meeting was two days before Christmas and included a lengthy executive session on the new Town Manager's contract terms. So we should probably cut selectmen a little slack.

We tried to ask about the complaint and get some reaction during the meeting, which adjourned quickly after tackling the agenda. We did ask Chairman Fred Koed about the complaint immediately after adjournment and asked about Acting Chief William Quigley's request that the Inn be required to hire police details on the weekends for the next six months to maintain order and protect the public.

Koed stressed the board's focus was to get the new Town Manager on board and that they would tackle the complaint on a future agenda. When reached by email, Koed clarified the process (see story, page one).

In our view, the police report and Quigley's request were given short shrift in the holiday season when partying is a given. In our experience, there is no prohibition on offering an opinion on the seriousness of a complaint involving a liquor license holder. In this case, a uniformed police officer was also treated with disrespect at the establishment.

A hearing should be held when all the evidence can be aired. But selectmen need to speak out loudly and clearly immediately when these complaints are brought to their attention. They need to be unequivocal that after due process, liquor license violations will be handled swiftly and punishment could include suspension or revocation of the license. Not having the current "bandwidth" to deal with what could be a public safety issue is unacceptable and sets a bad precedent.

We loved this Jim Hamilton cartoon from last March when we were so hoping for an early spring. Don't miss next week's edition of the Cohasset Mariner (Jan. 3) that will feature the "Year in Review" including a collection of our favorite Hamilton cartoons from 2013.

COMMENTARY

Embracing governmental review

SAM WAKEMAN

I was very disappointed in Agnes McCann's commentary in the Dec. 20 edition of the Mariner. She is not at all accurate in the original charge/charter given to the Governance Committee. She should know this as she did attend some of our early meetings and was even asked to join.

The original charge is as follows:

"Identify any area of the Cohasset Government Structure that may be improved to provide better governance including accountability and effective/efficient use of limited tax payer dollars. Further the committee shall review the appointment process for town volunteers, examine the use of term-limits and committee officer rollover requirements. This may include recommendations to the Town Manager, Board of Selectmen, and Town Meeting including by-law and charter reform."

When given this charge we spent several meetings trying to figure out exactly how to proceed. The Town was in turmoil: Town Manager, Committees, financial stability and so on. We decided to prioritize our activity.

First was the Town's financial stability. A process needed to be created to help ensure we did not back slide into prior years lackadaisical budgeting and reporting. This resulted in the presentation of the Budget Planning Process, which was presented at the 2012 Annual Town meeting. This reinforced the Budget Planning Group and its role in bringing together the significant financial constituencies within the town. While only a recommended process, it was widely supported in a referendum vote.

Next on the list was the Town Manager Act with an understanding that we needed to try and prevent the interpretations of various roles (Town Manager, Board of Selectmen, School Committee, Advisory Committee, Capital Budget Committee, Finance Director, etc.) read into it by Mike Coughlin. We strongly felt a collaborative form of government involving the Town Manager, Board of Selectmen, School Committee, Advisory Committee, Capital Budget Committee, Finance Director was necessary to move the town forward. The result of this was the amendment to the Town Manager Act, which was presented to the 2013 ATM and passed by a comfortable margin.

The result of this was the amendment to the Town Manager Act, which was presented to the 2013 ATM and passed by a comfortable margin.

Next on the list was to take the amendments to the Town Manager Act and eliminate any conflicts in our current Bylaws. This we will be able to do and will present the recommended changes at the 2014 Annual Town Meeting.

There is much more to be done:

- A full review of all committee/board structures, term limits, chairman terms, necessity, activity and scope:
- The By Laws need a thorough review (they still include a Personnel Committee which was replaced by the Town Manager in the 1997 Town Manager Act),
- Maybe charter reform should be tackled.

While we have made some significant progress the concept of a continual review of our government structure should be embraced.

Don't miss the Career Workshop

Paul Pratt Memorial Library is at 35 Ripley Road, Cohasset. Call 781-383-1348 to register or for more information or visit the website at www.cohassetlibrary.org.

Holiday Hours - The library will be closed on Tuesday, Dec. 31, and for New Year's Day, Wednesday, Jan. 1. As always, patrons may return library materials using the book drop.

MA eBook Project - The library is participating in an eBook pilot project, which entitles Cohasset Library cardholders access to thousands of free ebooks and other materials. Read popular fiction and non-fiction titles or search titles for information for student reports and projects. Visit www.cohassetlibrary.org and click on the MA eBook Project icon on the library's homepage.

Movie Matinee - Enjoy a free, daytime movie at the library. The film "Stand By Me" will be shown at 11 a.m., on Friday, Jan. 3. Free admission. Light refreshments donated by Shaw's of Cohasset. Rated R; 88 min.; 1986.

Career Workshop - Your next employer will likely research your online profile on sites like Google, Facebook, and LinkedIn. On Thursday, Jan. 16, at 6:30 p.m. come to the library and learn the basic aspects of online identity optimization including strategies for accentuating strengths, avoiding common mistakes, and downplaying negative information. You'll leave with recommendations about how to balance security concerns with the goal of presenting a comprehensive online presence and with tips on how to passively monitor your online presence with minimal effort. Free.

FOR CHILDREN

MamaSteph — Join others on Mondays, Jan. 6, 13 and 27, at 10:30 a.m., for music movement and more. Funded by the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Story and Craft: Register Now — Story and Craft will meet in the Story Room on Thursdays, Jan. 9, 16, 23 and 30. Choose either the morning session from 10:30 to 11:15, or the afternoon session 1 to 1:45. This is a four-week literacy based program for children ages 3 and older. Each week students will explore a different theme using literature and crafts. Register online once for all four sessions at www.cohassetlibrary.org.

Live Owl Show — Saturday, Jan. 11, 1 p.m., in the Meeting Room. Marcia Wilson, naturalist and owl rehabilitator, and her husband, Mark, a wildlife photographer, will present, Eyes on Owls. They will introduce attendees to owls found in New England and around the world. Participants can practice hooting skills, see live owls close up and learn what can be done to protect owls. Seating is limited, so come early. Funded by the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Lego Club — Mondays, Jan. 13 and 27, 4 to 5 p.m., in the Meeting Room. Children 7 and younger must be accompanied by an adult. No registration required. Legos provided. Everyone is welcome.

Storytime — Join others on Tuesdays, 10:30 a.m., in the Story Room, for big book adventures.

NATURE (HUMAN AND OTHERWISE)

Coyotes in our midst

KEZIA BACON

They arrived in Massachusetts in the 1950s. While they have yet to make the journey over to Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, they can be found now in every other town statewide.

One night in December, my family was awakened twice by a pack of howling coyotes. They were loud – it sounded like they were right outside our door. The noise went on long enough to be disconcerting. What exactly was going on out there?

I found out later that day, through my neighborhood's Facebook group, that something – maybe coyotes, maybe a fisher cat – had taken down a deer in a backyard just three houses away. The homeowner photographed the evidence: all that was left was a ribcage and a leg bone. Neighbors were saying, "Don't let your cats out," but I have to admit I was a little concerned about us humans too. We're not much larger than deer.

To ward off the nightmares, I did some research. On its website (see below), the state's Department of Fish and Game offers some basic information on the Eastern coyote, as well as numerous other critters who make Massachusetts their home. Being blissfully unaware has its merits, but it probably makes more sense to familiarize oneself with the wildlife with whom we coexist.

Here's what I've learned so far. Coyotes are often associated with the desert, but their habitat is actually pretty diverse. They arrived in Massachusetts in the 1950s. While they have yet to make the journey over to Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, they can be found now in every other town statewide. They are quite adaptable, and can be at home in the city as well as the countryside. Their range extends north to Alaska and most of Canada, and south as far as Panama, plus all the way across the continental United States.

Coyotes can easily be mistaken for German shepherds, especially when spotted in a residential area. Size-wise, they are similar to a medium-weight dog, but you won't see much tail-wagging. Coyotes' tails point down and are tipped with black (their pointy ears, however, stand straight up). Coyote fur is more substantial than the average house pet's – longer and thicker – and because of that volume, coyotes may appear heavier than they actually are. Typically they weigh 33-47 pounds, but can go as high as 60. Colors vary. A coyote might be blond, reddish, various shades of brown and gray, or even black.

Coyotes aren't exactly particular about what they eat. They are what's known as "opportunistic feeders" – thus "easy" and "available" are at the top of their list. So while coyotes most commonly consume berries, fruit and the small creatures that inhabit the typical undeveloped area – fish, frogs, insects, snakes, birds, rabbits, and other small furry things – they will not turn their noses up at roadkill, garbage, pet food, or even pets. Yes, pets. Housecats and small dogs in particular.

Overall, this is a good thing. (Not the pet consumption, but otherwise...). Since coyotes often dine on rodents, they help to keep – for example – the woodchuck population under control. Anyone who's ever had a woodchuck take up residence in his or her vegetable garden knows what I mean. Coyotes and other predator species help to maintain the natural balance within a given habitat. They keep pest populations down.

Coyotes prefer to keep a low profile. You're most likely to see them when they're looking for food, which could be day – or nighttime; dawn and dusk sightings are most common. They do not hibernate. They establish a territory of 2-30 square miles, and travel in pairs, or small groups, or even individually. The territory of a single family – or pack – of coyotes could easily constitute an entire town.

Family size varies. Breeding happens in February and March, with the pups being born in April and May. Because they are extremely territorial, a pack of coyotes will fight for what it has deemed its own. An intruder in its territory could elicit howling, scent marking, posturing, or even confrontation. Coyotes can run at speeds up to 40 mph.

But the howling doesn't necessarily indicate that there's a problem. In fact, it's the primary means of communication within the species. So a howl could mean that a mama coyote is trying to find an errant pup, or that the pups are simply honing their communication skills. On the other hand, howling is also employed by coyotes to distract predators or to warn off trespassers.

Scared yet? No need to be! We have been co-existing with coyotes for decades now. The Department of Fish and Game offers some helpful tips on preventing conflicts with coyotes. Here's a quick summary.

1. Don't let coyotes intimidate you. They don't like loud noises, bright lights, water sprayed in their faces, or small objects like tennis balls hurled in their direction, so if you have to scare one off, try one of the above deterrents.

2. Secure garbage. Coyotes and other critters will raid your trash and compost if you let them. Use tight-fitting lids, and don't make your garbage too accessible.

3. Don't feed or try to pet coyotes.

4. Keep your pets safe and restrained. It's worth noting that free roaming pets are more likely to be killed by automobiles than by wild animals.

5. Feed pets indoors.

6. Keep bird-feeding areas clean. When seed falls to the ground, it attracts the small mammals that coyotes consider lunch. Remove bird feeders if coyote sightings are a common occurrence in your yard.

7. Close off crawl spaces under porches and sheds to discourage coyotes from taking up residence there.

8. Cut back brushy edges in your yard as coyotes consider brush to be prime cover for hunting.

9. Protect livestock and produce. Install fence. Clear fallen fruit.

10. Educate your neighbors. Pass this information along. If the whole neighborhood follows these tips, you will be much less likely to see a coyote family move in.

Town parking under review

Selectmen chair Fred Koed noted that any parking bans would be "an interim thing" for three to six months and would have to be revisited.

Town parking issues are being addressed by a special parking committee. Selectmen vice-chair Diane Kennedy said during the board's Tuesday, Dec. 17 meeting that the special committee is reviewing parking issues around town, particularly in the town-owned lot. Residents and business owners have complained of lack of parking.

While some of the selectmen wondered about imposing new "no parking" signage in certain places, Kennedy noted that any signage would have to be approved by the board. "Nothing is going to happen until there's a formal request for us to approve it."

Selectmen chair Fred Koed noted that any parking bans would be "an interim thing" for three to six months and would have to be revisited. Koed was content to wait for recommendations from the parking committee. "We're cautious but we want to get as much input as we can to head in the right direction."

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

Coming clean on hand washing

JOAN F. WRIGHT

Soon, manufacturers of these products will be required to show that the products are more effective than plain soap in stopping the spread of infections and are safe for long-term daily use.

How does one avoid colds and flu germs? Washing ones hands is a simple enough practice to cut down on spreading germs and increasing protection from the same. But now the question arises, what do we use to wash our hands? We've been inundated with an assortment of anti-bacterial hand soaps and body washes (2,200 according to the FDA) and a variety of options from regular soap to hand sanitizers and wipes to the anti-bacterial products.

The Federal Drug Administration (FDA), however, is now questioning the effectiveness of nonprescription anti-bacterial hand soaps and body washes. In fact, it is going a step further to explore whether the ingredients – triclosan in liquid soaps and triclocarban in bar soaps – are potentially unsafe for long-term daily use.

Soon, manufacturers of these products will be required to show that the products are more effective than plain soap in stopping the spread of infections and are safe for long-term daily use. The FDA reports that while more than 2,200 anti-bacterial hand soaps and body washes are available, there is no scientific evidence to show that they are any more effective at preventing illness than plain soap and water. The danger with long-term use, questions the FDA, could be potential for bacterial resistance or hormonal effects. (Note: hand sanitizers and wipes that are alcohol-based and are not used with water are not included in the recent FDA action nor are anti-bacterial products used in healthcare settings). If the manufactures cannot prove effectiveness and/or safety, they will be required to remove the antiseptic ingredients and/or anti-bacterial claims for product labeling.

So while clinical trials are conducted to measure effectiveness and safety, one thing we all know is that plain soap is still a good cleansing product and should be used when hands are dirty or have come in contact with public door handles, railings and other public places where germs may linger. And again, the alcohol-based hand sanitizers and wipes (at least 60 percent alcohol) that don't require water are a safe option when soap and water are not available.

With cold and flu season already upon us, it's good to remind ourselves of the major principles of "hand awareness" as endorsed by the American Medical Association (AMA):

- Wash hands when dirty and before eating;
- Cough into your arm or elbow – not your hand;
- Same goes for sneezing – use the arm or elbow to collect a sneeze, not the hand; and
- Don't put your fingers into your eyes, nose or mouth.

The FDA suggests consumers make an "educated choice" about what products to use but adds, "washing with plain soap and running water is one of the most important steps consumers can take to avoid getting sick and to prevent spreading germs to others."

FOR THE RECORD

A look back at the year

GREGORY MATHIS

Reflecting on the year that was, the special coverage of the aftermath of the bombings GateHouse Media Massachusetts provided in July 2013 will most certainly be a highlight.

We probably say this every year, but 2013 was quite a year on many fronts.

Internationally, the world was focused on Syria and its leaders' use of chemical weapons on its own people in at least one confirmed attack near Damascus in August. A recently released report by United Nations inspectors indicates chemical weapons were likely used in four other Syrian locations. Strife remains in Syria today.

The world's attention turned to the Philippines in November as Typhoon Haiyan ravaged the area, killing more than 6,000 in the strongest storm ever recorded at landfall.

Nationally, the U.S. government shutdown from Oct. 1-16 caught everyone's attention, bringing "Obamacare" into the spotlight once again as a political football. Deadly shootings at Los Angeles International Airport on Nov. 1 and at the Navy Yard in Washington, D.C., Sept. 16 reminded us of our vulnerability, as did the shootings at various schools throughout the country.

While all these stories were memorable to some degree, no story was bigger in this area than the Boston Marathon bombings in April. It may turn out to be the biggest story of the decade and maybe one of the biggest, most memorable, ever.

Reflecting on the year that was, the special coverage of the aftermath of the bombings GateHouse Media Massachusetts provided in July 2013 will most certainly be a highlight. Our 100 Days/100 Lives project focused on local people from all the communities we cover who were impacted by the bombings. Stories of kindness, bravery, perseverance and a greater sense of community came out of our reporting.

Our Right of Way special report back in May was another highlight, as we took a group approach examining the changing landscape between cars, bicycles and pedestrians. We thank the many readers who weighed in with their experiences to round out the local coverage.

And we thank readers for once again playing an important role in our annual Paint it All Pink Breast Cancer Awareness Month coverage in October. We're always amazed by the inspiring personal stories you are willing to share with our audience and us.

The For the Record column was meant to offer some insight into what we're doing and why we're doing it – both in print and online.

Along those lines, 2013 was a busy year.

We introduced a new commenting platform on our Wicked Local websites this summer, asking people to register through their Facebook or LinkedIn accounts. The move from previous registration requirements was met with mixed reactions, and we're hoping to see commenting activity pick up as we head into 2014.

We were more active this year on Facebook and Twitter, providing fans and followers with links to stories and interacting through those social media channels.

As far as For the Record, the close of 2013 brings the column to an end. After three years and three months, it has run its course. It will continue as a Wicked Local blog on each of the websites, and the goal is to update it at least three times a week, so please be sure to check it out by clicking on the Blogs tab on the top navigation bar and finding it on the Blog Community page.

All the feedback and emails regarding the column over the years is greatly appreciated. Thank you for reading.

MILANOSKI

to the new town manager, said Milanoksi, although he was not sure at the time how that "is going to play out."

The Cohasset town manager job was Milanoski's first, however he came to the role with experience in municipal management and planning, working as executive director of the Attleboro Redevelopment Authority (ARA) and as the director of economic development in Attleboro, Mass. He holds a master's degree in regional planning and economic development from UMass Amherst.

Milanoski has lived in town for nine years. He said that he and his wife, Jennifer, moved to Cohasset primarily for the school district. They have two children: Michael, 12, and Madeline, 9. Jennifer is president of the Cohasset PSO and has been involved in Cohasset schools ever since Michael started kindergarten.

"We've been intimately involved in the community," Milanoski said of his family. He's been a Little League coach for "multiple years," he added, and will continue coaching the Little Major League Cohasset Red Sox in the spring.

He and his family are in the midst of renovating their 1790s house, restoring the building's original woodwork. "It was built by Caleb Nichols, who also built the steeple on the common," Milanoski shared.

It's clear that Milanoski is comfortable in Cohasset.

Now, he'll have a bit of a longer commute for his new job. Nevertheless, Milanoski said that he looks forward to getting started in Carver. "I'm moving on to my next career," he said. "I am excited about the opportunity to work with the people and employees of Carver to accomplish their goals and objectives"

Before he closes the door to the town manager's office for a final time, the Mariner asked Milanoski to reflect on the ups and downs of his almost two years in office.

Volunteer

Milanoski started out working in Cohasset as a volunteer on various boards, including the 2011 town manager search committee that morphed into the Governance Committee, of which he was the chair. He resigned from that board, as well as his non-voting associate membership on the Conservation Commission, when he was appointed as interim town manager in March 2012 following then-town manager Michael Coughlin's sudden removal.

"I was asked to come in, after the town removed the former to manager, to help prepare a budget," Milanoski recalled. "They [the selectmen] asked three or four other people to do it. I said I would do it for two weeks; [then selectman] Lee Jenkins said it would take three or four hours a day. That's about how much sleep I got each night," he quipped.

It turns out that Milanoski had to dig in and get elbows-deep in Cohasset's various complications.

"Cohasset was on a watch list with the DOR [department of revenue]," he shared. "Two weeks in, I found out it was due to the town's inability to manage its financial system."

The town had a $600,000 deficit only two-thirds of the way through the budget cycle at the time, Milanoski explained. And money troubles weren't even the tip of the iceberg.

"There were also strained relations between the administration, committees, and unions — they were at an all-time low," said Milanoski. "There were multiple unfair labor practices and grievances filed against the former town manager.

"I stepped into financial and operational chaos."

The police union also filed several allegations against then Police Chief Mark DeLuca; Milanoski placed him on paid suspension in May 2012 and allowed DeLuca's contract to run out in January 2013. Since then Cohasset has been without a permanent police chief. Milanoski tried to appoint Acting Police Chief William Quigley as permanent chief but was vetoed by the selectmen who wanted the permanent town manager to appoint his own team.

The acting town manager said that this failed appointment is one of his regrets.

"One of my biggest disappointments is that due to politics, Acting Chief Quigley was not appointed [chief]. By all accounts his peers, other communities, and people who report to him all felt" he should have gotten the job," Milanoski said. "The fact is, three people would not vote for him. From any objective, standard review – and we have gone through that process – he is the most qualified person to lead Cohasset at this time. It's going on two years without a permanent police chief."

For any disappointments, the departing acting town manager also has plenty that he's proud of (see related story). Consolidating services, including the town's agreement with three neighboring towns to regionalize emergency dispatch calls, is a method of efficiency Milanoski wanted to implement in several areas, from the schools and town sharing a technology professional to consolidating several town branches into a unified Buildings/Inspections department.

"We are one community; we need to work together," said Milanoski. "I'm very blessed by having a lot of people in this town respect the work I do, the work we have collectively done."

He listed several town employees, including Finance Director Mary Gallagher, Treasurer Collector Paula Linhares Director of Project Management Brian Joyce, Chief Technology Officer Rob Bonnell, Board of Health Agent Felix Zemel, and administrative assistant Tracey Connors, "the glue that holds together" the selectmen's office, among many others.

"The employees deserve the credit" for the strides the town has made over the past few years, Milanoski concluded. "We have built up a very strong organization with department heads that care and are intimately involved in this town. They're looking for a legacy. This town will survive."

In fact, the town employees are the reason the town manager role is such a worthwhile job, Milanoski said.

"This is an exciting position when everyone is working toward the best interest of the town, both in the short and long-term. It's a rewarding position when everyone is working together."

Politics

Despite several major successes, Milanoski was not chosen as a finalist for the town manager job. He decided to cast a wide net and keep his options open.

"Back in September when I realized there was a political push to exclude me from the town manager search process, I began to pursue other opportunities in the private and public sector. I knew it was highly unlikely three people would have voted for me given the political rancor," he said, declining to delve into specifics. "It's difficult to comment on politics... I have no control over the politics in town. I can only control the operations and finances in town."

As he prepares to move on to Carver, Milanoski has indicated that there are no hard feelings about missing out on the Cohasset job. Rather, he did his best to wrap up several items on his way out, and has offered to assist with the transition to a new manager.

"I will continue as a resident of this community to monitor and stay involved in the community. Many people have offered to assist in other roles for me in town, including running for office. I'm not looking to do this at this point in time. I'm concerned with making an orderly transition for the new town manager to succeed. There are lots of obstacles, but as a taxpayer I want that individual to succeed."

That said, the acting town manager has laid out what he believes to be a solid financial map for the town to follow over the next several years.

"I have finished the 10-year capital plan, the 20-year pro forma, and the fiscal year 2015 budget, which has been "vetted and discussed with department heads, and will approve efficiencies in town, and provide the level of services Cohasset can expect.

"I'm going to present it to the board of selectmen," Milanoski added, which he did at the Dec. 17 selectmen meeting. Despite his advanced planning, he seems willing to hand over the controls. "If the new town manager wants to change it afterward, I understand."

It's clear that Milanoski cares about the town he's leaving behind, professionally, and there are many more things he'd still like to check off his long to-do list.

"Is there more to do?" he mused. "Yes. But compared to where we've been, Cohasset is a well-run, financially transparent, responsible government.

"On a daily basis, I'm reminded that many residents who know who I am are thankful for the work and improvements in their government over the past two years."

Town Manager's top ten

Milanoski counts down his proudest moments

Time flies – especially when you're running town operations, balancing budgets, hiring personnel, and raising bond ratings.

It's been a whirlwind 20 months for Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski, who leaves Cohasset in January to start working at Town Administrator in Carver. As he prepares to bid Cohasset farewell, at least professionally, Milanoski remains a resident as he turns a new page in Carver.

He said that he is proud of everything he and his fellow town employees have accomplished in a little less than two years.

"I'm proud of the financial and operational components of the town, putting long-range activities on a stable course. It's a great accomplishment that's been done in 20 months," he said. "Despite some who wanted to stop progress six months ago, progress has been done."

However, Milanoski's time in Cohasset wasn't free from controversy, with three of the five Board of Selectmen in favor of launching a search for a permanent town manager in July rather than continuing to renew his contract, which was extended last January with a hefty raise in salary, following a favorable performance review in September 2012.

While Milanoski applied for the permanent position in Cohasset, he was not selected as a finalist. He did, however, land in the top four finalists in Carver, a town that utilized the same consultants – the UMass Boston Collins Center, whose job description for both towns was practically identical.

When he learned of his new appointment in Carver, Milanoski thanked the Carver selectmen for recognizing his accomplishments as an acting town manager by agreeing unanimously to hire him.

According to published reports, Carver selectman Helen Marrone said that she was impressed with all that Milanoski has been able to do in Cohasset in a short amount of time. "He has done an incredible job," she said.

The Mariner asked Milanoski to identify his top ten proudest accomplishments during his tenure, which he said was done to benefit Cohasset taxpayers. His list is as follows:

1. Created the Town's Financial Management Policies adopted by the Board of Selectmen and Town Meeting, yielding:

- Increased General Stabilization Fund six times initial amount to over $2,000,000 or 5 percent of Annual Budget;
- Created OPEB Trust Fund and quadrupled set aside funds to $575,000;
- Quadrupled Capital Stabilization Fund to $1,400,000;
- Reversed negative "Free Cash" trend in 2012 to positive $900,000 in FY13 and $1,300,000 in FY14;
- Created Sewer Betterment Stabilization Fund and secured $900,000 for future debt service;.
- Removed $11,000,000 of approved but unissued debt as part of financial clean-up.

2. Created "one community" initiative with school district to collaborate and utilize economy of scale opportunities by combining town and school resources where possible, including hiring a Central Technology Officer. With the development and implementation of a community-wide technology plan, the town has invested approximately half a million dollars for replaced technology equipment to increase the productivity and other security initiatives.

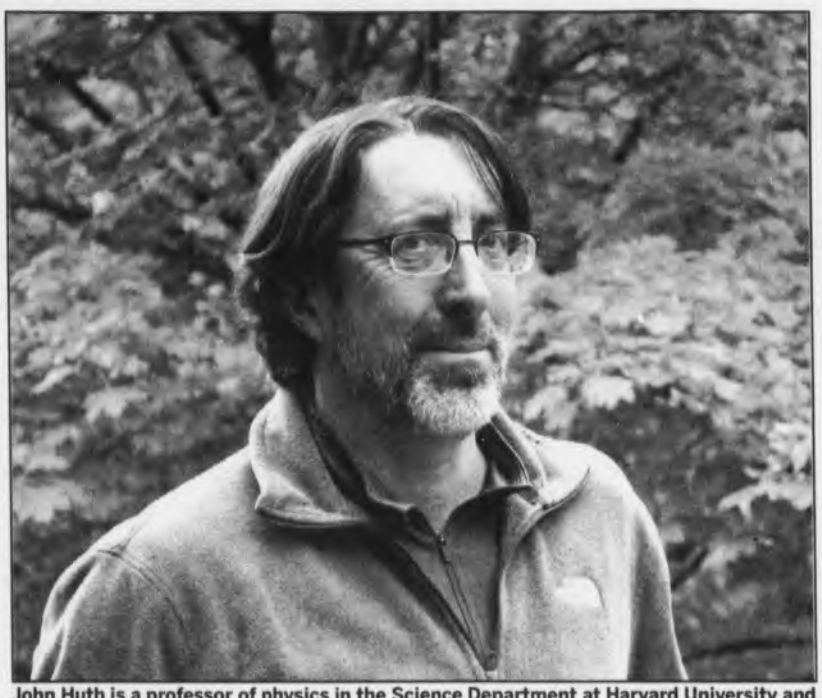
3. Lowered excluded debt service by $1,300,000 that will directly be reflected in tax bills without extending term of bonds. Saved an additional $450,000 in refinancing water debt service. Structured existing town debt to allow for over $20,000,000 of capital investment over next 10 years within current tax base.

4. Reversed bond rating decline to an upgraded rating of AA+ with stable outlook under the new Financial Management Policies and put town on track for future AAA rating.

5. Oversaw the reduction of water user rates and procured a new water plant engineering firm that resulted in a $1,300,000 savings that will allow for continued stabilized water rates. Also, successfully implemented the joint management of Water and Sewer Commission that had not previously existed.

6. Resolved all prior unfair labor practices and grievances without financial impact to the Town. Successfully negotiated all town union contracts to fall on same three-year schedule and negotiated many union concessions that put unions more in-line with their labor market including reductions in benefits.

7. Empowered Department Heads to be financially responsible for their department operations while increasing services to the public. The following departments have increased services they provide under my direction including: Public Works, Library, Elder Affairs, Harbormaster, Police, Fire, Town Accountant, Treasurer/Collector, Project Management and Planning, as well as centralizing of Permits and Inspections. These service expansions were done primarily through cost savings from operational efficiencies and financial reform, without tax increases.



8. After MIIA required 7.5 percent health care premium increase for FY14, Milanoski negotiated an unprecedented a 0.5 percent premium increase with no reductions in services that will save over $300,000 annually.

9. Hired new auditor and established audit process that will require the Board of Selectmen to publicly review management letter and audit. Submitted the town's first Comprehensive Annual Financial Report (CAFR) adding another layer of transparency for full disclosure. Milanoski was awarded the highest form of recognition in the area of governmental accounting and financial reporting with the Certificate of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting by the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA).

10. Secured $4,000,000 in 100 percent federal funding for long overdue dredging project of Cohasset Harbor that will occur during the winter of 2014-15.

Special to the Mariner

John Huth will speak about his most recent book, "The Lost Art of Finding Our Way," at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library on January 5, at 4 p.m.

Anyone who has ever been caught in fog on the sea knows the awful cloak of darkness, its terror both mental and physical. And inside Minot's Ledge, along Cohasset's coast, lies an area that conjures nightmares for many a Cohasset boater.

So it is especially fitting that the next speaker at Sunday AuthorTalks, John Huth, will talk about the history of navigation and the innate skills that kept our forbears alive and guided them around shoals such as the Grampuses and Sutton Rocks. Mr. Huth will speak about his most recent book, "The Lost Art of Finding Our Way," at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library on January 5, at 4 p.m.

John Huth is a professor of physics in the Science Department at Harvard University and an avid boater and explorer. While kayaking in Nantucket Sound a few years ago, he had experienced being adrift in the fog. Although he eventually found land, two young women, lost in the same area, never made it home. Haunted by survivor's guilt, he began to think about the environmental clues that steered him to shore, and he resolved to discover everything he could about the older cultures of navigation and the skills that enabled these early voyageurs to explore the world.

Huth read history going back to the 11th century. He followed the Norse from Norway to Greenland and on to North America and learned about their system of telling time; he followed the routes of the medieval Arab traders who developed sail configurations which enabled them to sail into the wind, and by using stars and the knowledge of wind patterns, could sail out of sight of land for days at a time; and he followed the Polynesians around the Pacific, and through these indigenous navigators, learned to see the world through their eyes.

He made flash cards to memorize major stars and he learned about observing combined information hidden in wind, waves, birds, and sounds. Huth laments modern man's reliance on technology, which has dulled his instinct for knowing how to get from point A to point B. He says, "Too often in the modern era we rely on guardians to interpret events for us...but when we do this we surrender the more primal empiricism that our ancestors surely possessed."

His book is illustrated with nearly 200 drawings and is filled with both personal and historical anecdotes. Part travelogue, science, and history, it is replete with fascinating bits of physics, astronomy, oceanography, and meteorology.

For further conversation with John Huth, a wine and cheese reception will follow his talk; Buttonwood Books will provide copies of his book for purchase and signing. Admission is free. For more information, visit Cohassetlibrary.org or call the library at 383-1348.

Sunday AuthorTalks is sponsored by Dean and Hamilton Realtors, The Cook Estate, and A Taste for Wine and Spirits.

Draft audit received

No one likes to hear the term "you've been audited," but in Cohasset, it's not a bad thing.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski reported that the town received a draft audit for Fiscal Year 2013 from firm Powers and Sullivan. The draft is available for internal control review by staff, which should be completed this week.

The final audit and comprehensive annual financial report (CAFR) should be available within next week or two for the Board of Selectmen and the public through a presentation by the auditor sometime in January.

Milanoski said in an email to the selectmen, "Congratulations for your first Christmas present, all material weaknesses have been resolved from prior years and removed. There are no material weaknesses with our FY13 audit."

In other words, the audit did not reveal any significant deficiencies that could lead to a misstatement in the town's financial statements.

Sewer extension

The state's Environmental Protection Division has granted Cohasset a six-month extension to fulfill the state's second amended final judgment to hook up remaining properties to municipal sewer. The judgment was originally ordered in April 1997.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski recently reported that he was "successfully able to negotiate" what he hopes will be the town's last extension. He anticipates the sewer hookup "should be wrapped up by April. There's only a handful of people left" to connect.

Assistant Attorney General Andrew Goldberg stated in a letter to Town Counsel Paul DeRensis that the state "recognize[s] the progress Cohasset has made to date, and look forward to the successful conclusion of this matter for the benefit of the Town, its residents, and the environment."

Town Hall renovations

The Town Hall Restoration and Renovation Committee will meet on Wednesday, Jan. 15 to continue discussing potential design plans to rehabilitate the building.

The also committee plans to hold a public hearing in the near future to solicit public input on the proposed design schemes, with the goal of presenting cost estimates to the Board of Selectmen, Community Preservation Committee, and other boards sometime in February.

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

BRIEFLY

Calling all history buffs

Cohasset's Historical Commission is seeking new members. Selectmen Martha Gjesteby reported to the rest of the board that the commission would like to add three new members. Gjesteby said that she hopes the town "can get more people for the talent bank."

Anyone interested in joining the commission should send a letter of interest to the Board of Selectmen's office, 41 Highland Ave., or email Tracey Connors at tconnors@cohassetma.org.

Our champs

Cohasset sports teams had a pretty spectacular 2013, with a number of teams making it all the way to State Championship games.

The Cohasset football, boys soccer, boys lacrosse and golf teams made it that far, as did girls tennis star Emma Davis, who claimed the MIAA Individual State Championship.

Davis and her tennis teammates claimed a Div. 3 South Sectional title and the Skippers boys basketball team advanced to the Division 4 Sectional Finals, winning 20 games over the season.

Many other teams had outstanding seasons, including the field hockey team, winners of the South Shore League for the first time, advancing the Sectional Semifinal.

The boys hockey team, girls soccer and girls lacrosse team also qualified for the tournament.

BEEKEEPING SCHOOL

Learning just bee-cause

By Mark Burridge
mburridge@wickedlocal.com

"There is no right or wrong, just different takes and styles to the hobby, some more successful than others. When you work with a club you have many people and chat groups to bounce ideas off of, many people to learn from—I know I did."
Lisa Cullity, former director of the beekeeping school

If you're looking for a new hobby, consider looking outside the box... or inside the hive?

Plymouth County Beekeepers are planning the next session of beekeeping school, which begins on Jan. 16.

According to Glen Cornell, the school committee chairman for the beekeepers' group, up to 70 people could attend the class.

"We try and support new members as they get through their first years as a beekeeper," he said. "Somebody is always willing to help."

Cornell said the organization has about 380 members, including 100 or so that are very active. However, he said pretty much anyone signed up is willing and able to help a new member who is just trying to get the hang of the new hobby.

"I look at it similarly to driving a car," he said. "You can give someone a manual, and classes; but until they get behind the wheel, they don't know what it's like."

Last year, Cornell said the class had more than 60 people sign up. Although the beekeepers are based out of the Cranberry Specialty Hospital at 266 High St. in Hanson, Cornell said due to the size of the classes, a lot of times they need to be held at the Community Center at 128 Center St. in Pembroke.

"We take them right from what is happening with the bees, with them disappearing, and we take them through the anatomy of a bee," he said. "We show them what a honey bee's function is and we even help them get their bees at the end of the class."

Cornell said several new members typically are familiar with Colony Collapse Disorder, which according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's website, is the sudden loss of a colony's worker bee population with very few dead bees found near the colony. But he said that isn't an issue effecting South Shore bees.

"It's not our problem really," he said. "Our problem is with a mite that is killing the bees and there are a few different diseases to deal with."

He said between the tough situation with bees right now and the learning curve that comes with being a new beekeeper, sometimes people get burned out quickly. That is why members of the Plymouth County Beekeepers stress their ability to help.

"The average beekeeper loses about 30 percent of their bees per year," he said. "For a new beekeeper, that number is more like 70 percent. It takes about five years to make a good beekeeper."

Lisa Cullity, of Pembroke, is the former director of the beekeeping school and still stays active in the field.

"I think anyone looking to get into beekeeping really should join a bee club, be it ours, a different local club, or Massachusetts beekeepers," she said.

Cullity said she believes beekeeping is more art than science and by joining a club, more viewpoints, styles and techniques for beekeeping can be passed around that will ultimately improve the ability of the beekeeper.

"There is no right or wrong, just different takes and styles to the hobby, some more successful than others," Cullity said. "When you work with a club you have many people and chat groups to bounce ideas off of, many people to learn from – I know I did."

Glen Cornell said when a hive is full of honey, it can weigh anywhere from 60-100 lbs. COURTESY PHOTO

Cornell said the Plymouth County Beekeepers include people from Boston to Plymouth, with the two most active towns probably being Pembroke and Middleboro. But overall membership is on the rise.

"We've been growing over the past six or seven years pretty steadily," he said. "The hobby isn't as time consuming as you think it is."

Cornell said even though it may seem beekeeping requires a lot of micromanagement, it is in fact the opposite.

"Bees aren't domesticated, if you don't treat them right, they'll leave you," he said. "You really just start it up, and then leave them be. Maybe check on them once per month or so."

The class starts on Jan. 16 and runs until April 24 for a total of eight classes. All classes begin at 7 p.m. For more information and to find a class sign up form, check out Plymouthcountybeekeepers.org.

Cullity said new beekeepers have to be ready for one thing.

"You will get stung, and it wont be as bad as you built it up in your mind," she said.

Cohasset Boy Scout raises funds for typhoon relief

The devastation in the Philippines following Typhoon Haiyan generated relief efforts in many quarters, including Cohasset. Reacting to the reports of the effect of the storm on residents of the islands that were hit directly, Marcus Rowland, a First Class-rank scout in Cohasset's Troop 28, decided that he wanted to raise money and to find a way to make that money directly improve the circumstances of the typhoon survivors.

Marcus decided to look for a charity that had some relationship to scouting. He found that the Boy Scouts of America had, on its website, directed scouts interested in helping with relief efforts to support a group called "ShelterBox."

Researching the matter further, Marcus learned that ShelterBox was founded by a British member of Rotary International, Tom Henderson, who realized that the immediate problem in the wake of a natural disaster is providing the survivors with shelter. Extreme weather and earthquakes often destroy much of the housing in the affected area. Henderson knew that aid groups routinely rushed food and medicine to the areas, but there was little work in the area of emergency housing.

Henderson developed the ShelterBox, which is just that – a prepacked containing a tent suitable for an extended family in difficult weather conditions, water purification and storage equipment, a stove and basic cooking utensils. Most ShelterBoxes also include a children's activity pack. The importance of these items to people suddenly deprived of everything they own was obvious to Marcus. He is an experienced camper, having spent many nights in the field both with the Troop and with his family. The prospect of surviving in the outdoors with just improvised shelter, is a skill that scouts learn, but he knows is entirely unsuitable for entire communities over many months. "If my family lost everything I'd want other Scouts to help us. I knew there was something our troop could do and ShelterBox seemed like the perfect fit. When I did the research I was really impressed by what they do. It's a global charity helping anyone, anywhere in the world in really practical ways. I liked that, it totally fits with what Scouting means."

Marcus prepared a multi-media presentation that informed his audience about both the damage caused by Haiyan and the work done by ShelterBox.

In order to raise funds, Marcus asked if he could make a presentation to the Troop scouts and parents at its twice-yearly awards ceremony on Dec. 11. He prepared a multi-media presentation that informed his audience about both the damage caused by Haiyan and the work done by ShelterBox. His presentation drove home to the audience the immediate need for emergency housing for the victims.

The match between ShelterBox and Troop 28 went a little deeper than just their respective use of tents. Troop 28 is sponsored by the Cohasset Rotary Club, which is part of Rotary International, a global "Project Partner" of ShelterBox, as is the Scouting Association of the United Kingdom. This intersection of the missions of both scouting and Rotary International was supported by the Cohasset Rotary Club. Ken Roth attended the event for the Rotary, and presented Marcus with a generous contribution to open up his fundraising effort.

The presentation was successful, raising over $700 for ShelterBox. Marcus will repeat the presentation directly to the Rotary early in the New Year. The Troop is particularly proud of Marcus's effort. "Scouts are expected to engage in public service projects as part of the program. Some level of service is required for every rank advancement, up to a very substantial project for Eagle rank," said Scoutmaster Rob Hillman. "When he proposed this project, Marcus had no current need for service time, he just did it because it needed to be done, which is exactly the attitude toward service that scouting is all about." Following the collection, Marcus was "really grateful to everyone who has donated. I imagine that there is at least one family somewhere that has been helped."

Readers wishing to support ShelterBox are encouraged to do so by contributing directly at www.shelterboxusa.org.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF JAN. 6, 2014

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It's a good time to take a much-needed break from your recent hectic schedule and spend some time in quieter surroundings. Important news could arrive early next week.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Taurean traits of reliability and thoroughness could be well-tested when decision-makers consider your proposals and/or requests. Be prepared to answer some probing questions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A sudden attack of boredom leaves you with some tasks undone. It's OK to take a short respite. But get back to work by week's end so that you have time for other projects.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Avoid prejudging a situation just because it looks bad. Facts could emerge that would make your position uncomfortable, to say the least. A relative has interesting news to share with you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) This is a good time to begin reassessing some of your recent decisions about your long-range goals to see if they still have merit. Spend more time with loved ones this weekend.

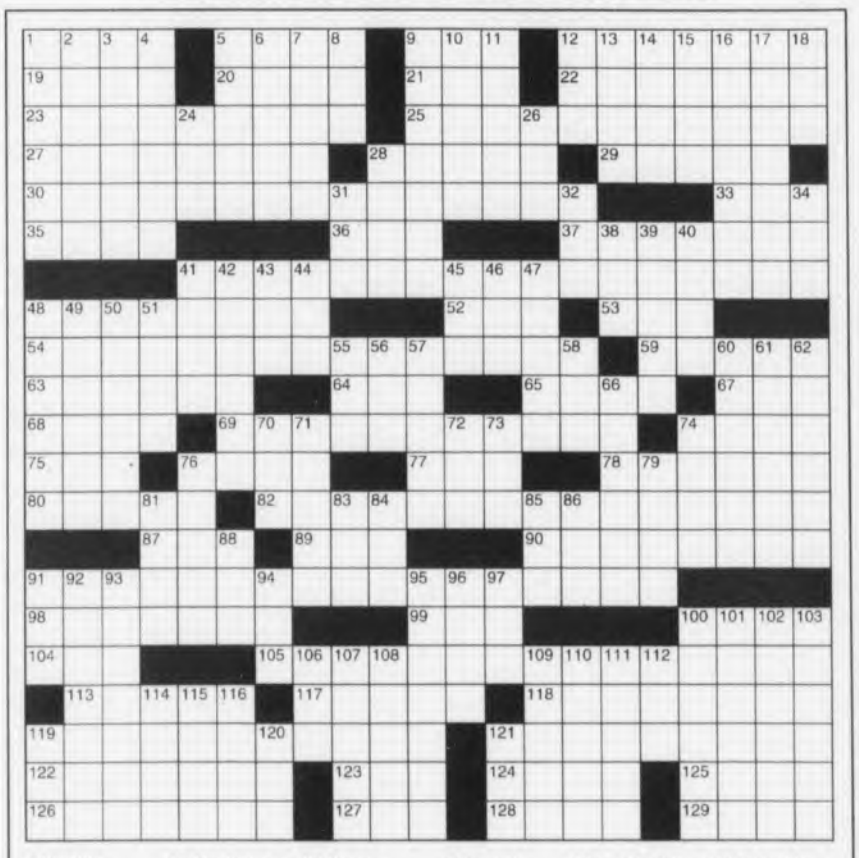
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An unsettled situation at home or on the job early in the week could drain your energy levels, making it difficult to get your work done on schedule. But things improve by midweek.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A temporary setback could give you time to go over your plans to find weaknesses you might have overlooked before. A romantic getaway with that special person is favored this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Professional and personal situations benefit once you set a positive tone in getting things off to a good start. Honest dialogue smoothes over any occasional display of balkiness.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A problem with workplace colleagues or family members seems to defy even your sage counsel. But be patient. Your words eventually will lead to a resolution.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't just wait out that unexpected and unexplained delay in your career move. You could gain added respect if you ask why it happened and what you can do to move things along.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Although your workplace strategies usually are accepted, you could be challenged by someone who isn't so favorably impressed. Be prepared to defend your positions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your friendship circle expands, with new people coming into your life at this time. Welcome them warmly. But don't neglect those cherished longtime personal relationships.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love to search for knowledge and share it with others. You would make an especially fine teacher.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles?

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
